21 States OK Political Reform

By The Associated Press

Worries over Watergate and its implications have turned 1974 into a year of political reform. An Associated Press survey showed reforms have been approved by lawmakers or voters in 21 states this year.

Most of the measures are similar to, but not so far reaching as, the one passed by California voters in a referendum on Tuesday. They limit campaign contributions, make candidates account for the money they've spent, curb activities by lobbyists and require public officials to disclose their financial holdings.

Common Cause, the self-styled "citizens' lobby" that spurred the California referendum, has been a leader in the drive for reform in other states. Legislators themselves also expressed concern over public loss of confidence in elected officials and sought to regain the trust of the people.

"Out of the rubble of 'Watergate' and the 'Agnew affair,' the 1974 . . . legislature rose as a body to support reform in its conflict of interest laws and in its laws relating to the conduct of elections," said Republican Robert F. Bennett, president of the Kansas Senate and a candidate for his party's gubernatorial nomination.

The Kansas lawmakers passed two bills: one dealing with the conduct of state officials, the other limiting campaign contributions and requiring spending reports before and after elections.

Other states where reforms have been approved are: Alaska, Arizona, California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Wyoming.

Nine other states passed bills in 1973 and two approved some reform legislation prior to last year. Measures are pending in four states and have been defeated or allowed to die in six states. The issue has aroused little or no interest in eight states.

The California measure, which takes effect next Jan. 1, was overwhelmingly approved. It limits the amounts that candidates for office or supporters of referenda can spend and prohibits lobbyists from making campaign contributions of more than $50 or spending more than $10 a month on any one state official.

Common Cause Chairman John Gardner called the measure "the most spectacular test of the post-Watergate mood . . . the last stand for the boys in the back room."

Earlier in the week, Gardner told the nation's governors, meeting in Seattle, that the states had taken thx lead in political reform.

Some of the reform measures had been pending for years, but gained little support until the disclosures about campaign spending during the 1972 presidential election.

A.G. Lancione, a Democrat and speaker of the House of Representatives in Ohio, where a code of ethics bill was enacted, said reform measures had been pending for some time. "I think Watergate expedited their passage," he said. "If it hadn't of been for Watergate, they may not have passed."

The Florida legislature established an ethics commission with subpoena powers and passed a measure requiring all public officials to disclose their financial holdings.

Both measures are before Gov. Reubin Askew, who had urged an even-stiffer disclosure bill. He said the legislation that passed was "a meaninful step toward meeting the most important challenge today — that of winning the confidence and trust of the people."

The new measures will mean more paperwork. "There's going to be a lot more bureaucracy for campaign organizations which we hope is worth the effort," said Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill who signed into law four election reform bills on May 22.

Among the Connecticut laws is one prohibiting any group from spending organization funds for political contributions. The groups may set up special committees to collect funds for candidates, but must list all contributors.

State scandals provided the impetus for reforms in some areas. Arizona legislators, who established controls on campaign spending and lobbying and required financial disclosures by public officials, were spurred to action by conflict of interest charges involving two lawmakers.

The Texas legislature passed several reform measures in 1973, most resulting from the 1971 Sharpstown scandal in which the House speaker and two aides were convicted of conspiracy to accept bribes concerning banking bills.

Reform advocates in states where measures for change were defeated say they won't give up. Idaho lawmakers defeated bills that would have required registration of lobbyists and disclosure of campaign funding. But supporters of the measures, led by State Sen. John Peavey, a Republican, are circulating petitions to get the 25,000 signatures necessary to put the measure on the November ballot.

Those states that passed reforms in 1973 are: Alabama, Hawaii, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nevada, Oregon, Texas and Wisconsin.

Washington and Arkansas passed reform legislation earlier; measures are pending in Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Illinois and Delaware, they were defeated or died in New Hampshire, Missouri, Vemmont, Tennessee, New Mexico and Idaho.

No action has been taken in Utah, North Dakota, Mississippi, Colorado, Montana, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

McGovern Loses . . .

Senate Rejects Anti-B1 Motion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Wednesday turned down an effort to slow development of the new B1 strategic bomber.

An anti-B1 amendment by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., was rejected 59 to 31 as the Senate continued debate on a $21.8 billion weapons procurement authorization bill for the year beginning July 1.

In a separate action, the Senate adopted by voice vote and sent to the White House a scaled-down $769-million supplemental military procurement authorization for the remainder of the current fiscal year ending June 30. The Nixon administration had asked for $1.2 billion.

The McGovern amendment would have allowed $200 million for continued engineering and prototype testing of the B1, for which $1.6 billion already has been appropriated.

The bill before the Senate includes $455 million for three prototype aircraft.

The first test flight of the initial B1 prototype is scheduled for October or November, with a decision whether to proceed with production of 244 aircraft at a cost of $15 billion due in the fall of 1976.

Sens. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., defended the three-prototype $455-million test program for next year and said a cutback to $200 million would "effectively kill the B1 program."

McGovern said a fund cutback, plus the demand in his amendment for an independent study of alternatives to the B1, would merely delay decision on production at no cost to national security.

Curtis, Hruska Favor Bomber

Washington (AP) — Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, both R-Neb., voted for development of the B1 bomber Wednesday when the Senate rejected, 59-31, an amendment to slash funding for it.

5 Omaha Policemen Shot

A sniper firing a shotgun from the second story of a frame house in Omaha's Near North Side wounded at least five policemen Wednesday night.

Three policemen were reported in "serious" condition and two were listed as "fair"

At least 35 officers surrounded the house and sealed off the area.

Ofc. Michael Thomas said that the officers on the scene had fired no shots because they did not know whether or not there were other people in the house.

Police wearing flak jackets used a floodlight in an attempt to locate the sniper as he moved from window to window firing the shotgun.

Thomas said the shooting started while officers were answering a disturbance call in the area.

Failure Of Safety Bills Said 'Monumental' Goof

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The 1974 Legislature's "disastrous decisions" barring enactment of two highway and traffic safety bills represents a "monumental failure," Tom Carroll said in Lincoln Wednesday.

The Nebraska Safety Council executive director told members at the annual meeting that state senators' failure to approve LB795 and LB1051 was the result of "gut reactions, emotional reactions taken on the feeling of being overpowered by the feds."

2 Measures Suggested

The Federal Highway Safety Administration mandated passage of legislation requiring motorcycle riders to wear protective headgear and adopting an Emergency Medical Services Act to regulate ambulances and ambulance attendants.

Without passage of the bills, the administration threatened to impound roads and highway safety program funds.

Carroll said statements by such officials as former Gov. Norbert Tiemann, now federal highway administrator, that the funds to Nebraska will continue to mean nothing "until we read it in the Federal Register."

State senators should "rely on local leaders" in highway safety decisions, and "make 1975 a different experience," he said.

Carroll gave the 1974 Unicameral a 50-50 mark in passing what he called "good, constructive pieces of legislation," but he lamented, "They picked a couple of good ones to destroy."

Nebraskans 'Being Hurt'

He said Nebraska drivers, police and safety education programs "are being hurt because you don't know how to plan" after the legislative inaction.

Meanwhile, Carroll said he believes the NSC record this year is not good either, and he urged members to "get out into the state (and) build a groundswell of support for a real strong (legislative highway safety) package," which has "never been done before."

NSC has 750 members state-wide in business, industry, state agencies, local government, trade associations and local safety groups.

As a result, Carroll said, NSC has multi-lateral interests and varying points of view on safety measures. "Our job has to be one of bringing people together. That we can do."

He also promised the council will "disseminate reliable information" to put together a legislative program in a package approach.

He submitted the Legislature's passage of LB66 was a "major achievement." The bill requires alcohol tests on traffic fatality victims or surviving drivers or pedestrians involved in a fatal motor vehicle accident.

'Research Capabilities'

Reports made to the State Department of Motor Vehicles under LB66 "will for the first time give us research capabilities in the alcoholism field," Carroll said.

He also lauded passage of LB829e, providing uniform procefures to issue traffic citations, LB821, providing for motor vehicle re-registration on the anniversary of initial registration, and LB873e, reducing speed limits.

Carroll chided state senators for not approving LB128, which would have required a color photo on drivers licenses. The NSC-supported bill "would help law enforcement," Carroll said, maintaining that each year it comes up, "it gets pushed off in the corner of the room."

Talk about how photos on licenses would be advantageous for merchants, "especially liquor dealers," dwarf other "reasons of traffic safety," Carroll said.

NSC members discussed driver improvement, occupational, youth and highway safety hazards during the one-day meeting.

Jack & Jill Owner Fined $100

Bockoven Corp., owner of the Belmont Jack & Jill, Wednesday pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) and was found guilty of "selling less than the quantity represented."

Judge Ralph Slocum fined the corporation $100.

The charge stemmed from inspections by the weights and measures division of the State Department of Agriculture.

State Department of Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher had asked Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas to file criminal charges against the store following a departmental hearing.

Inspectors testified at the hearing that on three occasions, Dec. 18, April 26 and April 30, products packaged by the store weighed significantly less than the label stated.

In some instanced, the alleged error would have cost consumers a few extra cents. In others, the alleged error was as much as 75 cents.

The store was charged in Lancaster County Court with an offense which occurred April 30.

William Walker, attorney for the corporation, told Judge Slocum that there was no intent to "defraud" in the incident and that the mislabeling was an error on the part of store employes.

He conceded the labeling "error" was more than could be attributed to shrinkage.

Walker was accompanied by Dwain Hutson, vice president of the corporation.

Statutory penalties for the offense are a fine of $50 to $500 and-or three months in jail.

U.S. Civil Service Investigating Graff

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County Deputy Surveyor Henry Graff, the Democratic candidate for county surveyor, is under investigation for possible violation of the federal Hatch Act.

The Star learned Wednesday that Graff is under investigation by the U.S. Civil Service Commission.

Attorney Pete Skoro, with the commission's General Counsel Office in Washington, D C., was in Lincoln Wednesday gathering information.

Accusers Not Identified

Skoro declined to name Graff's accusers on the grounds that the investigation is confidential.

Skoro explained that the Hatch Act prohibits employes of state and local governments from taking an active role in political campaigns if their jobs are connected with any activity financed in whole or part by federal dollars.

The county surveyor's office, which is popularly refered to as the county engineer's office, receives federal aid for road construction from the Federal Highway Administration.

There would be no apparent conflict if Graff were to resign as deputy.

However, when the possible conflict with the Hatch Act was raised by Ray Hogrefe, division engineer for the highway administration last March, Graff refused to resign his job so he could run for the head post.

At that time, Hogrefe was quoted as saying a report would be filed with the Civil Service Commission to determine the legality of Graff's candidacy.

In the May 14 primary Graff defeated Eugene Schiltz for the Democratic nomination. Nate Beezley was nominated on the Republican ticket. Graff and Beezely will square off in the November general election.

The investigation does not effect Graff's nomination or his candidacy in November election, Skoro stressed.

Graff, who said Skoro talked to him Wednesday, declined public comment on the charges. He said he was not told who filed the complaint.

The overall investigative process could take longer than the average three to four months, Skoro indicated.

May Be Postponed

"The circumstances in this case may require the postponing of a final decision," the attorney said.

He declined to elaborate further.

Skoro said his report will include a recommendation on whether to close the case or to continue with it. He said it has to be determined whether Graff violated the Hatch Act, if there is evidence to back up the charge, if the commission has jurisdiction in the matter and if there are mitigating circumstances.

Skoro asked Election Commissioner Bill Davidson for copies of Graff's three primary campaign expenses and contributions reports and to certify that Graff is the Democratic nominee for the job.

Time For Response

If a decision is made to pursue the case, Skoro said charges are filed, time is given for a response to those charges and a hearing is held.

An administrative judge then determines whether a violation has occurred and if so, whether that violation warrants the person's removal from his job. If such a ruling is made, the accused has 30 days to file exceptions to that ruling.

But, if no such action is taken, Skoro said the commission then informs the person's employer, in Graff's case the County Engineer, and recommends the employe's removal from office.

If the employer refuses to cooperate, the commission then seeks a withholding order requiring the appropriate federal agency to without funds from the next loan or grant.

Heaton's project isn't exactly a flying saucer — it just looks like one, disc-shaped with a dome on the top. In a way, the contraption is sort of a car that flies — or will, someday, he says.

"It will take off and land vertically, have one control stick to provide both direction of flight and speed. It will be as easy to operate as an automobile and cost no more than a medium-priced American car," he said.

So far Heaton, who owns an exterminating company in Decatur, has built only a three-foot, nonflying model. He's working to perfect the 15th version of a rotary engine he hopes will propel the aircraft at speeds of 150 to 170 miles per hour.

"All the time I've spent away from my business has cost me money and it's hard to hold out-," he said. "But I want to be there when it all comes together, because the man who does it first can make a fortune."

Out-Of-Town Food Stores Not Charged

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher has deferred seeking criminal charges against two outstate grocery stores for sale of underweight meat products pending future inspections.

Bob Ensz, department attorney, said Wednesday the problems with incorrect weight readings on meat products at the two stores may have been due to the employes' lack of familiarity with new scales.

The stores, Ken's Rodeo Market at O'Neill and Al's Super Saver in Oakland, will be checked again by the department's weights and measures division to see if the problem has been rectified, he said. Charges could be filed, he said, if the situation has not improved.

He said the hearings with the owners of those two stores are the last involving sale of underweight meat for the present.

Man Building Flying Saucer

COVINGTON, Ga. (AP) — David Heaton is a dreamer with expensive ideas.

Heaton, 45, has spent $50,000 and thousands of hours trying to build a sort of a flying saucer. "Some people laugh at me," he said. "But they never call me average."

Heaton's project isn't exactly a flying saucer — it just looks like one, disc-shaped with a dome on the top. In a way, the contraption is sort of a car that flies — or will, someday, he says.

"I've already proved its feasibility," Heaton said. "It's only a matter of time and money.

"It's just like the mysterious flying saucers the Martians used in comic books," he said. "I call it the aerocommuter. It will carry two passengers, will be only 12 feet in diameter and weigh only 1,200 pounds fully loaded.

"It will take off and land vertically, have one control stick to provide both direction of flight and speed. It will be as easy to operate as an automobile and cost no more than a medium-priced American car," he said.

So far Heaton, who owns an exterminating company in Decatur, has built only a three-foot, nonflying model. He's working to perfect the 15th version of a rotary engine he hopes will propel the aircraft at speeds of 150 to 170 miles per hour.

Out-Of-Town Food Stores Not Charged

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher has deferred seeking criminal charges against two outstate grocery stores for sale of underweight meat products pending future inspections.

Bob Ensz, department attorney, said Wednesday the problems with incorrect weight readings on meat products at the two stores may have been due to the employes' lack of familiarity with new scales.

The stores, Ken's Rodeo Market at O'Neill and Al's Super Saver in Oakland, will be checked again by the department's weights and measures division to see if the problem has been rectified, he said. Charges could be filed, he said, if the situation has not improved.

He said the hearings with the owners of those two stores are the last involving sale of underweight meat for the present.

Biggest Milk Co-op Artificially Jacked Up Prices, Morris Says

SILOAM SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — The nation's largest milk cooperative artificially boosted prices so that federal financial supports would be raised, the former secretary of the cooperative says.

Dwight L. Morris, 55, testified here under subpoena last week that Associated Milk Producers Inc. — AMPI — "overpaid" dairy farmers for manufacturing grade milk in Minnesota and Wisconsin in 1970.

The co-op, which controls about 12 per cent of the nation's milk supply, also "bidded up" the price of cheese on a key exchange in Green Bay, Wis., hoping to influence federal milk price supports, Morris said.

His testimony came in connection with antitrust suits brought by the federal government and others against AMPI.

In an interview in the presence of his lawyer, Morris said he felt AMPI's manuevering to increase milk prices was within the bounds of federal laws governing cooperatives and federal antitrust statutes. AMPI's court opponents, charging monopolistic practices, are certain to contest this.

George Mehren, who became AMPI's general manager in 1972, has testified he has no direct knowledge of manipulation of milk prices in Minnesota and Wisconsin in 1970 and, based on his career in and out of government as an agricultural economist, has said it is silly to conclude a co-op could assert such influence.

AP

MORRIS . . . ex-secretary.

Besides the antitrust suit, AMPI is the target in Watergate milk fund investigations and, as a heavy contributor, is involved in allegations that the 1971 milk price support increase by President Nixon was a political payoff. The White House has denied the allegations, which now are being investigated by the House Judiciary Committee studying an impeachment resolution.

Here's how Morris described the co-op's alleged campaign to increase prices:

AMPI was getting a premium of 50 cents per hundredweight in its southern region. The premium, paid by processors to insure a supply, could be obtained because of the heavy proportion of farmers in the southern region who used AMPI to market their milk.

In some areas in the southern region, AMPI had a complete monopoly, the Justice Department charges. In the nation's dairy belt in Minnesota and Wisconsin, AMPI faced more competition.

It is there that the U.S. Department of Agriculture computes monthly a factor called the M-W — Minnesota-Wisconsin — series, a floor price for milk from the farm which sets the trend for milk prices in the rest of the nation.

The Agriculture Department, using a sample of 110 secretly selected milk processors. calculates the average farm milk price.

Morris said AMPI shifted revenues from its southern region — revenues that included the premium of 50 cents per hundredweight — to its northern region so it could pay farmers there more than the market price. In the antitrust suit, that procedure has been termed "plusing the price."

"If we raised the M-W series price . . . a nickel (per hundredweight) by sending 15 cents into this area, not only we (AMPI) but the whole nation (dairy farmers) would make a nickel," Morris testified.

Asked if the result could be hundreds of millions of dollars annually in such increases nationwide, Morris answered: "Yes."

"If we spent a million, we stood to gain a hundred times that much," he said. "The higher the M-W price series was, the easier it would be for the government to set a higher support . . . If we got the market price up above what the support level was, the less money the government would have to pay out in supports," he said.

The controversial support order by Nixon in 1971 was $4.93 per hundredweight, or 27 cents above the prior year's $4.66 support level. Two months prior to Nixon's announcement, the M-W price series figure had risen to $4.83, passing the 1970 government support level by 17 cents.

The staff of the Senate Watergate committee said in a special report that the Nixon decision "was apparently worth anywhere from $300 million to $700 million in extra income to dairy farmers."

"The cost was shared by government and American consumers," it said.

Committee Listens To Nixon Dairy Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Judiciary Committee members Wednesday listened to tape recordings of White House conversations on the day President Nixon ordered an increase in milk price supports.

The impeachment panel is considering whether the presidential directive was tied to campaign contributions promised by dairy cooperatives.

The committee had tapes of three conversations that took place on March 23, 1971: a telephone discussion with then-Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, a meeting with dairy cooperative representatives and a staff discussion of the price support question.

As they emerged from the morning session at which they hear tapes of the first two conversations, committee members said they had heard nothing to prove the allegation that the price increase was tied to political contributions.

Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y., said "there was certainly nothing sinister. It was the kind of farmers talk you'll hear at any meeting like that."

"Forty minutes of dribble," commented Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y.

Members heard the President thank the dairymen for their support but they said it sounded on the tape like gratitude for over-all backing of administration programs rather than for financial pledges to his re-election campaign.

In discussions with White House and Nixon campaign aides, dairymen had pledged to raise $2 million for Nixon's re-election campaign. The amount they actually came up with fell far short of that goal.

The White House issued a statement last January acknowledging that the President was aware of the $2 million campaign pledge but saying it did not influence his decision to order the price support increase.

The President has contended that a major factor in the decision was his belief that the Democratic-controlled Congress was preparing to pass legislation increasing milk price supports, a move that would have cost the President political support for dairymen.

Rep. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, said the milk price case "calls into question this whole issue of campaign financing reform."

Acknowledging that such campaign pledges could tread a fine line separating legitimate support from bribes, Cohen said, "I've heard nothing on the bribe side of the line."

Material presented to the committee by its impeachment staff alleged that Connally discussed a possible milk price support with dairymen and urged the President to approve it on several occasions in March 1971.

Nixon Sees Peril In Meddling In Soviet Internal Policy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — President Nixon said Wednesday that attempts by Americans to influence domestic policies of the Soviet Union and other nations could rupture detente.

"We cannot gear our foreign policy to transformation of other societies," the President said in a major foreign policy address at Naval Academy graduation ceremonies.

In a clear reference to the controversy over emigration of Soviet Jews, Nixon declared, "We would not welcome the intervention of other countries in our domestic affairs and we cannot expect them to be cooperative when we seek to intervene directly in theirs."

His comments to the 906 new Navy ensigns and a crowd of about 15,000 at the football stadium came on the eve of trips to the Middle East next week and to the Soviet Union later this month.

Nixon did not directly mention Congress or Soviet Jewish emigration. But controversy over the issue has been holding up passage of his proposed trade bill which would give the Soviet Union most-favored-nation treatment.

The bill, which would give the President five-year authority to negotiation new trade agreements with other countries, has been passed in the House. Attached to it was an amendment by Reps. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, that would prevent granting of nondiscriminatory trade treatment to the Soviet Union until it allows free emigration of minorities.

Eighty members of the Senate have endorsed that language but it is still in the Senate Finance Committee.

"Eloquent speeches — appeals — are now being made for the United States, through its foreign policy, to transform the internal as well the international behavior of other countries, especially that of the Soviet Union," Nixon said.

This issue, he said, poses a dilemma in the pursuit of detente.

"It affects not only our relations with the Soviet Union but also our posture toward many nations whose internal systems we totally disagree with, as they do with ours," he declared.

And, Nixon said in tracing "the outline of America's strategy for peace" that "our primary concern in foreign policy must be to help influence the international conduct of nations in the world arena."

The President, accompanied by his wife, was interrupted twice during his speech by applause, once when he warned against isolationism.

Declaring that the threat of a new wave of isolationism "remains today one of the greatest potential dangers facing our country," the President said:

"In our era, American isolation could easily lead to global desolation. Whether we like it or not, the alternative to detente is a runaway nuclear arms race; a return to constant confrontation; and a shattering setback to our hopes for building a new structure of peace in the world."

Nixon Calls Marshall 'Jackass' On Tapes

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — President Nixon refers to the Supreme Court's only black justice, Thurgood Marshall, as a "jackass" in one of the White House tapes that has become controversial because it allegedly contains racial and ethnic epithets, according to sources who have heard the recording.

In the same conversation, the President alludes to "our Jewish friends in the media" and suggests that they have an "in" with certain administration officials, the sources said.

It apparently was these remarks, on a recording of a Feb. 28, 1973, meeting between Nixon and then-White House counsel John W. Dean III, to which Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., of the House Judiciary Committee referred on nationwide television Sunday as "ethnic slurs."

Perjury Charge Consideration Asked

Washington (UPI) — A Senate committee voted Wednesday to ask the Justice Department to consider bringing perjury charges against G. Bradford Cook, a former Securities and Exchange Commission chairman who admitted he lied under oath on five occasions.

(Cook is the son of Lincoln insurance executive George B. Cook.)

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who pressed the issue at the closed meeting of the Appropriations Committee, told a reporter he felt Cook's admission at the trial of John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans was a big factor in their acquittal.

Cook Was Witness

The two former Cabinet members were charged with conspiring to influence, obstruct and impede an SEC proceeding and Cook was a witness for the prosecution.

"If you are a juror and a witness for the government admits from the stand that he lied, and lied and lied again before at least three different agencies, would you tend to believe his testimony?" Proxmire asked.

After the trial ended, jurors cited the lack of credibility of some of the government's witnesses as a factor in the acquittal.

At age 36, Cook, a harddriving attorney, was the youngest man ever to head the SEC He quit May 16, 1973, after only 10 weeks in the post. He denied any wrongdoing but said he was leaving because if he stayed "somebody would always be saying 'What happened?' "

'That's Correct'

During the Mitchell-Stans trial, Cook answered "that's correct" each time when asked if he had lied to the grand jury on April 19, May 3, May 7 and May 14, 1973. He acknowledged lying before a House commerce subcommittee and Proxmire's appropriations subcommittee, which handles the SEC budget.

He said he told lies to minimize the efforts by Stans to have deleted from a SEC lawsuit against financier Robert L. Vesco a paragraph mentioning a $250,000 cash gift from Vesco to President Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign.

In the lawsuit, the SEC accused Vesco of "looting" a group of mutual funds of $224 million. To avoid trial, Vesco fled the country.

Resolution Held

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said that at his request the perjury resolution was ordered held in abeyance rather than sent directly to the Senate floor.

Brooke said he and Proxmire first would meet, at the request of Cook's attorney, with Cook to hear whether Cook could present any mitigating circumstances But both senators said no explanation would cause reconsideration of the committee's action.

In a May 9 letter to Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the committee, Proxmire said, "If Mr. Cook can perjure himself before our subcommittee with impunity, no committee or subcommittee of the Congress can be confident it is getting the truth when it takes sworn testimony."

5 Years Possible

General perjury carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $2,000 fine

According to Proxmire's staff, Cook was asked May 1, 1973, if he had had any contact with any administration figure about the Vesco matter. He replied there had been only one, with Stans, but it occurred after the SEC case had been filed

Then, with the Vesco affair under grand jury investigation, Cook wrote Proxmire May 4 saying he recalled "several other converations which I had with Mr. Stans, both prior and subsequent to the filing of our law suit "

On May 14, Cook was summoned before a closed subcommittee hearing and put under oath. During a five-hour session, he testified he had had four contacts with Stans. But during the Stans-Mitchell trial, he testified to at least 10 contacts with Stans over Stans' effort to remove reference to Vesco's $250,000 gift.

Nixon Sees Peril In Meddling In Soviet Internal Policy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — President Nixon said Wednesday that attempts by Americans to influence domestic policies of the Soviet Union and other nations could rupture detente.

"We cannot gear our foreign policy to transformation of other societies," the President said in a major foreign policy address at Naval Academy graduation ceremonies.

In a clear reference to the controversy over emigration of Soviet Jews, Nixon declared, "We would not welcome the intervention of other countries in our domestic affairs and we cannot expect them to be cooperative when we seek to intervene directly in theirs."

His comments to the 906 new Navy ensigns and a crowd of about 15,000 at the football stadium came on the eve of trips to the Middle East next week and to the Soviet Union later this month.

Nixon did not directly mention Congress or Soviet Jewish emigration. But controversy over the issue has been holding up passage of his proposed trade bill which would give the Soviet Union most-favored-nation treatment.

The bill, which would give the President five-year authority to negotiation new trade agreements with other countries, has been passed in the House. Attached to it was an amendment by Reps. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, that would prevent granting of nondiscriminatory trade treatment to the Soviet Union until it allows free emigration of minorities.

Eighty members of the Senate have endorsed that language but it is still in the Senate Finance Committee.

"Eloquent speeches — appeals — are now being made for the United States, through its foreign policy, to transform the internal as well the international behavior of other countries, especially that of the Soviet Union," Nixon said.

This issue, he said, poses a dilemma in the pursuit of detente.

"It affects not only our relations with the Soviet Union but also our posture toward many nations whose internal systems we totally disagree with, as they do with ours," he declared.

And, Nixon said in tracing "the outline of America's strategy for peace" that "our primary concern in foreign policy must be to help influence the international conduct of nations in the world arena."

The President, accompanied by his wife, was interrupted twice during his speech by applause, once when he warned against isolationism.

Declaring that the threat of a new wave of isolationism "remains today one of the greatest potential dangers facing our country," the President said:

"In our era, American isolation could easily lead to global desolation. Whether we like it or not, the alternative to detente is a runaway nuclear arms race; a return to constant confrontation; and a shattering setback to our hopes for building a new structure of peace in the world."

Nixon Calls Marshall 'Jackass' On Tapes

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — President Nixon refers to the Supreme Court's only black justice, Thurgood Marshall, as a "jackass" in one of the White House tapes that has become controversial because it allegedly contains racial and ethnic epithets, according to sources who have heard the recording.

In the same conversation, the President alludes to "our Jewish friends in the media" and suggests that they have an "in" with certain administration officials, the sources said.

It apparently was these remarks, on a recording of a Feb. 28, 1973, meeting between Nixon and then-White House counsel John W. Dean III, to which Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., of the House Judiciary Committee referred on nationwide television Sunday as "ethnic slurs."

Perjury Charge Consideration Asked

Washington (UPI) — A Senate committee voted Wednesday to ask the Justice Department to consider bringing perjury charges against G. Bradford Cook, a former Securities and Exchange Commission chairman who admitted he lied under oath on five occasions.

(Cook is the son of Lincoln insurance executive George B. Cook.)

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who pressed the issue at the closed meeting of the Appropriations Committee, told a reporter he felt Cook's admission at the trial of John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans was a big factor in their acquittal.

Cook Was Witness

The two former Cabinet members were charged with conspiring to influence, obstruct and impede an SEC proceeding and Cook was a witness for the prosecution.

"If you are a juror and a witness for the government admits from the stand that he lied, and lied and lied again before at least three different agencies, would you tend to believe his testimony?" Proxmire asked.

After the trial ended, jurors cited the lack of credibility of some of the government's witnesses as a factor in the acquittal.

At age 36, Cook, a harddriving attorney, was the youngest man ever to head the SEC. He quit May 16, 1973, after only 10 weeks in the post. He denied any wrongdoing but said he was leaving because if he stayed "somebody would always be saying 'What happened?' "

'That's Correct'

During the Mitchell-Stans trial, Cook answered "that's correct" each time when asked if he had lied to the grand jury on April 19, May 3, May 7 and May 14, 1973. He acknowledged lying before a House commerce subcommittee and Proxmire's appropriations subcommittee, which handles the SEC budget.

He said he told lies to minimize the efforts by Stans to have deleted from a SEC lawsuit against financier Robert L. Vesco a paragraph mentioning a $250,000 cash gift from Vesco to President Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign.

In the lawsuit, the SEC accused Vesco of "looting" a group of mutual funds of $224 million. To avoid trial, Vesco fled the country.

Resolution Held

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said that at his request the perjury resolution was ordered held in abeyance rather than sent directly to the Senate floor.

Brooke said he and Proxmire first would meet, at the request of Cook's attorney, with Cook to hear whether Cook could present any mitigating circumstances. But both senators said no explanation would cause reconsideration of the committee's action.

In a May 9 letter to Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the committee, Proxmire said, "If Mr. Cook can perjure himself before our subcommittee with impunity, no committee or subcommittee of the Congress can be confident it is getting the truth when it takes sworn testimony."

5 Years Possible

General perjury carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $2,000 fine.

According to Proxmire's staff, Cook was asked May 1, 1973, if he had had any contact with any administration figure about the Vesco matter. He replied there had been only one, with Stans, but it occurred after the SEC case had been filed.

Then, with the Vesco affair under grand jury investigation, Cook wrote Proxmire May 4 saying he recalled "several other converations which I had with Mr. Stans, both prior and subsequent to the filing of our law suit."

On May 14, Cook was summoned before a closed subcommittee hearing and put under oath. During a five-hour session, he testified he had had four contacts with Stans. But during the Stans-Mitchell trial, he testified to at least 10 contacts with Stans over Stans' effort to remove reference to Vesco's $250,000 gift.

Land Is Life Of Man

Throughout the history of civilization, possession of land has been an all-consuming force in the affairs of men and nations. Countries have fought more wars over land than any other consideration and individuals have always tended to look for personal security in a piece of land of their own.

Early settlers came west lured by the promise of free land and the railroads tied the nation together on the gift of land from the government. The years have changed nothing in this matter of land as a vital ingredient of man's existence.

In 1973, the value of farm land in Nebraska increased 22 percent, according to figures gathered by a University of Nebraska extension agricultural economist. This, of course, represents some hard economics facts of life but it represents, too, the traditional attraction of land possession.

People look to land as an investment as they do to precious metals or works of art. And then, there is the fundamental driving force of survival, a force that gives one self assurance and confidence through ownership of property.

Becoming more and more of a factor in this situation is the simple growth of the world and of our nation. More and more people continue to populate the earth, which puts a higher and higher premium upon space.

The New York Times recently did a story about what it concluded to be the cloudy future of major suburban shopping center growth for tomorrow. While many factors are involved in that, the matter of adequate space for the support of people is an important consideration.

Thus, we are constantly reminded in this technological age that the ancient value placed upon the land has only been enhanced. With all the great progress that society has made, it is still the land by which we live and the land to which we must look for our ultimate survival.

Not even the mixed economic conditions of agriculture at the moment can dim the appetite of people for simple space upon the earth. It serves as a rather sobering reminder of the stewardship we have of the land and of our close affinity with nature, despite a glittering and fast moving life style.

Good News From California

While Congress and state and local governments generally have handled campaign spending reform as if it were afflicted with leprosy or worse, California voters took the opportunity Tuesday to speak out loud and clear in favor of change.

We think California spoke for much of the nation and politicians across the nation had better take heed.

Proposition Nine, billed as the nation's toughest campaign spending law, found its way on the California ballot by initiative petition. It was backed by the national citizens lobby, Common Cause, and other reformers who saw it as an antidote to the poisons of Watergate-type scandals.

Prop. 9, among other things, significantly limits campaign spending in California elections; limits an incumbent to spending 10% less than a challenger; prohibits lobbyists from contributing to political campaigns and limits lobbyists to spending an almost meaningless $10 per individual per month on entertaining public officeholders.

Such a measure would scarcely stand a chance of passing a state legislature. But California voters — who put the proposition on the ballot themselves — overwhelmingly endorsed it by a margin of 70% to 30%. Support of Prop. 9, moreover, was a key plank in the platform of Edmund Brown Jr., who impressively walloped some well-known opposition to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

The California vote was seen in advance as a test of the impact of Watergate. The results show that the scandals did indeed leave their marks.

People want restraints on campaign spending and on special interest participation in politics and government.

It is hoped that California voters have taken the lead in a movement which will gain nationwide momentum. The boys in the back room should be running scared.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Somehow June sneaked up on me and I wonder where the spring went so hastily. I scarcely had time to catch spring fever. So many things I had planned to do and so many things left yet undone.

I was too late for the early spring sales and too early for the late winter sales. I was void of all ambition when I should have been energetic. I felt like making a garden when it was raining outside. When it was sunny and warm, I felt like going on a picnic or loitering on the front stoop.

Fortunately the seasons never get confused. When it is growing time, plants stretch toward the sky, the sun sways across the vast heaven like a giant pendulum ticking off the exact hours of sunlight while man's relation to the universe keeps pace in secret ways.

Daily, we can see a spurt of growth in the corn plants, while the rows of milo thicken and the soybeans push the dirt aside so they can reach for the sunlight. It is good to have something so stable to rest the weary heart upon after reading headlines of strife and discontent. I know it is not as exciting as jetting across the country or meeting royalty on the Riviera but there are dignity and stateliness in the artistry that a farmer paints when he tills his soil and plants his fields. There is a certain symmetry in the lines and angles he makes as he mows alfalfa and leaves it in windrows to dry.

He takes his colors straight from the palette that nature provides him and gets the light and shadows from the blue firmament. The crystal raindrops provide the proper wash of colors for his canvas.

For several days I hesitated to make a fresh rhubarb pie because the price of sugar has sky-rocketed and it takes a large amount of sugar to make a rhubarb pie. We like a sweet rhubarb pie rather than one of tartness. I did break down and make one. It was very tasty, perhaps even more so because of the price of the sugar that went into it. It was almost like sprinkling gold dust into the pie.

Picturesque portraits I would like to frame for the keeping:

A little girl in a park, delicate as a water fairy, playing in a fountain.

Amber beams of sunlight that fall aslant through our swaying maple tree.

Paul's Scarlet rose climbing the trellis of our house, blooming its way to heaven.

The fields of wheat, tall and green — fertile with heads of grain filling for a golden harvest.

The bit of blue sky resting on the housetops of our town.

The green-sweet meadowland where cattle graze peacefully and a stream flows quietly.

The dawning wonder in a wee baby's face when it opens its eyes for a moment, yawns and stretches, then goes back to sleep.

The all-encircling ripples that pattern an enlarging circle of waves just by dropping a pebble into a quiet pool.

Evening shadows falling like spilled wine across my kitchen floor when day is done.

Young robins with speckled breasts hopping about the yard, learning the art of looking for worms and feeding themselves.

The Farmer, having learned the art of feeding himself, coming in the kitchen door at noontime, looking for a table laden with hearty fare.

Half A Loaf Is Better

PARIS — It is hard to realize that 30 years have already gone by since history's largest armada landed an allied army in Normandy, breaching the defenses of Hitler's Fortress Europe and launching what General Eisenhower called "the great crusade toward which we have striven these many months."

Many of the dreams accompanying the primarily U.S.-British detachments over steep hedgerows and through green pastures have long since vanished. More than half the populations of most lands involved have been born since that famous June 6 known as D-Day.

Only a few of the leading generals who took part are still alive: that great field commander, Omar Bradley; Bernard (Lord) Montgomery, alone with his memories in Hampshire; and Hans Speidel, German Marshal Rommel's chief of staff, now retired in the Rhineland, having lived on to command French, British, American troops himself on behalf of NATO.

It is difficult to recall how the whole rich soil of Normandy was churned up and its towns torn apart when today regarding that same placid area with its rebuilt monuments and cities, its green-clad ruins, its chomping cows and purling trout streams, menaced not by war but by pollution. But, with all Europe, it has changed.

The soil itself is not different but scientific and political explosions since World War II have left a far greater mark than the military explosion which brought the conflict to an end. Few of the statesmen who arranged for Europe's 1944 liberation would recognize the continent today.

Four great overseas empires — British, French, Dutch and Belgian — have broken up since Eisenhower launched his "crusade." The only significant agglomeration remaining, Portugal's, is in the process of decomposing. And the ranking of nations by strength and influence has entirely altered.

Today there is no such thing as a great power. There are superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union; and there are lesser forces, not easily measured in a statistical sense, like the inchoate European community, a newly dynamic China and burgeoning Japan. Despite Churchill's efforts to cling to British grandness and those of De Gaulle to revive French grandeur, their attempts were evanescent.

The old order of pomp and precedence has shifted. Dozens of new (or recreated) countries are playing an ever-increasing part in world affairs: India, Indonesia, Zaire, Nigeria. The United Nations itself has already outlived its predecessor, the League of Nations, deformed and crippled at birth by America's failure to participate.

The saddest and most dangerous result of the situation brought about by D-Day and its consequent drive toward westward-advancing Soviet troops was creation of an age of partition which, in its wake, has produced political schizophrenia.

Before World War II only Ireland, that tortured land, was politically split. But since Hitler's "Thousand-Year-Reich" and the Japanese warlords' "Greater East Asia Coprosperity Sphere" crumpled, the following units have been torn apart:

India, which now comprises three states (including Pakistan and Bangladesh); Vietnam and Korea (divided into north and south), Germany (walled and fenced into ideological fractions); and Palestine (an administrative area mandated to Britain by the League of Nations), now split among Israel and its Arab neighbors.

The greatest sundering is, however, not national but continental. Europe is riven in two parts according to political philosophy. The communist east, bound to the Soviet Union by military and economic ties (with the wavering exceptions of Yugoslavia and Albania) has yet to arrange a formal modus vivendi with what is left of the largely democratic west, reliant on the United States.

Few men 30 years ago were far-sighted enough to perceive that where the allied armies would meet along a zigzag line from the Baltic to the Adriatic, they would be establishing durable political zones.

Churchill, indeed, was aware of this possibility as were the French and the Poles. But Roosevelt, with his American traditions of confederal continents, prevailed because of his overweening military might.

The world recognizes war is now genuinely too dangerous to contemplate and therefore, at last, is getting down to the job of sealing a formal peace on events begun three decades ago. That is the aim of the Geneva conference on European security. The seal is not to be placed on a united world as conceived in U.N.'s very title. Europe accepts division now that the two superpowers reluctantly conclude that better is half a loaf than no bread.

Nixonomics Squeezing Middle

Lincoln, Neb.

As I see it there is apparently one doctrine in the United States which a majority of the American citizens are being conditioned to follow.

That is, the doctrine of squeeze out the middle man, or middle class America. The people of this country have yet to realize it, but continually we are being led down the path of either increasing our status socially and economically or falling into the characterization of lower class citizens.

This situation is manifesting itself economically. Either bring ourselves up or fall into the category of lower income families.

At the present rate of higher prices, and at the rate of their projected increases, a majority of middle class and/or middle income Americans are going to face a rough and rocky road ahead, with no guarantees of safe passage.

Why do welfare benefits fail against inflation for the poor and the tax loopholes remain open for the rich, while the middle income man is squeezed to the limit to provide for his family?

I believe that this is the Nixon doctrine of American economics, a two-class society, upper and lower. As all Americans can see, his shady involvements with the milk industry, I.T.T. and other big industries across America point up his importance to big business and the reasons he believes he must stay in office.

When will the people realize that the problem facing our present economic situation is the same problem facing the House Judiciary Committee?

It is a serious and fateful decision (the impeachment of a president), but it is a necessary evil in democracy and an act which Congress should pursue with all possible dispatch.

The present state of the economy is far more important than Richard Nixon. Realize that the only way to bring about control of the economy again is to get rid of the buddy of big business.

As rotten as a few say it sounds, it still rings true: "Nixon must go!"

THOMAS I. HASTIE

Help For Elderly Inadequate

Lincoln, Neb.

I wish that the low-income taxpayer who wrote to The Star on May 30 would take a better look at our "giveaway" programs for the elderly. He makes it sound as if many elderly people are cheating in order to qualify for the low-income housing.

There probably are a few abuses in this program just like the others, but people can always take a few cases that confirm their prejudices and generalize from these.

The programs for the elderly are not at all what they should be. We expect the elderly to live on the small amount they get from Social Security, yet they are not allowed to make more than $175 a month to supplement it

Many elderly people could not make it without this low-income housing. I, too, am a low-income taxpayer, but I support the low-cost federal-housing for the elderly.

Lincoln A Police State?

Lincoln, Neb.

I am writing in tribute to the smartness of a Lincoln police officer, a smartness very unbecoming to an officer.

We were downtown in Lincoln one night recently and while we were unlocking our car a police car stopped and a cop yelled at my husband, "You're kinda drunk there, mister." Then he asked, "Have you been drinking?" My husband answered, "No."

I really don't know what his plans were for booking us, but I suppose he had something in mind. I wish we would have seen the cop car number as I would like to know who this smart boy was. I have always been a civic-minded, law-abiding citizen, but this makes one wonder about our good community.

When downtown, one feels as though he were in Moscow, Russia, instead of good, old Lincoln, Nebraska.

We have a high crime rate in the city of Lincoln which should keep the little boys busy, leaving them no time to insult people while entering their cars.

Former 'Hatchetman': Contrite Or Calculating?

WASHINGTON — When Sen. Harold Hughes came back from Iowa last Sunday night at 9:15, he had an urgent telephone call to go immediately to the home of Charles W. Colson. Their prayer group was in emergency session

The four men were working and praying towards the formulation of the statement that Colson would make in court on Monday morning when he made his startling plea of guilty to one count of obstruction of justice.

To the stunned onlookers in the courtroom, Colson's plea stirred the skepticism and suspicion that has attended every action of Richard Nixon's former hatchetman in and out of the White House. To Hughes and his brothers in Christ, it was a culmination of a process that began with Colson's conversion last December

"It was an emotional session," says Hughes, who is quitting the Senate to devote his life to religious lay work. "There were tears shed. Here is a man who faces prison and disbarment."

CHARLES W. COLSON

Legally, Colson has been "hunkered down" to fight the conspiracy charges leveled against him in the Plumbers' case. It was the view of his prayer group that he might have beaten them, and Watergate cover-up charges as well, in court. But for the last two weeks, he has been seeking a way to plead guilty to charges of which he is guilty in a way that would leave him free to tell the whole truth about Watergate.

Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., who is a member of the Colson prayer group, was away for the climactic Sunday night meeting. But he was consulted by telephone at midnight when he returned from a speaking engagement in Gettysburg. He concurred.

"People have asked through the months why Chuck just didn't speak up and tell the truth," Hughes explains. "But he couldn't. He had come under indictment. He was restricted by the court and the grand jury was sitting. But he would not plead guilty to what he had not done. Now after he has been sentenced, he will be free to tell everything."

To Hughes, Quie, and the two other members, Douglas Coe, a religious lay worker and former Texas Congressman Graham Purcell, all of whom doubted his conversion at the outset, Colson's confession represents a triumph of the spirit. The rest of the country, however, is asking what will it mean to Richard Nixon?

In the courtroom, where he was apprised by Colson's lawyer David Shapiro, a minute and a half before it actually happened, James D. St. Clair, the President's counsel, looked stunned.

Hughes, like the other members of the prayer group, who have examined their brother Colson's problem from the moral, legal, and technical aspect does not know what Colson will say when he is finally free to speak after sentencing on June 21.

"He is not out to nail anyone's hide to the barn door," says Hughes, "but he is going to tell the truth. If the chips fall in someone's backyard, that is tough, whether it is the President's or someone else's. I think it could make a difference to all of us."

To Purcell, six-term congressman with experience on the state's bench, Colson's action is an act of conscience beyond quarrel.

"We understood that the prosecutors were anxious to get him to plead guilty and didn't care what to" he said. "They offered him several misdemeanor charges, but he refused them, because he was not guilty of them." When they finally found a remote statute — seeking "to disseminate derogatory information about a man under indictment," he accepted it, although it was a felony and not a misdemeanor.

Skeptics saw Colson hoodwinking his opposition once again — it was his specialty in the White House — and calculated the deal was struck through the prosecutor's anxiety to add to its score of White House felons brought to book and Colson's eagerness to be free of the cover-up charges. But the consensus in the prayer group, which is shared by courthouse gossips, is that the case against Colson in both Plumbers and Watergate was on the weak side.

If he had chosen to stand trial, he might have gone free, his brothers counseled him, but Colson wanted, in Hughes's words, to "help in the cleansing process of the nation, to testify for the country and for Jesus Christ."

While Colson, erect and low-voiced, was making his extraordinary plea, the other members of his prayer group were at their usual Monday breakfast meeting praying that Judge Gesell would accept it. He did.

Quie says, "I have never quizzed him to find out what he knows. But from my reading of the transcript I would expect he would know a great deal."

Colson told his brothers he hoped to set an example for other defendants, "who might follow a similar course."

Quie says, "I just wish President Nixon would tell everything. There is a great peace that comes over people when they do. I wish the President could experience that."

Whether the consequences of his unexpected actions are strictly in the spiritual realm or will be of a political magnitude unparalleled in Watergate history will not be known until after his sentencing.

Purcell and the others think that the former bad boy in the White House may have set the country in a "new direction."

To Richard Nixon, Colson's change of heart may be the worst thing that has happened since John Dean told everything he knew to a Senate committee. Says Coe, "this morning made it all worthwhile."

Land Is Life Of Man

Throughout the history of civilization, possession of land has been an all-consuming force in the affairs of men and nations. Countries have fought more wars over land than any other consideration and individuals have always tended to look for personal security in a piece of land of their own.

Early settlers came west lured by the promise of free land and the railroads tied the nation together on the gift of land from the government. The years have changed nothing in this matter of land as a vital ingredient of man's existence.

In 1973, the value of farm land in Nebraska increased 22 percent, according to figures gathered by a University of Nebraska extension agricultural economist. This, of course, represents some hard economics facts of life but it represents, too, the traditional attraction of land possession.

People look to land as an investment as they do to precious metals or works of art. And then, there is the fundamental driving force of survival, a force that gives one self assurance and confidence through ownership of property.

Becoming more and more of a factor in this situation is the simple growth of the world and of our nation. More and more people continue to populate the earth, which puts a higher and higher premium upon space.

The New York Times recently did a story about what it concluded to be the cloudy future of major suburban shopping center growth for tomorrow. While many factors are involved in that, the matter of adequate space for the support of people is an important consideration.

Thus, we are constantly reminded in this technological age that the ancient value placed upon the land has only been enhanced. With all the great progress that society has made, it is still the land by which we live and the land to which we must look for our ultimate survival.

Not even the mixed economic conditions of agriculture at the moment can dim the appetite of people for simple space upon the earth. It serves as a rather sobering reminder of the stewardship we have of the land and of our close affinity with nature, despite a glittering and fast moving life style.

Good News From California

While Congress and state and local governments generally have handled campaign spending reform as if it were afflicted with leprosy or worse, California voters took the opportunity Tuesday to speak out loud and clear in favor of change.

We think California spoke for much of the nation and politicians across the nation had better take heed.

Proposition Nine, billed as the nation's toughest campaign spending law, found its way on the California ballot by initiative petition. It was backed by the national citizens lobby, Common Cause, and other reformers who saw it as an antidote to the poisons of Watergate-type scandals.

Prop. 9, among other things, significantly limits campaign spending in California elections; limits an incumbent to spending 10% less than a challenger; prohibits lobbyists from contributing to political campaigns and limits lobbyists to spending an almost meaningless $10 per individual per month on entertaining public officeholders.

Such a measure would scarcely stand a chance of passing a state legislature. But California voters — who put the proposition on the ballot themselves — overwhelmingly endorsed it by a margin of 70% to 30%. Support of Prop. 9, moreover, was a key plank in the platform of Edmund Brown Jr., who impressively walloped some well-known opposition to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

The California vote was seen in advance as a test of the impact of Watergate. The results show that the scandals did indeed leave their marks.

People want restraints on campaign spending and on special interest participation in politics and government.

It is hoped that California voters have taken the lead in a movement which will gain nationwide momentum. The boys in the back room should be running scared.

Patchwork Prairie Country

Somehow June sneaked up on me and I wonder where the spring went so hastily. I scarcely had time to catch spring fever. So many things I had planned to do and so many things left yet undone.

I was too late for the early spring sales and too early for the late winter sales. I was void of all ambition when I should have been energetic. I felt like making a garden when it was raining outside. When it was sunny and warm, I felt like going on a picnic or loitering on the front stoop.

Fortunately the seasons never get confused. When it is growing time, plants stretch toward the sky, the sun sways across the vast heaven like a giant pendulum ticking off the exact hours of sunlight while man's relation to the universe keeps pace in secret ways.

Daily, we can see a spurt of growth in the corn plants, while the rows of milo thicken and the soybeans push the dirt aside so they can reach for the sunlight. It is good to have something so stable to rest the weary heart upon after reading headlines of strife and discontent. I know it is not as exciting as jetting across the country or meeting royalty on the Riviera but there are dignity and stateliness in the artistry that a farmer paints when he tills his soil and plants his fields. There is a certain symmetry in the lines and angles he makes as he mows alfalfa and leaves it in windrows to dry.

He takes his colors straight from the palette that nature provides him and gets the light and shadows from the blue firmament. The crystal raindrops provide the proper wash of colors for his canvas.

For several days I hesitated to make a fresh rhubarb pie because the price of sugar has sky-rocketed and it takes a large amount of sugar to make a rhubarb pie. We like a sweet rhubarb pie rather than one of tartness. I did break down and make one. It was very tasty, perhaps even more so because of the price of the sugar that went into it. It was almost like sprinkling gold dust into the pie.

Picturesque portraits I would like to frame for the keeping:

A little girl in a park, delicate as a water fairy, playing in a fountain.

Amber beams of sunlight that fall aslant through our swaying maple tree.

Paul's Scarlet rose climbing the trellis of our house, blooming its way to heaven.

The fields of wheat, tall and green — fertile with heads of grain filling for a golden harvest.

The bit of blue sky resting on the housetops of our town.

The green-sweet meadowland where cattle graze peacefully and a stream flows quietly.

The dawning wonder in a wee baby's face when it opens its eyes for a moment, yawns and stretches, then goes back to sleep.

The all-encircling ripples that pattern an enlarging circle of waves just by dropping a pebble into a quiet pool.

Evening shadows falling like spilled wine across my kitchen floor when day is done.

Young robins with speckled breasts hopping about the yard, learning the art of looking for worms and feeding themselves.

The Farmer, having learned the art of feeding himself, coming in the kitchen door at noontime, looking for a table laden with hearty fare.

Half A Loaf Is Better

PARIS — It is hard to realize that 30 years have already gone by since history's largest armada landed an allied army in Normandy, breaching the defenses of Hitler's Fortress Europe and launching what General Eisenhower called "the great crusade toward which we have striven these many months."

Many of the dreams accompanying the primarily U.S.-British detachments over steep hedgerows and through green pastures have long since vanished. More than half the populations of most lands involved have been born since that famous June 6 known as D-Day.

Only a few of the leading generals who took part are still alive: that great field commander, Omar Bradley; Bernard (Lord) Montgomery, alone with his memories in Hampshire; and Hans Speidel, German Marshal Rommel's chief of staff, now retired in the Rhineland, having lived on to command French, British, American troops himself on behalf of NATO.

It is difficult to recall how the whole rich soil of Normandy was churned up and its towns torn apart when today regarding that same placid area with its rebuilt monuments and cities, its green-clad ruins, its chomping cows and purling trout streams, menaced not by war but by pollution. But, with all Europe, it has changed.

The soil itself is not different but scientific and political explosions since World War II have left a far greater mark than the military explosion which brought the conflict to an end. Few of the statesmen who arranged for Europe's 1944 liberation would recognize the continent today.

Four great overseas empires — British, French, Dutch and Belgian — have broken up since Eisenhower launched his "crusade." The only significant agglomeration remaining, Portugal's, is in the process of decomposing. And the ranking of nations by strength and influence has entirely altered.

Today there is no such thing as a great power. There are superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union; and there are lesser forces, not easily measured in a statistical sense, like the inchoate European community, a newly dynamic China and burgeoning Japan. Despite Churchill's efforts to cling to British grandness and those of De Gaulle to revive French grandeur, their attempts were evanescent.

The old order of pomp and precedence has shifted. Dozens of new (or recreated) countries are playing an ever-increasing part in world affairs: India, Indonesia, Zaire, Nigeria. The United Nations itself has already outlived its predecessor, the League of Nations, deformed and crippled at birth by America's failure to participate.

The saddest and most dangerous result of the situation brought about by D-Day and its consequent drive toward westward-advancing Soviet troops was creation of an age of partition which, in its wake, has produced political schizophrenia.

Before World War II only Ireland, that tortured land, was politically split. But since Hitler's "Thousand-Year-Reich" and the Japanese warlords' "Greater East Asia Coprosperity Sphere" crumpled, the following units have been torn apart:

India, which now comprises three states (including Pakistan and Bangladesh); Vietnam and Korea (divided into north and south), Germany (walled and fenced into ideological fractions); and Palestine (an administrative area mandated to Britain by the League of Nations), now split among Israel and its Arab neighbors.

The greatest sundering is, however, not national but continental. Europe is riven in two parts according to political philosophy. The communist east, bound to the Soviet Union by military and economic ties (with the wavering exceptions of Yugoslavia and Albania) has yet to arrange a formal modus vivendi with what is left of the largely democratic west, reliant on the United States.

Few men 30 years ago were far-sighted enough to perceive that where the allied armies would meet along a zigzag line from the Baltic to the Adriatic, they would be establishing durable political zones.

Churchill, indeed, was aware of this possibility as were the French and the Poles. But Roosevelt, with his American traditions of confederal continents, prevailed because of his overweening military might.

The world recognizes war is now genuinely too dangerous to contemplate and therefore, at last, is getting down to the job of sealing a formal peace on events begun three decades ago. That is the aim of the Geneva conference on European security. The seal is not to be placed on a united world as conceived in U.N.'s very title. Europe accepts division now that the two superpowers reluctantly conclude that better is half a loaf than no bread.

Nixonomics Squeezing Middle

Lincoln, Neb.

As I see it there is apparently one doctrine in the United States which a majority of the American citizens are being conditioned to follow.

That is, the doctrine of squeeze out the middle man, or middle class America. The people of this country have yet to realize it, but continually we are being led down the path of either increasing our status socially and economically or falling into the characterization of lower class citizens.

This situation is manifesting itself economically. Either bring ourselves up or fall into the category of lower income families.

At the present rate of higher prices, and at the rate of their projected increases, a majority of middle class and/or middle income Americans are going to face a rough and rocky road ahead, with no guarantees of safe passage.

Why do welfare benefits fail against inflation for the poor and the tax loopholes remain open for the rich, while the middle income man is squeezed to the limit to provide for his family?

I believe that this is the Nixon doctrine of American economics, a two-class society, upper and lower. As all Americans can see, his shady involvements with the milk industry, I.T.T. and other big industries across America point up his importance to big business and the reasons he believes he must stay in office.

When will the people realize that the problem facing our present economic situation is the same problem facing the House Judiciary Committee?

It is a serious and fateful decision (the impeachment of a president), but it is a necessary evil in democracy and an act which Congress should pursue with all possible dispatch.

The present state of the economy is far more important than Richard Nixon. Realize that the only way to bring about control of the economy again is to get rid of the buddy of big business.

As rotten as a few say it sounds, it still rings true: "Nixon must go!"

Life Begins At Forty:

New Hat Winds Up On Casket

By ROBERT PETERSON

Most of us take death very seriously, and can't imagine the rituals surrounding the demise of a loved one as offering any possible sources of humor. But sometimes humorous things happen.

"Some years ago, six of us women were asked to be honorary pallbearers at the funeral of a friend, writes Mrs. Katherine Roberts of Mooresville, Ind. "I put on a conservative dress, but at the last minute decided to wear a new hat covered with flowers that all my friends had admired.

"At the church I found I was the only one with a hat, so I took it off and laid it on a bench in the vestibule. Then I walked to the front of the church and sat down with the other ladies.

"When the undertaker pushed the casket slowly down the aisle toward the chancel, there was my hat. An attendant had seen it on the bench as he went by and thought it was a flower arrangement intended for the casket.

"Despite the solemnity of the occasion, we women could hardly contain ourselves all during the service as we sat looking at my hat. Yes, I got it back but I never wore it again."

Lapland follows an unusual system of caring for elders who become unable to work and are without family and money. Such a person simply goes to the local "board of elders" and states he's too old and infirm to work, according to anthropologist Dr. Leo Simmons.

"If things are as he says, the board authorizes the individual to start spending six days on every farm in the area. Each farm family is obligated to take the old person as a guest for six days, then he moves on to another family. When he's visited everyone in the community he starts all over again. "Surprisingly, the farmers who take him in treat him as an important visitor and give him better food and attention than other members of the family. They feel it would be a disgrace if the report should spread that Farmer So-and-so was hardhearted to the poor and aged. As a result, older people without means are exceptionally well treated."

This Lap system of welfare is indeed novel. It doesn't cost the government any money and it only works because of a long tradition and the fact that the Laps constitute a small, communal group devoted to helping one another. Despite the generous natures of most Americans, it would likely take a considerable change in attitude to interest the average American in opening his home to the indigent aged.

Free And Open Rental Market Urged To Alleviate Freight Car Shortages

Freight car shortages can be alleviated by a free and open rental market.

That's what Dr. John R. Felton, professor of economics and agricultural economics, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, proposed in a recent statement on transporation problems before a subcommittee of the small business committee of the U.S. House of Representatives.

In an interview Felton said that in place of the existing system of fixed and inflexible rental rates for freight cars, cars should be offered for a freely fluctuating rental rate so that they would go to the highest bidder.

This open market, he contends, "will achieve efficient utilization and promote a fleet of satisfactory size."

He pointed out that the present system which allows empty cars to go back to the owner and not to the point of greatest need just "runs up empty mileage at the same time when there may be serious car shortages elsewhere."

Felton also says that if abandonment of low-use feeder and branch lines is combined with a reorganization of the transportation system, particularly unit train shipments for the movement of bulk agricultural commodities, farmers would be "better off."

On trucking, Felton contends that the 55 mph speed limit reduction has a "differentially adverse affect in Nebraska in comparison with some of the more densely populated states."

The economics professor also made known to the subcommittee his feeling that there should be greater freedom of entering into the trucking industry.

His concern is for a reduction in Interstate Commerce Commission's imposed restrictions on commodities, the points truckers serve and the routes they might take to reach these points. Such restrictions, he says, result in loss of efficiency and higher operating costs.

Schools Urged On Finance Reporting Laws

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Wednesday political parties should hold schools to teach candidates how to comply with the state's new campaign finance reporting laws.

Beermann said most of the candidates in the primary election made a good effort to comply with the law, but some filed their reports late and others did not understand the forms.

Beermann said he did not believe the law made much difference in the amounts or numbers of political contributions.

Any candidate who has not completed his campaign reports by Monday will not receive a certificate of nomination, Beermann said.

Schools Urged On Finance Reporting Laws

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Wednesday political parties should hold schools to teach candidates how to comply with the state's new campaign finance reporting laws.

Beermann said most of the candidates in the primary election made a good effort to comply with the law, but some filed their reports late and others did not understand the forms.

Beermann said he did not believe the law made much difference in the amounts or numbers of political contributions.

Any candidate who has not completed his campaign reports by Monday will not receive a certificate of nomination, Beermann said.

Funds Asked For Day Care Centers For Elderly

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

Nebraska has asked the federal government for $166,000 to pay for an experimental senior citizen day care center program, it was learned Wednesday

Joseph Gaida, director of the State Commission on Aging, told United Press International he should know the fate of that money request by the end of June

If the full amount is granted, Gaida said the experimental program calls for establishment of four centers — two metropolitan and two non-metropolitan.

He said that would include Lincoln and Omaha and possible Norfolk and North Platte

If the concept proves out, Gaida said it would be added to the list of services being made available through the statewide network of area agencies on aging which provide, in general, services designed to help the elderly stay out of institutions.

Based in part on the concept of day care centers for the young, Gaida said the program would provide care for the elderly so other members of the family could go to work.

However, he said, "These centers would provide more than just 'babysitting' services."

Included would be recreational opportunities as well as physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech therapy, Gaida said.

Also in the works is a request for $66,000 in federal money to provide a retirement education program in the state, which would be offered in cooperation with colleges and local school districts.

Gaida said there appears to be a "definite need in Lincoln and Omaha" for such a program and if the money is granted the idea would be tried out there and hopefully in two rural settings as well.

Gaida said the proposal is based on the idea that for the young there are numerous training and education programs available to get them started.

But when it comes to the senior citizen, particularly those just starting their years of retirement, "no one has bothered to give them one day of education or training," he said.

If that program becomes reality, Gaida said the information gained from initial efforts would be used to put together program guidelines that could be applied anywhere in the state by school districts and institutions of higher learning.

Low Voter Turnout Trend Seen

By The Associated Press

Preliminary vote totals from Nebraska's May 14 primary show the electorate followed a national trend of low voter turnout, Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Wednesday.

The State Canvass Board will meet next Monday to certify the results of the primary balloting

Beermann said 334,156 of the state's 800,000 registered voters cast ballots in the primary.

Beermann had predicted a turnout of 410,000 voters.

Recent special and primary elections in Missouri and Louisianna drew comparatively few voters, Beermann noted. And initial figures from Tuesday's primary balloting in Iowa indicated only about 15% of those registered voted.

Beermann noted a recount is underway in 40 counties of the 3rd Congressional District

In that district's Republican race for nomination to the House Mayor Don Blank of McCook trailed Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell by only some 80 votes.

Beermann said he expected the recount to be complete by Monday, when the canvass board meets.

A breakdown of figures showed Republicans cast 178,081 votes, representing about 45% of Nebraska's 394,213 registered GOP voters.

Democrats cast 150,926 ballots, representing about 42% of the party's 363,160 registered voters

Independents recorded the lowest percentage turnout, with 5,149 of 36,839 casting ballots, those figures represent about 14% of the independents, who were permitted to vote only for nonpartisan offices in the primary

Poll Says Ford's Rating Improving

By LOUIS HARRIS

Louis Harris

6-Point Gain Seen

Vice President Gerald Ford receives a 43-32% positive rating from the American people on the way he is handling his job. This latest result is an improvement of six points in the positive column for the vice president since March, but is still well below the 57% who thought he would do a "good to excellent" job when he was named last year.

Ford has been touring the country almost non-stop since he replaced Spiro Agnew, rallying Republicans for the 1974 campaign. He has been walking the tightrope of trying to demonstrate his loyalty to President Nixon while at the same time trying not to be tarred by the Watergate brush. These latest findings of the Harris Survey indicate he has managed to carry off this balancing act with some success as far as the American people are concerned.

The bedrock appeal of Ford can be found in the 67-6% who feel "he is a man of high integrity." In contrast, by 50-40%, Americans do not feel they can say the same about Richard Nixon.

In fact, an impressive 58% of the public agree with the statement that "Vice President Ford seems to be trying to be independent and to be 'his own man,' which is good." A 43-34% plurality, however, is critical of him, endorsing the view that "he is too much an apologist for President Nixon on Watergate."

A 48-27% plurality feels that Ford "would be qualified" to take over "if President Nixon were impeached and removed from office." In fact, by 49-34%, the public says it would "respect President Nixon more if he resigned from the office of President to allow Vice President Gerald Ford to take over as president in an act of national unity." This sentiment has grown since March, when a narrow 42-39% plurality felt that way.

In May, a nationwide cross section of the public 18 years of age and over was interviewed in person and was asked:

"How would you rate the job Vice President Ford is doing — excellent, pretty good, only fair, or poor?"

FORD JOB RATING

	May '74 %	March '74 %	Nov. '73 %
Good-excellent (positive)	43	37	57
Only fair-poor (negative)	32	32	22
Not sure	25	31	21

When asked why they rated him the way they did, respondents volunteered three main attributes about the Vice President. First and foremost, there is a sigh of relief that he has "stayed out of trouble." As a 35-year-old lawyer in Saginaw, Mich., put it, "Well, he's an honest man. I'm sure of that. And that's saying a lot for a man who is serving as President or Vice President these days."

Another source of credit for Ford is a feeling that he is "trying hard and doing quite well," given "the tough times in which he has come into office." As a housewife in Stamford, Conn., put it, "I sympathize with him because he can't bite the Nixon hand that put him there, but at the same time, he'd lose all public support if he just went out to whitewash everything Nixon has done."

Finally, people seem to sense that the vice president has not burned his bridges with Congress, where he spent 25 years, as many think President Nixon has done. A dentist in Akron, Ohio, said, "Any president has to have the cooperation of Congress to get things done. I think Ford knows this and has been very careful to keep his old ties there. He's a smart politician in a good way."

Basically, Gerald Ford is doing quite well with public opinion at a time when his immediate superior, President Nixon, has been in deep trouble over Watergate. The public wants to give its new Vice President the benefit of the doubt, for, increasingly, people are beginning to feel that he might very well be the occupant of the White House well before 1976.

Ford's Personal Profile Compiled

In order to test some of the most controversial aspects of the vice president's personal profile, the public was asked by the Harris Survey:

"Let me read you some statements that have been made about Vice President Ford. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree."

	Agree %	Disagree %	Not Sure %
Positive Statements
He is a man of high integrity	67	6	27
He seems to be trying to be independent and to be 'his own man,' which is good	58	19	23
He is gaining much experience which will help him if he has to take over as president	63	16	21
Negative Statements
He is too much an apologist for President Nixon on Watergate.	43	34	23
He is going around the country so fast, it looks as though he is running for the office of President right now.	36	35	29
He does not seem to be very smart about the issues the country is facing.	26	36	38

Poll Says Ford's Rating Improving

By LOUIS HARRIS

Louis Harris

6-Point Gain Seen

Vice President Gerald Ford receives a 43-32% positive rating from the American people on the way he is handling his job. This latest result is an improvement of six points in the positive column for the vice president since March, but is still well below the 57% who thought he would do a "good to excellent" job when he was named last year.

Ford has been touring the country almost non-stop since he replaced Spiro Agnew, rallying Republicans for the 1974 campaign. He has been walking the tightrope of trying to demonstrate his loyalty to President Nixon while at the same time trying not to be tarred by the Watergate brush. These latest findings of the Harris Survey indicate he has managed to carry off this balancing act with some success as far as the American people are concerned.

The bedrock appeal of Ford can be found in the 67-6% who feel "he is a man of high integrity." In contrast, by 50-40%, Americans do not feel they can say the same about Richard Nixon.

In fact, an impressive 58% of the public agree with the statement that "Vice President Ford seems to be trying to be independent and to be 'his own man,' which is good." A 43-34% plurality, however, is critical of him, endorsing the view that "he is too much an apologist for President Nixon on Watergate."

A 48-27% plurality feels that Ford "would be qualified" to take over "if President Nixon were impeached and removed from office." In fact, by 49-34%, the public says it would "respect President Nixon more if he resigned from the office of President to allow Vice President Gerald Ford to take over as president in an act of national unity." This sentiment has grown since March, when a narrow 42-39% plurality felt that way.

In May, a nationwide cross section of the public 18 years of age and over was interviewed in person and was asked:

"How would you rate the job Vice President Ford is doing — excellent, pretty good, only fair, or poor?"

FORD JOB RATING

	May '74 %	March '74 %	Nov. '73 %
Good-excellent (positive)	43	37	57
Only fair-poor (negative)	32	32	22
Not sure	25	31	21

When asked why they rated him the way they did, respondents volunteered three main attributes about the Vice President. First and foremost, there is a sigh of relief that he has "stayed out of trouble." As a 35-year-old lawyer in Saginaw, Mich., put it, "Well, he's an honest man. I'm sure of that. And that's saying a lot for a man who is serving as President or Vice President these days."

Another source of credit for Ford is a feeling that he is "trying hard and doing quite well," given "the tough times in which he has come into office." As a housewife in Stamford, Conn., put it, "I sympathize with him because he can't bite the Nixon hand that put him there, but at the same time, he'd lose all public support if he just went out to whitewash everything Nixon has done."

Finally, people seem to sense that the vice president has not burned his bridges with Congress, where he spent 25 years, as many think President Nixon has done. A dentist in Akron, Ohio, said, "Any president has to have the cooperation of Congress to get things done. I think Ford knows this and has been very careful to keep his old ties there. He's a smart politician in a good way."

Basically, Gerald Ford is doing quite well with public opinion at a time when his immediate superior, President Nixon, has been in deep trouble over Watergate. The public wants to give its new Vice President the benefit of the doubt, for, increasingly, people are beginning to feel that he might very well be the occupant of the White House well before 1976.

Ford's Personal Profile Compiled

In order to test some of the most controversial aspects of the vice president's personal profile, the public was asked by the Harris Survey:

"Let me read you some statements that have been made about Vice President Ford. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree."

	Agree %	Disagree %	Not Sure %
Positive Statements
He is a man of high integrity	67	6	27
He seems to be trying to be independent and to be 'his own man,' which is good	58	19	23
He is gaining much experience which will help him if he has to take over as president	63	16	21
Negative Statements
He is too much an apologist for President Nixon on Watergate.	43	34	23
He is going around the country so fast, it looks as though he is running for the office of President right now.	36	35	29
He does not seem to be very smart about the issues the country is facing.	26	36	38

Crete-Kansas Expressway Draws Farmers' Criticism

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Opinions ranging from "put it anywhere" to "scrap the whole idea" were presented at an informational meeting Wednesday night at the Cortland Community Center on a proposed four-lane expressway running from the Crete corner to the Kansas border

Department of Roads officials said the meeting was called by Gov. J. James Exon after he received a number of letters expressing concern over the proposed corridor.

Follows U.S. 77

The corridor approved by the Highway Commission after a public hearing in Beatrice July 31, 1973 generally follows the existing U.S. 77, bypassing Cortland and Princeton.

Area farmers told officials that many farms are already split up by the railroad tracks and U.S. 77 and the expressway would only complicate their problems.

Ronald Boesiger, representing a group of farmers, presented the group an alternate route which would basically run along the county road west of U.S. 77.

Disadvantages

Boesiger said the present proposal splits up too many farms, cuts through prime farm land, runs over present and planned irrigation systems and destroys one farmstead completely.

Another farmer, Ray Larkins, said that part of the proposed expressway runs through flood areas where in the past he has seen floods "move the railroad 600 yards into my field."

Beatrice Mayor Bob Sargent urged the department to follow existing roads wherever possible. He said that business has been up in the southeast part of the state and most of that was due to the farmers.

Business Loss

He said that if farms are cut up too much by the expressway business will drop.

While many of the group felt the Department of Roads should take its time and maybe not put the expressway through at all, others wanted the plan speeded up and expanded.

Ed Vance of Odell said that instead of cutting the expressway back to two lanes at the south end, four-lane construction should go all the way to the Kansas border.

He said the state in the future will want to meet similar construction in Kansas and to stop short of the border would be "false economy."

Speed Urged

Robert Bagby of the Beatrice Chamber of Commerce told the group the process ought to proceed swiftly and no further corridor studies be made.

He said that if another study were made the state would lose its place on the Federal Highway Administration calendar and the project would be delayed for several years.

Fire Code Prompts Remodeling

Remodeling that may cost anywhere from $150,000 to $400,000 has begun on dormitory and fraternity and sorority houses on Lincoln's three college campuses to bring them into compliance with revised fire codes.

Fire Inspector Michael Durst said the changes are necessitated by a change in city ordinances which places religious and fraternal organizations, previously exempt, under the code.

About 55 structures on Union College, Nebraska Wesleyan University and University of Nebraska — Lincoln campuses are affected, Durst said. Organizations may have to spend anywhere from several hundred to as much as $8,000 per structure to make the improvements, he added.

Durst said most of the structures need fire escapes that reach the ground and doors to separate floors in stairwells.

Most of the structures, he said, will have to add stove hoods and extinguishing systems in kitchens.

He also said that only one-fourth to one-third of the structures have alarm systems.

Organizations occupying structures that need extensive improvements are allowed up to two years to comply, he said.

"But we'd like to get as much done over the summer months as possible," Durst said. He noted that some of the organizations do not have flexible budgeting processes to make the improvements rapidly.

Music Camp Starts June 9

Hastings (AP) — The third annual Hastings College Summer Music Camp will open at Evergreen Pines, Colo., June 9 and will run to June 22. Seventy-eight junior and senior high students from five states will be participating.

Barrow Injured In Cycle Mishap

Michael D. Barrow, 22, of 1511 S. 7th, was listed in fair condition at Lincoln General Hospital after a motorcycle accident early Wednesday morning on West O between N.W. 14th and Capitol Beach Blvd.

Police said Barrow sustained cuts, bruises and a skull fracture when his eastbound motorcycle overturned. Barrow apparently hit a curb and lost control of the motorcycle, police said.

Lincoln Said Under Different Standards

By H. J. ANDERSON
Star Staff Writer

A different set of standards is applied to Lincoln than to surrounding towns in a Lower Platte Basin Water Quality Management Plan, Lincoln Sanitation Engineer Jerry Obrist charged Wednesday night at an open hearing in Lincoln on the plan.

Because Lincoln would be bound until 1985 to its 1973 waste levels, Obrist said it will be the only city forced to use tertiary treatment of the waste products.

More Complicated

The process is more complicated, efficient and expensive than the secondary treatment processes used by smaller cities.

The water quality plan includes Salt Creek, Wahoo Creek and the Platte River from North Bend until it empties into the Missouri River.

It is an evaluation of current water quality and recommended priorities in maintaining state water quality standards.

Vote Scheduled

State Natural Resources Commission members will vote at a regular meeting Thursday whether to approve the plan for regional Environmental Protection Agency and Department of Environmental Control approval and implementation

Chuck Turner, engineer for the State Natural Resources Commission, said Lincoln is responsible for 95% of the wastes in the basin.

The current level of discharge, to which it will be held for the next 11 years, is 5,940 pounds per day. That compares to 62 for Ashland and 27 for Waverly.

Ashland will be allowed 73, and Waverly, 95 pounds per day, in 1985, according to the plan.

In State Standards

The figures are calculated to keep the basin within state water quality standards.

"Since so much of the problem comes from Lincoln," Turner said. "I equate the situation with that of a sick man You give only him penicillin, not his whole family."

It makes no sense to set up 10 tertiary treatment plants when one will do the job, he said.

He said industrial growth and its accompanying waste increases will mean the treatment process in Lincoln will have to be a third again as efficient as it is currently to treat the waste to a proper level.

That will require tertiary treatment, he said

Plan Endorsed

Ray Hartung, representing the State DEC, endorsed the water quality plan.

It is the first of 13 water quality plans for 13 districts set up in Nebraska by congressional action in 1970

All are to be completed by July, 1975. They are necessary to meet federal requirements for the receipt of $13 to $14 million federal dollars for financing sewage treatment facilities.

Red Cross Unit Presents Award To Betty Knaub

Mrs. Betty Knaub was named Volunteer of the Year by the Lancaster County Red Cross unit at its annual banquet Wednesday night in Lincoln

Mrs. Knaub was cited for six years of service to public health education.

Arnold Buckley will be president of the Red Cross unit for the next year.

Others elected at the banquet were. Roland N. Tornblom, president-elect; Dr. James W. Wickless, first vice president; William M. Roper, secretary; Kevin Colleran, treasurer; and Dr Harry R. Tolly, chairman of the board.

Meter Men Should Show Identification

Ask for identification before admitting a meter reader to your home

That reminder came from police Wednesday in connection with an incident in which a woman working in her yard admitted a man posing as a meter reader to her home.

The woman told police she had forgotten about the man until he walked out of the house 40 minutes later

In another half-hour she said, another meter reader, a real one, asked to read her meter.

She described the allegedly false meter reader as a white male, about 20 years old, 5 feet, six inches tall, with a medium build, wearing a green uniform and driving a gray car

Police theorize the man may have been casing the woman's home for a burglary.

Fire Damages Vacant House

A fire in a vacant house at 1921 Donald St Wednesday night resulted in "considerable" damage to the building, according to fire department Capt. Bob Mercier.

Mercier said the fire damaged a kitchen and bedroom in the building.

The blaze was apparently started by small children playing with fire in the house. None of the children were injured.

The alarm was turned in by a neighbor.

Crete-Kansas Expressway Draws Farmers' Criticism

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Opinions ranging from "put it anywhere" to "scrap the whole idea" were presented at an informational meeting Wednesday night at the Cortland Community Center on a proposed four-lane expressway running from the Crete corner to the Kansas border.

Department of Roads officials said the meeting was called by Gov. J. James Exon after he received a number of letters expressing concern over the proposed corridor.

Follows U.S. 77

The corridor approved by the Highway Commission after a public hearing in Beatrice July 31, 1973 generally follows the existing U.S. 77, bypassing Cortland and Princeton.

Area farmers told officials that many farms are already split up by the railroad tracks and U.S. 77 and the expressway would only complicate their problems.

Ronald Boesiger, representing a group of farmers, presented the group an alternate route which would basically run along the county road west of U.S. 77.

Disadvantages

Boesiger said the present proposal splits up too many farms, cuts through prime farm land, runs over present and planned irrigation systems and destroys one farmstead completely.

Another farmer, Ray Larkins, said that part of the proposed expressway runs through flood areas where in the past he has seen floods "move the railroad 600 yards into my field."

Beatrice Mayor Bob Sargent urged the department to follow existing roads wherever possible. He said that business has been up in the southeast part of the state and most of that was due to the farmers.

Business Loss

He said that if farms are cut up too much by the expressway business will drop.

While many of the group felt the Department of Roads should take its time and maybe not put the expressway through at all, others wanted the plan speeded up and expanded.

Ed Vance of Odell said that instead of cutting the expressway back to two lanes at the south end, four-lane construction should go all the way to the Kansas border.

He said the state in the future will want to meet similar construction in Kansas and to stop short of the border would be "false economy."

Speed Urged

Robert Bagby of the Beatrice Chamber of Commerce told the group the process ought to proceed swiftly and no further corridor studies be made.

He said that if another study were made the state would lose its place on the Federal Highway Administration calendar and the project would be delayed for several years.

Newhart Wife To Get Some Female Help

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As "The Bob Newhart Show" goes into production for its third season, Suzanne Pleshette — who plays Newhart's wife — is getting some female help.

Actress Pat Finley has joined the cast as Newhart's sister.

"I fought for this," Suzanne said "What we needed was another woman in the household. Someone for me to confer with on problems concerning Bob. The problem in the last year was I couldn't articulate my problems with anyone other than Bob."

The vivacious and animated Miss Pleshette, lithe and with coal black hair, moved into television two years ago in the midst of a successful film career.

She was spotted by executive producers David Davis and Lorenzo Music on the "Tonight" show and signed for the Newhart show

"Real life overlaps our show I think that's what makes it good," she says

"We borrow each other's psychoses I'm the only one who's not afraid to fly. Bob is. On the show Bob counsels me about my fear of flying "

CBS's Newhart show is a slice of realism, or at least as real as television shows like "All in the Family" and "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" are able to reflect life and still get laughs.

In the show, Suzanne plays Emily Hartley, whom she describes as "a healthy, well-adjusted married woman with no malice "

She said she plays the role in what she calls "the Suzanne Pleshette style " By that she means, "I think I have an ability to laugh at myself Life is enjoyable No problem is insurmountable Either you can laugh it off or overcome it I'm demonstrable I reach out "

She said she feels the show is growing and that "the beauty" of the show is that "you can go to the producers with a problem and sit down and talk it out

California GOP Rallies Around Flournoy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California Republicans rallied around their gubernatorial nominee on Wednesday, hoping his reputation as a moderate will help the GOP keep the state house in November, despite a 5-3 Democratic registration edge.

The nomination of Houston I. Flournoy, a onetime professor of government, in Tuesday's primary marked the first time since 1962 that the California Republicans have chosen a moderate as their standard bearer. The primary was one of eight in the nation.

Twelve years ago, Richard Nixon was the gubernatorial nominee. He lost and the party turned to conservative Ronald Reagan who won two terms as governor.

Flournoy, 44, the state controller and once a 3 per cent also-ran in the polls, will face Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., 36, in the November battle to succeed Reagan.

It was Brown's father, Edmund G. Brown, who defeated Nixon in 1962 after the latter had won the GOP primary over an avowed conservative, Joseph Shell.

Flournoy had a 2-1 victory margin over Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who had been the frontrunner until he was indicted April 3 on a federal perjury charge.

The winner and loser stood side by side at a news conference Wednesday where Reinecke finally conceded and said of Flournoy, "I'm here to endorse him."

With 96 per cent of the vote counted, Flournoy had 1,104,945, or 63 per cent, and Reineke 531,610, or 30 per cent. Four unknowns got the remaining 7 per cent of the vote.

On the Democratic side Brown polled 1,041,125, or 38 per cent to San Francisco Mayor Josph Alioto's 514,530, or 19 per cent. Three other major candidates polled about 24 per cent of the vote.

Registered Democrats outnumber Republicans in California, but GOP leaders think their hopes of retaining the governorship are enhanced with the potentially broad appeal of Flournoy as a moderate and progressive who can help them counter the problems of Watergate.

On the Democratic side, Brown defeated 17 opponents after a long campaign keyed to political reform. It was a double victory for him, since he also was the coauthor of state Proposition 9, a far-reaching political reform act, that was approved — three million to 1.3 million.

The proposition was sponsored by Common Cause, the citizens' lobby group, and its approval was seen as a reaction to Watergate and a boost for the political prestige of Common Cause itself.

Officials of both parties expressed concern about the low voter turnout Tuesday, slightly less than 50 per cent and the lowest since the 1946 primary. The low number of ballots cast contrasted with a record high registration of more than 9.5 million.

All 37 incumbent California congressmen seeking reelection were renominated. There are six seats for which there is no incumbent — five representatives decided not to seek reelection and the sixth seat was vacant because the Republican who held it received an ambassadorial appointment.

That seat was captured by Democrat Joho L. Burton in a special election held concurrently with the primary. It was the fifth special election won by the Democrats so far this year.

In other highlights of Tuesday's balloting:

— Congressman Paul N. McCloskey, the maverick California Republican, narrowly won renomination over conservative GOP challenger Gordon Knapp.

— South Dakota Republicans chose a former Vietnam prisoner of war, Leo Thorsness, to face Sen. George McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee. McGovern is seeking a third term.

— Civil rights pioneer James H. Meredith led a field of five candidates in a Democratic congressional primary in Mississippi and goes into a June 25 runoff. Meredith broke down racial barriers at the University of Mississippi a decade ago.

— More than 70 congressmen in the eight states easily won renomination in spite of fears that the aura of Watergate hosed a threat to all incumbents, Republicans and Democrats alike.

— Alabama wound up with two black nominees for the state Senate and 13 for the House. And Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley won renomination in the Democratic runoff over an opponent who led him in the first primary.

— Wilson Riles easily won reelection as California's state superintendent of public instruction. In 1970, he was the first black to win statewide office. State Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, a Trinidad-born black who represents the Watts area of Los Angeles, was nominated by California Democrats for lieutenant governor.

— In New Mexico, Democrat Jerry Apodaca and Republican Joe Skeen were nominated for governor. Democrat Bruce King was barred from running again.

Disengagement Begins On Israel- Syria Front

By United Press International

Israel and Syria began pulling back heavy military equipment from the Golan Heights battlefront Wednesday while advance units of U.N. peacekeeping troops moved up from both sides to man the buffer zone separating the two armies.

The actions were taken within hours after Israeli and Syrian generals signed final agreements in Geneva setting the troop and weapon disengagment lines to be occupied by June 25, and providing for exchange of all remaining prisoners of war and creation of commissions to search for the bodies of fallen soldiers.

A U.N. spokesman said in Cairo 700 U.N. officers and soldiers already are in the Golan Heights or on their way. He said the U.N. force will become operational Thursday.

Israeli sources in Jerusalem said a force of 1,500 Austrian, Canadian, Peruvian and Polish soldiers had reached Quneitra, captured by Israel in the 1967 war and returned to Syria under the disengagement agreement worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The Israelis were reported to have promptly started pulling out heavy equipment under terms of the Geneva accords. An Israeli military source in Tel Aviv said troops began destroying bunkers and other installations.

Banks Quietly Increasing Rates On Personal Loans

By United Press International

Scattered banks throughout the country have been quietly boosting interest rates for personal loans, with some čharging up to 14% for used car purchases, a UPI survey indicated Wednesday.

A check of banks in New York, Chicago and Boston showed the boosts generally ranged up to 1.5% for loans under three years. For longer periods, rates generally were unchanged.

In New York, First National City Bank, second largest in the country, recently raised the rate on 18-month loans of $2,000 and under to 12% from 10.54%. At the same time it reduced the rate on three-year loans of more than $4,000 by a fifth of a percentage point because it found the smaller loans unprofitable.

Bankers Trust Co., another major New York bank, boosted one-year loans from 10 07% to 11 58% and two-year loans from 10.89% to 12 02% It left longer term personal loan rates unchanged.

Chemical Bank of New York said it had decided to boost personal loan rates, but didn't expect to take the step before next week "when we have had time to adjust our rate cards."

While the New York banks exempted automobile loans from the increase in rates, such reluctance was not displayed elsewhere.

Boston's Shawmut National Bank boosted general purpose loan rates from 13.5% to 14%. At the same time loan rates on new cars moved from 9.5% to 10.5%, on used cars from 13.5% to 14%.

The State Street Bank and Trust Co., also in Boston, moved loan rates on new cars from 9.25% to 10% and for used cars from 11% to 12%. A spoikesman said the bank had no plans to boost general purpose loan rates.

The First National Bank of Chicago boosted its new car loan rate to 11.08% from 9.76%, with a similar increase applied to loans for used cars.

A spokesman for Continental Illinois National Bank, largest in the state, said that on May 1 the bank moved its loan rate for new cars to 10.20% from 9.75% and for used cars to between 11.5% and 12.67%, depending on the age of the vehicle.

Continental's general purpose loan rate has been 9 75% since last June, and a spokesman said no increase "was ontemplated at this time."

In Dallas, a spokesman for Preston State Bank said it was considering a boost in the rates for personal loans, which range from 11% to 14.45%.

Capital Spending Plans Trimmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Businessmen have trimmed by $750 million, or less than 1 per cent, the amount of money they plan to spend this year improving their plants and equipment, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

It said its quarterly survey of capital expenditure plans forecast outlays of $112 billion for the year. The total would amount to an increase of 12.2 per cent for the year, off slightly from the 12.8 per cent increase last year. The March projection for this year had been for a 13 percent increase.

Capital improvement plans were cut back most sharply from the March estimates in utilities, off 3.8 per cent; mining, off 6.9 per cent, and communications, off 2.5 per cent.

The cutbacks offset increased spending plans in the petroleum, chemical, primary metals, nonelectric machinery and stone-glass-clay industries. Capital spending plans in manufacturing overall rose three-tenths of one per cent.

The petroleum industry planned increases in capital expenditures for the year of 41 per cent.

Commerce analysts were at a loss to explain the exact reason for the cutbacks

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent pointed out in a speech before a textile industry audience in New York that industrial construction is high, inventories are low and the backlog of machinery orders is as big or bigger than at any time in history.

"Thus my conclusion is one of confidence,' recognizing that while we have a strong undergirding to our economy, we nevertheless have a long battle to fight against inflation," Dent said.

Rumors Raise Gold

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold surged ahead on Europe's main bullion markets Wednesday following rumors of impending currency adjustments, foreign exchange controls and a possible increase in the price of officially held gold.

Speculation also threw currency markets into disarray. The rumor was that the French franc was to stop floating freely and be brought back into the joint European float at a lower rate. There was another rumor that the West German mark would be revalued upward.

The price of free market gold was also pushed up by speculation ahead of Thursday's Luxembourg meeting of the European Common Market's finance ministers. The ministers are expected to discuss increasing the price of official gold.

At present only gold sold on the free market for industrial uses is allowed to rise and fall.

Gold opened in London at $154.50 an ounce. By the close it had surged ahead $163. In Zurich the gold pice jumped by $7.50 to 161.75.

Simon Sees Ills In Tax Reform

Washington (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Wednesday Senate enactment of "ill-conceived" tax reforms could further weaken the economy.

But Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., a chief sponsor of the reforms, said they were needed because the administration has no economic policy except "stomping on the brakes very hard to stop inflation."

Simon testified at a Senate Finance Committee hearing called to air administration and public sentiments on tax proposals that Mondale and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., have offered as amendments to a bill to increase the debt ceiling $19 billion to $495 billion.

Deadline July 1

Already passed by the House, the debt ceiling legislation must become law before July 1 or the limitation will revert to its old "permanent" level.

The Mondale-Bayh proposals would give individuals a tax cut by raising the personal deduction from $750 to $825, increase the minimum tax on rich Americans and repeal the oil depletion allowance, foreign tax credits and tax breaks for U.S. exporters.

Simon said the Senate should set aside its "ad hoc tax reform" in favor of administration-backed legislation being prepared by the House Ways and Means Committee on the basis of months of study.

Revenue Different

Simon said the Senate proposals would bring in about $700 million in tax revenues compared with $1.5 billion from administration proposals. He said the Senate minimum tax proposal was also less effective than the administration's.

In 1972, there were 92 Americans with incomes of $200,000 or more who paid no tax. Simon said the Senate measure would levy an average of $9,700 on 12 of them compared with an average tax of $61,600 on 69 under the administration proposal.

The petroleum industry planned increases in capital expenditures for the year of 41 per cent.

Commerce analysts were at a loss to explain the exact reason for the cutbacks.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent pointed out in a speech before a textile industry audience in New York that industrial construction is high, inventories are low and the backlog of machinery orders is as big or bigger than at any time in history.

"Thus my conclusion is one of confidence, recognizing that while we have a strong undergirding to our economy, we nevertheless have a long battle to fight against inflation," Dent said.

Rumors Raise Gold

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold surged ahead on Europe's main bullion markets Wednesday following rumors of impending currency adjustments, foreign exchange controls and a possible increase in the price of officially held gold.

Speculation also threw currency markets into disarray. The rumor was that the French franc was to stop floating freely and be brought back into the joint European float at a lower rate. There was another rumor that the West German mark would be revalued upward.

The price of free market gold was also pushed up by speculation ahead of Thursday's Luxembourg meeting of the European Common Market's finance ministers. The ministers are expected to discuss increasing the price of official gold.

At present only gold sold on the free market for industrial uses is allowed to rise and fall.

Gold opened in London at $154.50 an ounce. By the close it had surged ahead $163. In Zurich the gold pice jumped by $7.50 to 161.75.

Simon Sees Ills In Tax Reform

Washington (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Wednesday Senate enactment of "ill-conceived" tax reforms could further weaken the economy.

But Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., a chief sponsor of the reforms, said they were needed because the administration has no economic policy except "stomping on the brakes very hard to stop inflation."

Simon testified at a Senate Finance Committee hearing called to air administration and public sentiments on tax proposals that Mondale and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., have offered as amendments to a bill to increase the debt ceiling $19 billion to $495 billion.

Deadline July 1

Already passed by the House, the debt ceiling legislation must become law before July 1 or the limitation will revert to its old "permanent" level.

The Mondale-Bayh proposals would give individuals a tax cut by raising the personal deduction from $750 to $825, increase the minimum tax on rich Americans and repeal the oil depletion allowance, foreign tax credits and tax breaks for U.S. exporters.

Simon said the Senate should set aside its "ad hoc tax reform" in favor of administration-backed legislation being prepared by the House Ways and Means Committee on the basis of months of study.

Revenue Different

Simon said the Senate proposals would bring in about $700 million in tax revenues compared with $1.5 billion from administration proposals. He said the Senate minimum tax proposal was also less effective than the administration's.

In 1972, there were 92 Americans with incomes of $200,000 or more who paid no tax. Simon said the Senate measure would levy an average of $9,700 on 12 of them compared with an average tax of $61,600 on 69 under the administration proposal.

5 Teachers' Associations Seek Resolution Of Deadlocked Talks

Suits have been filed by five teacher associations asking the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations to resolve deadlocked contract negotiations for the 1974-75 school year.

Ted Kessner, attorney for the Nebraska State Education Association (NSEA), initiated the actions on behalf of teachers in the Arcadia, Minatare, O'Neill, Verdigre and Wallace school districts.

In the Arcadia case, the school board has refused to negotiate with the Arcadia Teachers Association unless the association permits teachers who do not belong to it to be part of the negotiating team.

The association said it represents 12 of the districts' 16 school teachers and is the sole recognized bargaining agent for the teachers.

The Wallace Education Association and the Wallace School Board have not resolved issues of grievance procedures and salary schedule. The association is asking the court to rule solely on those issues, since a tentative agreement has been reached on a $7,100 base salary and elimination of a $8,500 salary lid.

Salary At Impasse

The Verdegre Education Association is asking the court to settle an impasse over salary. The association seeks a $7,150 starting salary, but the school district's last offer was $6,800.

The O'Neill dispute centers around salaries, extra duty pay, grievance procedures, payroll deductions and professional and sick leave.

The school district and the teachers at Minatare are at odds over salaries and health insurance contributions for the 1974-75 school year.

G.I. Citizens Committee To Decide Liquor Issue

Grand Island (UPI) — The city council has placed the controversial liquor license limit issue in the hands of a citizens committee.

On a 4-2 vote, the council Tuesday night endorsed the formation of the citizens committee to recommend a limit on the number of liquor licenses the council can issue.

Richard DeBacker, attorney for city liquor dealers, accused the council of "slapping the electorate in the face," adding there was "no justification" for such a study.

DeBacker's comments concerned a May primary vote by which Grand Islanders rejected an ordinance lifting the liquor license limit number The question failed by 122 votes.

Proponents of the current move believe the limit of one Class C liquor license per 1,000 persons is no longer realistic.

G.I. Council Re-Elects Bredthauer

Grand Island (UPI) — The former president of the National Livestock Feeders Association has been re-elected president of the Grand Island City Council.

The council Tuesday night re-elected Oscar Bredthauer on a 7-0 vote and also retained Vice President Ray Reeser, a Grand Island manufacturing executive.

The council, by secret ballot, chose Leonard Connor to replace Lee Butts, who died a month ago. Connor will serve two years of Butts' Ward Three term. The names of the others considered for the post weren't revealed.

In addition, Lou Ann Snyder was sworn in as Ward Two Representative, replacing Bob Albee who didn't seek re-election.

Blank Defeated; Bang Is Elected McCook Mayor

McCook (UPI) — The McCook City Council has elected councilman George Bang as mayor.

Bang won election over incumbent Don Blank on a 3-1 vote with Blank abstaining.

Bang had served two years on the council and was re-elected to a four-year term in the May primary. He is a 70-year-old retired postal union official from Washington who retired in McCook.

Blank, a dentist, sought the Third District Republican primary congressional nomination, the outcome of which is still in doubt. Blank will continue as a councilman.

Meredith To Run As Independent

Jackson, Miss. (UPI) — Black civil rights leader James H. Meredith, who led a five-candidate field in the Democratic primary for Congress, announced Wednesday he was withdrawing from the runoff in order to run as an independent.

Meredith, whose enrollment at the University of Mississippi in 1962 set off a bloody riot, had won the right Tuesday to meet Jackson television executive Kenneth L. Dean in the June 25 runoff.

The winner of that runoff would face incumbent Republican Rep. Thad Cochran in the 4th Congressional District race on Nov. 5.

But Meredith said he would run for the post in November as an independent, hoping to split the white vote.

Staying in the runoff, he said, would be "senseless and useless . . . since the Mississippi regular Democratic Party will not support me if I win. They will support Congressman Thad Cochran or some independent candidate against me."

A ruling on the status of the runoff election must come from the state attorney general's office, but officials said they expected that the No. 3 man in the field, Alonzo Sturgeon, would be allowed to replace Meredith in the runoff against Dean.

Cochran, one of the state's two freshman Republican congressmen, won easily over Robert Coleman of Jackson in Tuesday's GOP primary.

Coleman is Meredith's brother-in-law and his entry in the race as a Republican, despite his weak showing, may have had a significant effect on the Democratic primary since it forced voters to choose between the GOP or Democratic contests. More than 24,000 persons voted in the Democratic primary while more than 23,000 votes were cast in the Republican primary.

Rep. David Bowen, a freshman Democrat from Cleveland, handily defeated his lone challenger, Mayor Harry Robinson of Houston, in the 2nd district but still faces Republican Ben Hilburn Jr. of Starkville in November.

The closest contest was in the 5th district where Walter Wilson Murphey, a 61-year-old Pascagoula insurance agent, apparently nosed out Karl Mertz of Gulfport for the Democratic nomination by 107 votes, 20,929 to 20,822.

The winner will face an uphill fight against incumbent Trent Lott in the general election.

Mississippi's other two congressmen, Democrats Jamie Whitten of Charleston and G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery of Meridian, were unopposed in the primaries and have no GOP opponents this fall.

Meredith, 42, of Jackson, received 7,837 votes or nearly 32% of the ballots cast in the 4th district Democratic primary. Dean, 39, a political newcomer and racial moderate, had 6,904 votes or 28%.

This was Meredith's third political race in recent years. He got only 4,600 votes in an unsuccessful statewide try for the GOP nomination for U.S. Senate in 1972, and finished a distant sixth last year in a 10-way race for a seat on the Jackson City Commission.

25 Young Spellers Survive

Washington (UPI) — Mastering words like "diablerie," "parenthesize" and "oleaginous," 25 young spellers Wednesday outlasted 55 other contestants in opening rounds of the National Spelling Bee.

Youngsters who survive the eight rounds of competition will begin another spell-down Thursday to determine the winner of $1,600 in cash prizes.

The annual contest, sponsored by Scripps-Howard Newspapers, drew a record number of entrants in this year's competition — 40 girls and 40 boys. Girls outnumbered the boys in Wednesday's competition, 13 to 12.

The contestants, who represent 76 newspaper sponsors, are either under 16 or have not passed beyond the eighth grade. They were selected from an estimated 7.5 million spellers who competed at the local level.

Shawn Whittington, a pretty 14-year-old from Edinburg, Tex., thought for a full three minutes when asked to spell "loge," a French word which means a special theater box. She walked away in tears, unable to complete the spelling.

Camellia Jane Pratt, 13, of Dickinson, Tex., finished third in last year's competition and was among Wednesday's survivors. She spelled her way through words like "vignette," "jocund," "inexorable," "lachrymose," and "masochism."

STATELY HOME . . . of earl and countess, from which they were kidnaped.

Police Search For Earl In Hills

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Police and troops searched the lonely Wickow Hills on Wednesday for the Earl and Countess of Donoughmore, kidnaped from their stately home in Tipperary by three masked gunmen.

The chief of Dublin's murder squad took charge of the investigation, as fears grew that the elderly earl and countess would be held hostage for the lives of Irish hunger strikers in British prisons and killed if more strikers die.

"Lord and Lady Donoughmore were struggling with them and I could hear them slapping her and she kept asking them what they wanted. Then they forced them into their car and drove off," the chauffeur's son said.

He added that the kidnapers communicated with each other by whistling — a known IRA technique.

At daybreak police found Lady Donoughmore's cardigan, an earring, bracelet and left shoe scattered in front of the house. Bloodstains marked the lawn and police appealed to physicians and hospitals throughout Ireland to report anyone demanding treatment for gunshot wounds.

Police said that by midafternoon no ransom demand had been received. A spokesman reported: "We have put a large-scale security operation into force and are now waiting for them to make the next move."

The chauffeur's son said that after overpowering the staff the raiders waited for the earl and countess to return home. He heard their car arriving and "the next thing I heard was a gunshot."

The kidnapers used similar methods to the IRA team that snatched $20 million worth of paintings in April from the Irish mansion of Sir Alfred Beit, a multimillionaire diamond magnate, including tying up the household staff after threatening them with guns. The paintings were later recovered.

The earl's son and heir, Lord Suirdale, flew to Dublin from his Paris home and appealed to the kidnapers to "be reasonable to two old people who have done you no harm."

The earl, 71, and the countess, 68, are among the most prominent of the Anglo-Irish families who make up the 5 per cent of the republic's population. The earl was a Conservative member of the British House of Commons from 1943 to 1945, but has not been politically active since then

No Gunshots Fired In Abortive Rebellion

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Infantrymen loyal to President Hugo Banzer put down a rebellion attempted Wednesday by two disgruntled tank corps officers and the armored regiment they headed.

No shots were fired as Banzer's forces subdued the crack Tarapaca armored regiment and its leaders, two disaffected lieutenant colonels identified as former men Rene Lopez Leyton and Gary Prado Salmon.

Sources said the colonels and four other officers escaped into the Brazilian Embassy. There was no indication whether they requested political asylum.

One of the officers tried without success to take over the international airport during the night. The other led a tank column 14 miles into the center of town and surrounded the presidential palace.

The leading tanks smashed the ornate, wrought-iron palace gates and rattled the ancient gray building. But Banzer's foot soldiers quickly encircled the rebels and forced them to surrender.

Banzer has recently shown himself to be an admirer of the type of military-controlled government that rules neighboring Brazil.

The Brazilians have agreed to invest almost $1 billion in the next two decades to build a 900-mile gas pipeline, construct roads and interconnecting railways, and develop iron ore deposits at El Mutun, Bolivia, one of the world's richest such deposits.

Although poor, Bolivia has some of the world's largest resources of iron ore, natural gas and tin, with relatively large amounts of untapped oil.

The attempt was the latest in more than a dozen plots and conspiracies against Banzer, whose regime is rightist and harshly anti-Communist. He became president three years ago after the bloody overthrow of a leftist regime headed by President Juan Jose Torres, another army general.

Bolivia is South America's poorest country with a per capita annual income of $234. It has a history of governmental instability — 180 governments in its 148 years of independence.

Last January the country was plunged into economic turmoil and violence when workers struck to protest inflation that had doubled basic commodity prices.

Inflation also has led to political instability in neighboring Peru. Two admirals quit Tuesday as cabinet ministers in the left-leaning government of President Juan Velasco, a week after another admiral was forced to resign.

Critics charge that Velasco's reform regime is running out of steam and unable to meet the challenges of Peru's energy crisis, inflation and a sluggish economy that produces an occasional food shortages.

The Bolivian rebels, in a statement broadcast during the night over a La Paz radio station they had captured, claimed their uprising was "strictly a military affair."

But informed sources said they had planned to call elections after toppling Banzer with the tacit support of the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement, Bolivia's single largest political party.

Burglars' Choice Is Not Good

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Crime just doesn't pay. Especially when the victim is the chief of police.

A Youth Bureau detective, cruising for prowlers, spotted a gold bracelet lying in the street Tuesday and recognized it as belonging to Mrs. Thomas Ormsby, wife of the police chief.

The detective, Walter Radziewicz, reported his discovery and police went to Ormsby's home. They found it had been burglarized.

A neighbor reported seeing some juveniles in the area. Shortly afterward, police took three youths into custody. Later, they also arrested two brothers — Stanley Kalas, 17, and Chester Kalas, 22, both of New Britain.

Police said the Kalas brothers were charged with conspiracy to receive stolen property and with larceny by receiving stolen property. The older Kalas also was charged with interfering with police.

Ormsby said family heirlooms, cameras and jewelry, were stolen. Authorities said the burglars had no idea whose house they picked.

Meredith To Run As Independent

Jackson, Miss. (UPI) — Black civil rights leader James H. Meredith, who led a five-candidate field in the Democratic primary for Congress, announced Wednesday he was withdrawing from the runoff in order to run as an independent.

Meredith, whose enrollment at the University of Mississippi in 1962 set off a bloody riot, had won the right Tuesday to meet Jackson television executive Kenneth L. Dean in the June 25 runoff.

The winner of that runoff would face incumbent Republican Rep. Thad Cochran in the 4th Congressional District race on Nov. 5.

But Meredith said he would run for the post in November as an independent, hoping to split the white vote.

Staying in the runoff, he said, would be "senseless and useless . . . since the Mississippi regular Democratic Party will not support me if I win. They will support Congressman Thad Cochran or some independent candidate against me."

A ruling on the status of the runoff election must come from the state attorney general's office, but officials said they expected that the No. 3 man in the field, Alonzo Sturgeon, would be allowed to replace Meredith in the runoff against Dean.

Cochran, one of the state's two freshman Republican congressmen, won easily over Robert Coleman of Jackson in Tuesday's GOP primary.

Coleman is Meredith's brother-in-law and his entry in the race as a Republican, despite his weak showing, may have had a significant effect on the Democratic primary since it forced voters to choose between the GOP or Democratic contests. More than 24,000 persons voted in the Democratic primary while more than 23,000 votes were cast in the Republican primary.

Rep. David Bowen, a freshman Democrat from Cleveland, handily defeated his lone challenger, Mayor Harry Robinson of Houston, in the 2nd district but still faces Republican Ben Hilburn Jr. of Starkville in November.

The closest contest was in the 5th district where Walter Wilson Murphey, a 61-year-old Pascagoula insurance agent, apparently nosed out Karl Mertz of Gulfport for the Democratic nomination by 107 votes, 20,929 to 20,822.

The winner will face an uphill fight against incumbent Trent Lott in the general election.

Mississippi's other two congressmen, Democrats Jamie Whitten of Charleston and G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery of Meridian, were unopposed in the primaries and have no GOP opponents this fall.

Meredith, 42, of Jackson, received 7,837 votes or nearly 32% of the ballots cast in the 4th district Democratic primary. Dean, 39, a political newcomer and racial moderate, had 6,904 votes or 28%.

This was Meredith's third political race in recent years. He got only 4,600 votes in an unsuccessful statewide try for the GOP nomination for U.S. Senate in 1972, and finished a distant sixth last year in a 10-way race for a seat on the Jackson City Commission.

25 Young Spellers Survive

Washington (UPI) — Mastering words like "diablerie," "parenthesize" and "oleaginous," 25 young spellers Wednesday outlasted 55 other contestants in opening rounds of the National Spelling Bee.

Youngsters who survive the eight rounds of competition will begin another spell-down Thursday to determine the winner of $1,600 in cash prizes.

The annual contest, sponsored by Scripps-Howard Newspapers, drew a record number of entrants in this year's competition — 40 girls and 40 boys. Girls outnumbered the boys in Wednesday's competition, 13 to 12.

The contestants, who represent 76 newspaper sponsors, are either under 16 or have not passed beyond the eighth grade. They were selected from an estimated 7.5 million spellers who competed at the local level.

Shawn Whittington, a pretty 14-year-old from Edinburg, Tex., thought for a full three minutes when asked to spell "loge," a French word which means a special theater box. She walked away in tears, unable to complete the spelling.

Camellia Jane Pratt, 13, of Dickinson, Tex., finished third in last year's competition and was among Wednesday's survivors. She spelled her way through words like "vignette," "jocund," "inexorable," "lachrymose," and "masochism."

STATELY HOME . . . of earl and countess, from which they were kidnaped.

Police Search For Earl In Hills

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Police and troops searched the lonely Wickow Hills on Wednesday for the Earl and Countess of Donoughmore, kidnaped from their stately home in Tipperary by three masked gunmen.

The chief of Dublin's murder squad took charge of the investigation, as fears grew that the elderly earl and countess would be held hostage for the lives of Irish hunger strikers in British prisons and killed if more strikers die.

"Lord and Lady Donoughmore were struggling with them and I could hear them slapping her and she kept asking them what they wanted. Then they forced them into their car and drove off," the chauffeur's son said.

He added that the kidnapers communicated with each other by whistling — a known IRA technique.

Time To Buy Pork, Says Producer

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Now is as good a time to fill your freezer with pork as you are likely to see for quite a while, according to one of Nebraska's top pork producers, Willard Waldo of DeWitt.

Purebred raiser Waldo operates what may be the largest hog production setup in the nation.

"We have sold hogs in 16 states this year, so the breeding stock is still in demand. But with high grain prices and low hog prices, something is going to have to give or farmers will quit producing hogs," he said.

"Consumers ought to consider buying some pork now so farmers can stay in business and the consumers will assure themselves of a supply of meat over the long pull."

A measuring stick of the hog producer's economic condition is the corn-hog ratio, which is currently at 10.7, the lowest point in 18 years.

The ratio refers to the number of bushels of corn that can be purchased with the money a farmer receives for 100 pounds of live hog.

The last time the ratio dropped this low was in July 1956, and that was the lowest point since May 1948. Clearly, pork producers are hurting economically, just as cattlemen are.

A part of the problem is overweight hogs. Farmers have kept their hogs beyond the point of good market weight in hopes of getting a better price.

"This really surprised me," said Waldo. "I thought pork producers had learned from the beef producer that overweight animals are a real problem. The fat has to be trimmed off, you get a low price and heavy hogs are very expensive to feed."

Waldo recalled that when he was a student teacher many years ago, farmers held steers as long as a year in a fruitless attempt to find a better price.

Waldo is also concerned about what the government is going to do about grain prices. "Right now it looks as if we could have corn prices at $1.50 a bushel," he said. "With today's sharply higher costs of fuel, parts, fertilizer, machinery or anything else, it costs $2 a bushel to raise corn. Corn is only $2.20 now. That is high for feeding hogs at today's prices, but not high when you consider costs."

Rain damage to corn in Iowa probably won't reduce the crop enough to make much difference in the price, according to Waldo, who has driven through much of the area. "Some real damage can be seen, but most of the crop looks very good," he said.

What about the future?

"Hog farming is a long-range proposition," said Waldo. "Get in and stay in and you should be all right in the long run. I haven't seen many years when hogs won't make a profit. All you can do is stay in business."

U.S. Department of Agriculture economists predict that lower corn prices will help hog producers escape the crunch. But the cost-price squeeze will then be transferred to the grain farmer.

"A lot depends on what the government does in food aid to other nations," Waldo said. "You can't tell from one minute to the next what they are going to do in Washington."

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your paper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

Mrs. Smith Holds Lead In 3rd District Recount

Omaha (AP) — A recount under way in all but 5 of the 61 counties in Nebraska's Third Congressional District Wednesday showed Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell clinging to a slim lead over McCook Mayer Don Blank.

The two are the top vote-getters in a field of eight competing for the district's Republican congressional nomination.

With recount figures available from 29 counties, Mrs. Smith led by 114 votes, five less than she had in recent unofficial tabulations by the Nebraska Election Service.

The service figures were based on county canvassing board figures.

Mrs. Smith's total was 15,663 to Blank's 15,549.

Recounts are under way in 27 counties. Five counties will not be recounted because they used voting machines or punch-card ballots. Using voting machines were Hall, Butler and Cheyenne counties. Punch-card ballots were used in Lincoln and Scotts Bluff counties.

Blank's biggest gain was in the Dawson County recount, where he picked up 54 additional votes. Mrs. Smith picked up an additional 16 votes in Dawson, leaving a net gain of 38 votes for Blank.

Statistics Show Farm Prices Off By 6% In April

The State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Wednesday Nebraska's farm price index took a 6% dip in mid-April from the previous month and a year ago.

The division said the index was rated at 432 and the decline resulted primarily from lower livestock prices.

The crops index was down fractionally from a month earlier as it declined from 402 to 401, but it was still up 59% from a year ago.

The livestock index was off 8% from a month earlier and down 18% from a year ago.

Time To Buy Pork, Says Producer

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Now is as good a time to fill your freezer with pork as you are likely to see for quite a while, according to one of Nebraska's top pork producers, Willard Waldo of DeWitt.

Purebred raiser Waldo operates what may be the largest hog production setup in the nation.

"We have sold hogs in 16 states this year, so the breeding stock is still in demand. But with high grain prices and low hog prices, something is going to have to give or farmers will quit producing hogs," he said.

"Consumers ought to consider buying some pork now so farmers can stay in business and the consumers will assure themselves of a supply of meat over the long pull."

A measuring stick of the hog producer's economic condition is the corn-hog ratio, which is currently at 10.7, the lowest point in 18 years.

The ratio refers to the number of bushels of corn that can be purchased with the money a farmer receives for 100 pounds of live hog.

The last time the ratio dropped this low was in July 1956, and that was the lowest point since May 1948. Clearly, pork producers are hurting economically, just as cattlemen are.

A part of the problem is overweight hogs. Farmers have kept their hogs beyond the point of good market weight in hopes of getting a better price.

"This really surprised me," said Waldo. "I thought pork producers had learned from the beef producer that overweight animals are a real problem. The fat has to be trimmed off, you get a low price and heavy hogs are very expensive to feed."

Waldo recalled that when he was a student teacher many years ago, farmers held steers as long as a year in a fruitless attempt to find a better price.

Waldo is also concerned about what the government is going to do about grain prices. "Right now it looks as if we could have corn prices at $1.50 a bushel," he said. "With today's sharply higher costs of fuel, parts, fertilizer, machinery or anything else, it costs $2 a bushel to raise corn. Corn is only $2.20 now. That is high for feeding hogs at today's prices, but not high when you consider costs."

Rain damage to corn in Iowa probably won't reduce the crop enough to make much difference in the price, according to Waldo, who has driven through much of the area. "Some real damage can be seen, but most of the crop looks very good," he said.

What about the future?

"Hog farming is a long-range proposition," said Waldo. "Get in and stay in and you should be all right in the long run. I haven't seen many years when hogs won't make a profit. All you can do is stay in business."

U.S. Department of Agriculture economists predict that lower corn prices will help hog producers escape the crunch. But the cost-price squeeze will then be transferred to the grain farmer.

"A lot depends on what the government does in food aid to other nations," Waldo said. "You can't tell from one minute to the next what they are going to do in Washington."

Mrs. Smith Holds Lead In 3rd District Recount

Omaha (AP) — A recount under way in all but 5 of the 61 counties in Nebraska's Third Congressional District Wednesday showed Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell clinging to a slim lead over McCook Mayer Don Blank.

The two are the top vote-getters in a field of eight competing for the district's Republican congressional nomination.

With recount figures available from 29 counties, Mrs. Smith led by 114 votes, five less than she had in recent unofficial tabulations by the Nebraska Election Service.

The service figures were based on county canvassing board figures.

Mrs. Smith's total was 15,663 to Blank's 15,549.

Recounts are under way in 27 counties. Five counties will not be recounted because they used voting machines or punch-card ballots. Using voting machines were Hall, Butler and Cheyenne counties. Punch-card ballots were used in Lincoln and Scotts Bluff counties.

Blank's biggest gain was in the Dawson County recount, where he picked up 54 additional votes. Mrs. Smith picked up an additional 16 votes in Dawson, leaving a net gain of 38 votes for Blank.

Statistics Show Farm Prices Off By 6% In April

The State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Wednesday Nebraska's farm price index took a 6% dip in mid-April from the previous month and a year ago.

The division said the index was rated at 432 and the decline resulted primarily from lower livestock prices.

The crops index was down fractionally from a month earlier as it declined from 402 to 401, but it was still up 59% from a year ago.

The livestock index was off 8% from a month earlier and down 18% from a year ago.

San Francisco — I said: "Who in — I withdraw that. Who took my scissors?" But the breakfast TV only mumbled on and on. The morning TV freezes the moppets like the Princess in the magic castle.

They sit glassy-eyed, staring at the screen. The spoon halfway between the cereal bowl and the mouth. On the floor, one shoe half on. Speak to them, there's no response.

Scream at them and they come back to life with a jerk: "What?"

(Never mind about the scissors. I can tear open the packages with my hands. Bite the string in two with my teeth)

Morning has begun at Snug Harbor.

Did Nick the Greek implore Lady Luck? Did he talk to the dice? "Come on, seven! Baby needs shoes!"

Not so. "The dice don't know who's throwing them," said the Athenian philosopher.

We are tinkering with fortune these fortunate days.

"Tax shelters are out," said the inscrutable accountant. He gave me a long and inscrutable reason, but he might as well have been talking Chinese

The children took over the corporate seal. One day they lost it in the yard. And that was the end of that shelter.

Teacher Salary Disputes Dismissed

The State Supreme Court Wednesday ordered dismissal of two teacher salary disputes involving the Sidney School District.

The order issued by the court was on a motion filed by the school district asking that its two appeals from the State Court of Industrial Relations be dismissed.

The industrial court, in decisions handed down this spring, ordered the school district to pay its teachers base salaries of $6,725 plus four per cent increases for experience and education.

The salary decisions applied to both the 1972-73 and 1973-74 school years.

The dismissal of the appeals allows those decisions to stand.

Brake On Economy

Williamsburg, Va. (AP) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said the government must keep a brake on demand in the economy, even if it means higher-than-desirable unemployment.

Teacher Salary Disputes Dismissed

The State Supreme Court Wednesday ordered dismissal of two teacher salary disputes involving the Sidney School District.

The order issued by the court was on a motion filed by the school district asking that its two appeals from the State Court of Industrial Relations be dismissed.

The industrial court, in decisions handed down this spring, ordered the school district to pay its teachers base salaries of $6,725 plus four per cent increases for experience and education.

The salary decisions applied to both the 1972-73 and 1973-74 school years.

The dismissal of the appeals allows those decisions to stand.

Panel To Probe Health Services

The Legislature's Public Health and Welfare Committee Wednesday decided to take a look at all state human services programs with emphasis on recipient complaints or suggestion.

The 1974 Legislature forwarded two resolutions to the committee urging a study of human services programs.

Included are programs in mental health, mental retardation, health, vocational rehabilitation, youth services, special education, corrections and welfare.

Consider Merging

Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha suggested that the committee consider the advisability of merging most or all human services programs into a single new state agency.

But Sen. John Cavanaugh III of Omaha said the study should focus more on recipient needs than on restructuring the bureaucracy.

Cavanaugh urged the committee to hold hearings throughout the state in order to field recipient complaints or suggestions.

There is "a disparity of service in different areas of the state," he said.

Superagency?

It would be more useful to "restructure the delivery of those services" than to create "a new superagency" of state government to manage them, he said.

Goodrich said he believes problems are caused by personnel, as well as by the structure that manages the programs.

Legislative Fiscal Analyst Eldin Ehrlich suggested that the Health Committee join with the Appropriations Committee and its staff in "taking an inventory" of all the services provided, then match that information with needs.

In some cases, he said, the state may be "providing services which are not needed at all" since they may be provided by local or private agencies.

Law 'Vague' About Paying For Recounts

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County Election Commissioner Mike Boyle said Wednesday Nebraska election laws are "vague" about who pays for vote recounts and only encourage "free-for-alls and frivolous requests."

Election workers are now recounting votes in the race for the third County Board Democratic nomination. W. T. "Buck" D'Hanlon, who finished fourth, 41 votes behind Mike Jackson, asked for the recount.

Boyle said he would not term that recount as frivolous. Howecer he said questions raised in preparation for the recount point the need to change state law, he said.

While the law is unclear about whether the state or the candidate pays for the recount, Boyle has agreed that Douglas County would pay for the recount.

Boydle said the cost of the recount is about $20 an hour.

The state law, Boyle said, should be changed to specify who pays for recounts.

Truck Accident Kills One Man

Litchfield (AP) — The State Patrol said one man was killed in a gravel truck accident on a county road between Hazard and Litchfield Wednesday evening.

The death raised Nebraska's 1974 traffic fatality toll to 129, compared with 159 at this time last year.

50 Hours Of Ping-Pong Sets Record

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Blue Springs — How many points are there in 50 straight hours of ping-pong?

They quit keeping score after the first few hours, but four weary youths here did make one point - pretty forcefully. They set a world marathon record — with a full eight hours to spare — for the old paddle game.

Starting at 10 a.m. Monday, the foursome banged away continuously until Wednesday noon. Hence into the record book go the names of high-schoolers Dave Thoman, Garold Jones, Stan Rudder, and Terry Morrison.

Personal Challenge

Originally their motivation was about like that of the guy who climbed the legendary mountain "just because it was there." Reading of a 42-hour doubles record held by four Britons, they saw it as a national and personal challenge.

Momentum was added when Dave's mother, Mrs. Loren Thoman, suggested that the venture also serve as a benefit. The boys agreed that any contributions would go to Mike Percell of Wymore, a 10-year-old victim of cystic fibrosis

"It took us two years to get around to trying," said Thoman, who contacted the "Guinness Book of World Records" to assure conformity with the rules. "We'd have been happy just to beat the 42 hours, but decided that an extra eight would be a lot better."

Approximately $200 was collected, most of it from the 400 or so persons who stopped by during the match. The Blue Springs fire hall was the scene of action.

Taking five-minute breaks every hour as regulations permit, the youths ate and drank as they played. But there was no opportunity for sleep and timekeepers saw to it that there was no departure from schedule.

Besides the table-side cheers of friends, the players were encouraged via radio. Well-wishers dedicated a number of songs to them over at least four stations.

It was the same partners all the way, Thoman and Morrison vs. Jones and Rudder. While some games were played for points, nobody kept score overall.

At the end, it was plain that things came out pretty even anyway. One world record holder was just about as bushed as the next one.

County Delegates To Elect Leaders

By The Associated Press

Voters in most of Nebraska's 93 counties will get a chance to shape state and national government Thursday when both major political parties convene county conventions.

Republicans and Democrats will elect chairmen and committee members for the 1974 campaign.

In addition, both parties will select delegates for the state party conventions to be held the last weekend in June.

Republicans will meet in Lincoln and Democrats in Norfolk.

Each county is allotted delegates according to a formula based on the party's total vote for president in 972. More than 400 persons will be elected statewide to attend the two conventions.

County conventions also provide forums for candidates for state and national office, and most conventions have scheduled speakers.

Democratic state chairman Dick White said his party will elect delegates to the state convention; some of those may win seats at the party's first offyear national convention scheduled for December in Kansas City.

Republican delegates sent to the state convention later this month will choose the party's state central committee. Committee members are elected for two year terms.

Reports on each county convention will go to the respective heads of each party.

Four NTV Stations Change Call Letters

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—The new owners of the four NTV Network stations have announced immediate changes in the call letters of the four television properties.

KHOL TV, channel 13, licensed in 1953 to Kearney-Holdrege, has become KHGI TV. The initials are those of Kearney, Hastings and Grand Island, the three major areas served by the station.

KHPL TV, channel 6, Hayes Center, has become KWNB TV. The call letters represent Western Nebraska Television, defining the large area served by the station.

KHTL TV, channel 4, Superior, has become KSNB TV. The call letters represent the Kansas-Nebraska area served by the station.

KHQL TV, channel 8, Albion-Columbus-Norfolk, has become KCNA TV, with the call letters representing those three cities.

NTV Executive Vice President and General Manager James Johnson said the network plans complete renovation of the NTV studios, the purchase of new equipment and the addition of new employes in the near future.

Johnson also announced the appointment of Linda Johnson as community relations director for the network. She formerly served as a secretary for the stations.

The network was officially transferred from the Bi-States Co. to NTV Enterprises, Inc., last Friday. Officers of the new company are John Payne, president; John Crowley, vice president; Alan Oldfather, treasurer, and Charles Oldfather, secretary.

Payne is manager of Payne-Larson Furniture in Kearney, Crowley is president of Geyerman's, Inc., of Hastings, Alan Oldfather is president of the First National Bank of Kearney and Charles Oldfather is a Lincoln attorney.

Ryan Says Spending Is Within Limit

Tom Ryan, coordinator for the Exon-Whelan campaign, Wednesday said primary election expenditures by the Democratic team did not exceed limits proposed by Gov. J. James Exon in a legislative bill.

Republican National Committeewoman Pat Smith of Lincoln had suggested that the near $68,000 in campaign expenditures had exceeded limits in a bill which Exon had proposed to the Unicameral.

The proposal would have limited gubernatorial candidates to $50,000 in primary campaign spending, and placed a similar $50,000 primary spending lid on candidates for lieutenant governor, Ryan said.

Thus, the total limit for a governor-lieutenant governor team would have been $100,000, he said.

"Evidently, you have been given incorrect information in regard to this bill and I hope that the information enclosed will allow you to correct the error in your Tuesday statement," Ryan wrote Mrs. Smith.

Hastings attorney Gerald Whelan was nominated for lieutenant governor as a teammate for Exon.

Fulbright Scholar Marian Cast Plans Nutrition Survey In Morrocan Village

Marian Cast

The Kingdom of Morocco, with its rugged mountains and bustling Casablanca, sounds like an exciting place to visit — even if you've been there before.

One of the five University of Nebraska-Lincoln students who received a Fulbright-Hays scholarship for overseas study is Marian Cast, daughter of Mrs. Lois Cast of Beaver Crossing.

She will complete a nutrition survey with teen-agers in the same Moroccan village where she worked during her term with the Peace Corps from 1965-67. The full details of the study have not been worked out yet, she said, but it might examine the rapid growth rate of teen-agers and their nutrition. She added that a similar study is being conducted in the UN-L food and nutrition department with adolescent boys. Diet records of the Moroccan teen-agers and the Nebraska teens may be compared, she said.

Ms. Cast received her B.S. degree in home economics education from UN-L in 1965, but wanted to do something different with her background after talking with a friend who was disillusioned with teaching. So, she joined the Peace Corps. In Morocco, she taught sewing and patternmaking to teen-agers and young mothers, and also headed a nursery school for infants. Because the women didn't understand mathematics, she showed them how to use string to make measurements for sewing.

To prepare for possible language difficulties, she studied Arabic for three months.

When she returned to Nebraska, she was an extension agent in Boone and Nance counties for 18 months. While she was presenting a talk on her work in Morocco, a woman asked her if she would like to teach in Turkey. The native Nebraskan jumped at the chance, and taught home economics and served as dormitory director in a girls' school in Izmir, Turkey, for three years.

She will leave for Morocco in September and study there until May. She will complete her thesis for a masters of science degree during the summer of 1975.

Omaha's Council Ponders New State Office Building

Omaha (AP) — Omaha city councilmen were told Tuesday that their opinions would carry heavy weight in the decision on the location of a state office building.

State officials, including Sens. John Cavanaugh and Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, met with the council and Mayor Edward Zorinsky to discuss implementation of a bill which calls for up to $8 million to be spent for a state office building in Omaha.

The council instructed City Atty. Herbert Fitle to meet with Stan Matzke, director of the State Department of Administrative Services, to lay the groundwork for issuing of bonds.

By law, the state can't issue bonds for the building, so the bill calls for the city to issue them, with the state leasing the building from the city and paying off the bonds.

Officials said the city incurs no financial risk and its credit isn't used.

Matzke and the State Building Commission will formally set the location for the building. No sites were discussed Tuesday.

Cold Front Triggers Hail, Heavy Rains, High Winds

A cold front moving eastward across Nebraska late Wednesday triggered severe, heavy thunderstorms, topped by 3.20 inches of rain and considerable hail at Norfolk.

Power outages due to lightning were also reported in the Norfolk area.

A flash flood warning was issued in the Norfolk and Madison areas, where water covered some streets and highways in low spots as small streams and creeks filled.

Lexington received 1½ inches of rain in about 20 minutes and there were high winds and hail at nearby Johnson Lake.

Earlier Wednesday, strong winds caused structural damage at the Sperry-New Holland manufacturing plant being built south of Lexington.

Many central Nebraska points reported high winds, heavy rain and/or hail, including Aurora, Hastings, Amherst, Blue Hill, Wolbach, Pleasanton, Burwell, Ansley and Ericson. At Franklin, observers reported 2½ inches of rain in a 20-minute span.

Hail up to golfball size broke windows south of Ayr, where strong winds moved irrigation pipes on the ground.

Funnel clouds were sighted around Red Cloud, Grand Island and Hastings. There were no reports of twisters touching the ground.

At Red Cloud, observers said strong winds damaged trees and ripped television antennas from roofs. Ravenna has 1¼ inches of rain in about a half hour, accompanied by strong winds.

Clay Hills Suddenly Turn To Gold

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

TOMEK . . . looks over brickyard that has become a goldmine.

Table Rock — Joe Tomek had always known them thar hills were full of clay, but he had no idea it would turn to gold.

For nearly 50 years the old Table Rock Brick and Tile Co. had been only weed-covered remains and a worry that some visiting youngster might get hurt. Then a few weeks ago, a "city man from Lincoln" came knocking at the owner's door.

Tomek was admittedly surprised to learn that the used brick — sold new for $5 per 1,000 way back when — is now worth several times that figure. Came a little dickering and the abandoned brickyard was headed for salvage and use in some of Lincoln's swankiest new homes.

"I never realized there was such a demand or the place wouldn't have laid idle all this time," said Tomek, whose father, Joe W., had operated the business shortly before its 1931 demise. "A few thousand dollars will come in handy some rainy day."

With an estimated half million good bricks to be hauled out, a crew from the Max Scherer Construction Co. of Lincoln probably will be at the job for months. Bulldozing began a few days ago on the old "continuous kiln" from which most of the material will come.

Its walls five feet thick, the tunnel-like kiln was a circular structure 300 feet in circumference. The 12 chamber openings accommodated several hundred thousand bricks at a time for firing.

According to Tomek, the kiln was called "continuous" because of the system of filling and sealing each chamber in order. By the time a crew had spent perhaps two weeks working around the circle, the first chamber's brick was cured and ready for removal.

Also to be razed are two smokestacks at least 40 feet high. Tomek, a bachelor with considerable land holdings, rejected an offer for still another smokestack which had been a community landmark for some five decades.

That imposing 105-footer, denoting the site a half mile south of the Pawnee County town, towers well above a heavy overgrowth of surrounding trees. It naturally has figured in its share of lore which survived the brickyard itself.

Lester (Jum) Harris and Sam Day, probably the only former employes still in town, like to tell about "the tower head stand." Harris' father John, who died at 95 a few weeks ago, was among the incident's actual witnesses.

"Dad said old Fred Kacera was always boasting that when and if the smokestack was ever finished, he would climb it and stand on his head," said Jum, 86. "Of course nobody believed him, but by God he did it!"

Started in 1891 as the Table Rock Clay Co., the firm built to a peak employment of about 30 in the early 1920s. Up to 35,000 bricks per day were produced for builders as distant as Chicago and Denver.

The plant changed hands several times, and thus probably contributed to its downfall. Tomek's father ran it for a small group of investors prior to one shutdown in 1927. It's last stint was under the Cornell family about 1931.

"There were five beehive kilns also, but we sold those back in the '40s," recalled Tomek, owner of the 49-acre tract. "Even then the brick was worth twice what it had been when originally manufactured."

Lincolnite Scherer said he has razed numerous old buildings, some quite large, to recover used brick. But the Table Rock project is by far his most ambitious one to date.

After cleaning, the material is resold to housing contractors for use as facing or in fireplaces. Scherer said the used brick "commands a premium from people who insist on genuine antiques."

Although Tomek never worked at the plant himself, he felt the giant smokestack had too much sentimental value for the town to surrender it. The structure appears to be perfectly intact.

"The only way I'd let go of that old landmark is if it get struck by lightning," he said. "If that should ever happen, we'll see what the brick is worth by then."

Reports on each county convention will go to the respective heads of each party.

Four NTV Stations Change Call Letters

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—The new owners of the four NTV Network stations have announced immediate changes in the call letters of the four television properties.

KHOL TV, channel 13, licensed in 1953 to Kearney-Holdrege, has become KHGI TV. The initials are those of Kearney, Hastings and Grand Island, the three major areas served by the station.

KHPL TV, channel 6, Hayes Center, has become KWNB TV. The call letters represent Western Nebraska Television, defining the large area served by the station.

KHTL TV, channel 4, Superior, has become KSNB TV. The call letters represent the Kansas-Nebraska area served by the station.

KHQL TV, channel 8, Albion-Columbus-Norfolk, has become KCNA TV, with the call letters representing those three cities.

NTV Executive Vice President and General Manager James Johnson said the network plans complete renovation of the NTV studios, the purchase of new equipment and the addition of new employes in the near future.

Johnson also announced the appointment of Linda Johnson as community relations director for the network. She formerly served as a secretary for the stations.

The network was officially transferred from the Bi-States Co. to NTV Enterprises, Inc., last Friday. Officers of the new company are John Payne, president; John Crowley, vice president; Alan Oldfather, treasurer, and Charles Oldfather, secretary.

Payne is manager of Payne-Larson Furniture in Kearney, Crowley is president of Geyerman's, Inc., of Hastings, Alan Oldfather is president of the First National Bank of Kearney and Charles Oldfather is a Lincoln attorney.

Ryan Says Spending Is Within Limit

Tom Ryan, coordinator for the Exon-Whelan campaign, Wednesday said primary election expenditures by the Democratic team did not exceed limits proposed by Gov. J. James Exon in a legislative bill.

Republican National Committeewoman Pat Smith of Lincoln had suggested that the near $68,000 in campaign expenditures had exceeded limits in a bill which Exon had proposed to the Unicameral.

The proposal would have limited gubernatorial candidates to $50,000 in primary campaign spending, and placed a similar $50,000 primary spending lid on candidates for lieutenant governor, Ryan said.

Thus, the total limit for a governor-lieutenant governor team would have been $100,000, he said.

"Evidently, you have been given incorrect information in regard to this bill and I hope that the information enclosed will allow you to correct the error in your Tuesday statement," Ryan wrote Mrs. Smith.

Hastings attorney Gerald Whelan was nominated for lieutenant governor as a teammate for Exon.

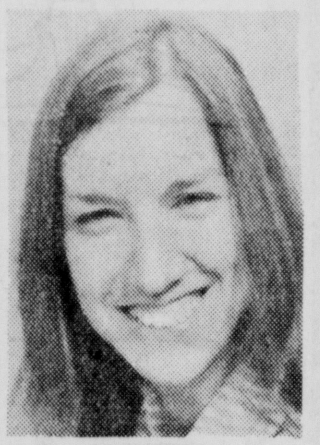
Fulbright Scholar Marian Cast Plans Nutrition Survey In Morrocan Village



Marian Cast

The Kingdom of Morocco, with its rugged mountains and bustling Casablanca, sounds like an exciting place to visit — even if you've been there before.

One of the five University of Nebraska-Lincoln students who received a Fulbright-Hays scholarship for overseas study is Marian Cast, daughter of Mrs. Lois Cast of Beaver Crossing.

She will complete a nutrition survey with teen-agers in the same Moroccan village where she worked during her term with the Peace Corps from 1965-67. The full details of the study have not been worked out yet, she said, but it might examine the rapid growth rate of teen-agers and their nutrition. She added that a similar study is being conducted in the UN-L food and nutrition department with adolescent boys. Diet records of the Moroccan teen-agers and the Nebraska teens may be compared, she said.

Ms. Cast received her B.S. degree in home economics education from UN-L in 1965, but wanted to do something different with her background after talking with a friend who was disillusioned with teaching. So, she joined the Peace Corps. In Morocco, she taught sewing and patternmaking to teen-agers and young mothers, and also headed a nursery school for infants. Because the women didn't understand mathematics, she showed them how to use string to make measurements for sewing.

To prepare for possible language difficulties, she studied Arabic for three months.

When she returned to Nebraska, she was an extension agent in Boone and Nance counties for 18 months. While she was presenting a talk on her work in Morocco, a woman asked her if she would like to teach in Turkey. The native Nebraskan jumped at the chance, and taught home economics and served as dormitory director in a girls' school in Izmir, Turkey, for three years.

She will leave for Morocco in September and study there until May. She will complete her thesis for a masters of science degree during the summer of 1975.

Omaha's Council Ponders New State Office Building

Omaha (AP) — Omaha city councilmen were told Tuesday that their opinions would carry heavy weight in the decision on the location of a state office building.

State officials, including Sens. John Cavanaugh and Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, met with the council and Mayor Edward Zorinsky to discuss implementation of a bill which calls for up to $8 million to be spent for a state office building in Omaha.

The council instructed City Atty. Herbert Fitle to meet with Stan Matzke, director of the State Department of Administrative Services, to lay the groundwork for issuing of bonds.

By law, the state can't issue bonds for the building, so the bill calls for the city to issue them, with the state leasing the building from the city and paying off the bonds.

Officials said the city incurs no financial risk and its credit isn't used.

Matzke and the State Building Commission will formally set the location for the building. No sites were discussed Tuesday.

Cold Front Triggers Hail, Heavy Rains, High Winds

A cold front moving eastward across Nebraska late Wednesday triggered severe, heavy thunderstorms, topped by 3.20 inches of rain and considerable hail at Norfolk.

Power outages due to lightning were also reported in the Norfolk area.

A flash flood warning was issued in the Norfolk and Madison areas, where water covered some streets and highways in low spots as small streams and creeks filled.

Lexington received 1½ inches of rain in about 20 minutes and there were high winds and hail at nearby Johnson Lake.

Earlier Wednesday, strong winds caused structural damage at the Sperry-New Holland manufacturing plant being built south of Lexington.

Many central Nebraska points reported high winds, heavy rain and/or hail, including Aurora, Hastings, Amherst, Blue Hill, Wolbach, Pleasanton, Burwell, Ansley and Ericson. At Franklin, observers reported 2½ inches of rain in a 20-minute span.

Hail up to golfball size broke windows south of Ayr, where strong winds moved irrigation pipes on the ground.

Funnel clouds were sighted around Red Cloud, Grand Island and Hastings. There were no reports of twisters touching the ground.

At Red Cloud, observers said strong winds damaged trees and ripped television antennas from roofs. Ravenna has 1¼ inches of rain in about a half hour, accompanied by strong winds.

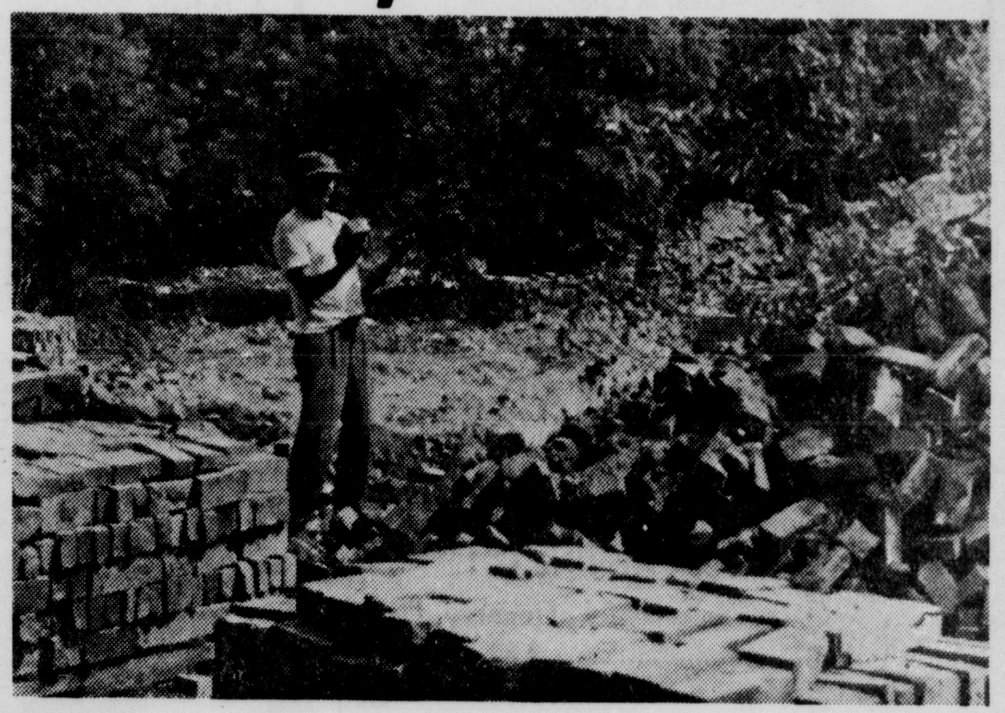
Clay Hills Suddenly Turn To Gold

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau



TOMEK . . . looks over brickyard that has become a goldmine.

Table Rock — Joe Tomek had always known them thar hills were full of clay, but he had no idea it would turn to gold.

For nearly 50 years the old Table Rock Brick and Tile Co. had been only weed-covered remains and a worry that some visiting youngster might get hurt. Then a few weeks ago, a "city man from Lincoln" came knocking at the owner's door.

Tomek was admittedly surprised to learn that the used brick — sold new for $5 per 1,000 way back when — is now worth several times that figure. Came a little dickering and the abandoned brickyard was headed for salvage and use in some of Lincoln's swankiest new homes.

"I never realized there was such a demand or the place wouldn't have laid idle all this time," said Tomek, whose father, Joe W., had operated the business shortly before its 1931 demise. "A few thousand dollars will come in handy some rainy day."

With an estimated half million good bricks to be hauled out, a crew from the Max Scherer Construction Co. of Lincoln probably will be at the job for months. Bulldozing began a few days ago on the old "continuous kiln" from which most of the material will come.

Its walls five feet thick, the tunnel-like kiln was a circular structure 300 feet in circumference. The 12 chamber openings accommodated several hundred thousand bricks at a time for firing.

According to Tomek, the kiln was called "continuous" because of the system of filling and sealing each chamber in order. By the time a crew had spent perhaps two weeks working around the circle, the first chamber's brick was cured and ready for removal.

Also to be razed are two smokestacks at least 40 feet high. Tomek, a bachelor with considerable land holdings, rejected an offer for still another smokestack which had been a community landmark for some five decades.

That imposing 105-footer, denoting the site a half mile south of the Pawnee County town, towers well above a heavy overgrowth of surrounding trees. It naturally has figured in its share of lore which survived the brickyard itself.

Lester (Jum) Harris and Sam Day, probably the only former employes still in town, like to tell about "the tower head stand." Harris' father John, who died at 95 a few weeks ago, was among the incident's actual witnesses.

"Dad said old Fred Kucera was always boasting that when and if the smokestack was ever finished, he would climb it and stand on his head," said Jum, 66. "Of course nobody believed him, but by God he did it!"

Started in 1891 as the Table Rock Clay Co., the firm built to a peak employment of about 30 in the early 1920s. Up to 35,000 bricks per day were produced for builders as distant as Chicago and Denver.

The plant changed hands several times, and this probably contributed to its downfall. Tomek's father ran it for a small group of investors prior to one shutdown in 1927. It's last stint was under the Cornell family about 1931.

"There were five beehive kilns also, but we sold those back in the '40s," recalled Tomek, owner of the 49-acre tract. "Even then the brick was worth twice what it had been when originally manufactured."

Lincolnite Scherer said he has razed numerous old buildings, some quite large, to recover used brick. But the Table Rock project is by far his most ambitious one to date.

After cleaning, the material is resold to housing contractors for use as facing or in fireplaces. Scherer said the used brick "commands a premium from people who insist on genuine antiques."

Although Tomek never worked at the plant himself, he felt the giant smokestack had too much sentimental value for the town to surrender it. The structure appears to be perfectly intact.

"The only way I'd let go of that old landmark is if it get struck by lightning," he said. "If that should ever happen, we'll see what the brick is worth by then."

Car Engine Fire Potential Found

In '65, '66 Buicks, Chevies

Washington (AP) — The Department of Transportation said Wednesday it had found safety problems that could cause engine fires in Chevrolets and Buicks and tire damage or blowouts in some Ford Pinto station wagons.

The department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said engine fires could occur on 1965 and 1966 Chevrolets and 1966 Bucks that are equipped with the Rochester Quadrajet Carburetor.

It said tire problems could occur on 1972 and some 1973 model Ford Pinto station wagons.

Some 200,000 cars originally were equipped with the Quadrajet carburetor, the agency said. The tire problem could affect 135,000 Ford Pinto station wagons.

The carburetor defect involves a press-fit metal plug which, if it drops out of place on the intake side of the carburetor, leaves a half-inch opening through which raw gasoline may be sprayed onto the auto engine.

The plugged opening serves no operating purpose, NHTSA said, but is necessary for the assembly of the caburetor unit. It said the manufacturer failed to provide any fail-safe means of keeping the metal plug in place. Engine fires have resulted in a majority of all such carburetor failures reported to the agency.

NHTSA said its finding of defect in the carburetors was initial. It said it would make a final ruling after it meets with General Motors, manufacturer of the automobiles, on July 9. That meeting was called to allow GM to present views or evidence opposing the initial ruling.

The problem with the Ford Pintos involves a metal projection which extends over one-half inch into the rear wheel cavity and is capable of contacting and damaging the inside sidewalls of the rear tires, NHTSA said.

The tab is found in all 1972 Pinto station wagons and on all 1973 Pinto wagons built before Oct. 25, 1972, the agency said. Wagons built after that date have the projection bent down and welded.

The agency said the tabs, used by Ford as a means of positioning upper and lower body units in the vehicle assembly process, can be easily bent down.

The agency said road tests had shown the tabs could inflict serious tire damage when A70-13 size tires, which are offered by Ford as a buyer-option, are used. But it also said it had found bent tabs on 1972-73 Pinto wagons inspected. The bent tabs, it said, were an indication that potentially dangerous contact between the rear tires and metal tabs may frequently occur regardless of the tire size.

France Cautions Britain Not To Expect Too Much

©The New York Times

Paris — The new French government cautioned Britain Wednesday against expecting too much from negotiations that have just begun to improve Common Market entry terms and reasserted France's attachment to the Market, its principles and to the "vocation of creating a united Europe."

In the major policy statement Premier Jacques Chirac outlined general foreign and domestic objectives of the nine-day-old government of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and took an especially tough stand against British demands to change some rules of the Common Market to reduce the costs of membership.

The demands, he said a day after they were presented in detail by British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan in Luxembourg, were "irreconcilable" with the fundamental objectives of the community and the "legitimate interests" of the eight other community.

The foreign ministers of the member countries agreed Tuesday to an examination of the merits of the British case by the organization's executive authority.

The British want a reduction in their budget contributions, and are also seeking changes in the workings of the Market's farm policy, the treatment of commonwealth and developing countries and the formulation of industrial and regional policies.

Britain, Ireland and Denmark joined the community Jan. 1, 1973. The other six members are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The British had threatened withdrawal if their demands were not met, but this threat was considerably toned down in what was considered a relatively conciliatory statement by Callaghan.

"As far as we can judge," Chirac told the National Assembly, (the British demands) do not coincide either with the interests of the British in that one day they should again leave a Europe that welcomed them with such warmth and friendship."

For France and her partners, Chirac declared, "The construction of Europe constitutes the very underpinnings of real prosperity and power in the world today."

The premier's statement, read and approved by Giscard d'Estaing, was the clearest yet by the new government on its thinking about Europe.

The warning to the four-month-old Labor government about expectations from Common Market renegotiations came after a meeting last Friday and Saturday by Giscard d'Estaing and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany. The two leaders said they had come to general understandings on European and world problems, giving rise to speculation that a new French-German partnership is in the building stage.

Analysts said this development tended to tilt the power structure in Europe against the British and to make it more difficult for their Common Market demands to be met.

House Kills Sugar Subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House killed the 40-year-old government subsidy to the sugar industry Wednesday night rather than approve a bill which opponents said would have guaranteed a retail price increase.

However, after the 209-175 vote, a chief proponent of the bill said the retail price would go up anyway.

The subsidy program had been providing $90 million a year to U.S. sugar growers.

Opponents of the bill argued that it contained a formula which would have boosted the retail price of sugar by at least a half-cent per pound over the highest price allowed under the present Sugar Act.

The subsidies for sugar, which is in short supply worldwide, would end in July 1975 when the current act expires. They were designed to encourage production and it was not clear what impact their end would have on the retail price.

Chief House proponents of the bill said they would make no effort to resurrect the legislation. The Senate could originate its own sugar bill, but the Senate is barred by the Constitution from originating taxes. The current sugar legislation includes several excise taxes on domestic refined sugar which raise about $115 million in revenue.

So far, there is no Senate sugar bill nor any indication that there will be one.

The vote was 209 to 175.

The vote followed more than seven hours of debate during which the bill was seriously weakened by amendments. One of the amendments would have discontinued federal subsidies if sugar prices remained at the present high level.

Opposition to the bill was lead by Republican Reps. Peter Peyser of New York and Paul Findley of Illinois.

Peyser charged as debate opened that the sugar program, established during the Depression to help the industry survive, was now "making the taxpayer and the consumer damn unhappy."

"The bill speaks of reform, but in reality, it contains no reform," said Peyser. He said the object of the program was to stabilize domestic sugar prices, but that it had failed to do so.

An adjustment to a sugar price objective formula, proposed in the bill, would have significantly raised the price of sugar to consumers, said Peyser. The formula is used by the Agriculture Department to determine the price it believes sugar should sell at.

Nebraska Congressmen Vote To Retain Subsidy

Washington (AP) — Nebraska's three Republican congressmen — Charles Thone. Dave Martin and John Y. McCollister — voted to continue the sugar subsidy, but the House killed it, 209-175.

Nixon Brothers Skip Second Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's two brothers appeared before staff investigators of the Senate Watergate Committee Wednesday and declined to answer some questions put to them, Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., reported.

The brothers, F. Donald Nixon and Edward Nixon, failed to appear at a second session, said Talmadge.

Their lawyer, Los Angeles attorney Elmer Stone, has filed a motion to quash a committee subpoena against them, Talmadge said.

"We're in full compliance with the subpoena," Stone said in telling reporters his clients have testified extensively on previous occasions.

Talmadge said the matter will be reported to the full committee at its next meeting.

He said he did not know if staff members will recommend that they be held in contempt.

He said a disagreement exists between Stone and the staff over the terms of the subpoena.

Stone, who described himself as a life-long friend of the Nixon family, said the brothers arrived in Washington Monday night and had not, to his knowledge, seen or communicated with the President.

He said they might have a statement on the situation in the next few days.

Asked if his clients would reappear before the committee staff, he said, "That is yet to be settled."

Stone did not say why his clients were not present for the afternoon session.

Stone and committee staff members left the interrogation room and visited Talmadge in his Senate office.

Talmadge said he had been asked by the staff to make an official determination that the two Nixon brothers were not present.

The subpoenas for the Nixon brothers were issued in connection with a probe of money given by billionaire Howard Hughes to C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

House Votes No Compromise On Anti-School Busing Stand

Washington (AP) — The House has voted not to compromise its firm stand against school busing in negotiations with the Senate.

The action Wednesday clouds the future of a bill that would provide $21 billion in federal aid to elementary and secondary schools.

The Senate had passed a similar measure with less stringent busing provisions. Before agreeing to a conference with the Senate to reconcile the two bills, the House voted 270 to 103 to instruct its conferees to stick to the House language on busing.

The House provision spells out a list of measures that must be taken against segregation before busing may be continued. It restricts the power of federal courts to order busing beyond the closest or next-closest school and directs that all prior court orders may be reopened to conform with the new guidelines.

Nebraska Republican Reps. Dave Martin, Charles Thone and John Y. McCollister all voted for the measure.

Federal Spending May Be Cut

Williamsburg, Va. (UPI) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns said Wednesday the administration may soon announce a new plan to cut federal spending as part of a stepped-up campaign to bring inflation under control.

Burns also said he expected the economy to rebound from its first quarter slump and register "a small plus" growth rate in the current April-June quarter.

In a news conference following a closed meeting with U.S. and foreign bankers and financial leaders, Burns struck a somewhat more optimistic note than in a commencement speech last week in which he portrayed the economy as in deep trouble.

"I would not be surprised if the administration comes forward with some definite plan to curb expenditures and to finally get better control over our federal budget," he said.

Burns also indicated that a Democratic-sponsored plan to reduce taxes in order to boost consumer spending probably is dead. "I don't think that proposal for a tax cut is going anywhere in Congress," he said.

Up to now, Budget Director Roy Ash has insisted that all possible fat has been trimmed from the fiscal 1975 budget, now estimated to show a deficit of about $11 billion.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, however, has been pressing for further spending cuts as part of the government's contribution to curbing the soaring cost of living and Burns' comments indicated Simon's view may have carried the day.

Burns said estimating the growth rate of the economy is especially difficult because of distorting effects of inflation on the value of inventories. But he ventured that there would be a small increase in economic growth when the preliminary gross national product figures for the second quarter are announced next month.

"I would expect a small plus. That's my best guess," he said.

Discovering 'Curtains To Heaven'

write on

By BLYTHE AYNE

Minute got into her flannel pajamas. Soon it would be time for pique pajamas sheer as moon light. Surely it would soon be time — there were spring-summer feelings in the air — the beginnings of green, pale blue southern breezes, a few tulips red as solemn oathe.

"Ready for bed?" her mother asked.

"Yes. I scrubbed my face until my nose is shiny." Minute's mother came into the bathroom. "I like it when my nose is shiny."

"Do you now?"

"Yes — it means I'm really clean. I think it looks nice."

"You won't like it when you get older."

"Oh?" What strange thing, she wondered, would happen to make her not want her face to look clean? "Why?"

"You'll understand when you get there. You'll put powder on it so it won't shine."

"But why?"

"So it won't look like it sticks out."

"But noses do stick out."

"That's true. To bed now. You keep dawdling around and you'll be up when your father gets home." Minute's father worked second shift for the CB&Q railroad.

"Oh — can I, can I? Please? Please, please, please!"

"And have him be mad at you?"

"He wouldn't be if you let me stay up."

"No — he'd be mad at me instead. And you've got things to do tomorrow. So — to bed."

Minute and her mother sat in the crook of the winding stairway under the little stained glass window. Minute said her prayers, then kissed her mother good-night and went upstairs to bed.

She was not allowed to read in bed, and she didn't like disobeying her mother, but her aversion to lying awake in the dark and her compulsion to read were stronger forces . . . she kept a flashlight under her pillow.

Minute held her flashlight between cheek and shoulder, and held up the blankets with one hand, her book with the other until her arms fell asleep. Then she would repeat the process on her other side until, finally, the story would go off in dancing words that had no sense, until the characters took on unintelligible forms of speech. Then, if she were lucky, she would remember to turn off her flashlight before she pursued the story into her dreams.

"Hey, Half-Pint — what are you doing? Come on, wake up."

Minute opened her eyes, it was still dark. Her father was shaking her. "I'm dreaming. I was — I don't remember. Am I awake now?"

"I doubt it. Come on, get out of bed."

"Why? What's wrong?"

"Nothing — come on, put on a jacket."

She slipped on her tennis shoes and her red leather jacket with the flappys. The house was perfectly still. Only the kitchen light was on and before they went outside her father turned it off. Her father was quiet, the night air was still. She couldn't imagine what was wrong or why they were sneaking off in the middle of the night, just the two of them.

Outside, Minute's father took her out behind the barn and then he pointed to the sky. "Now watch there for a while."

Minute stared intently. This was mysterious and frightening. What was going to happen in the sky? She was shivering. And while she watched there came a wave of undulating color, high in the sky, down to the earth's surface.

"Oh!" She was terrified.

"Isn't it beautiful?"

"Oh Daddy, what is it?"

"Aurora borealis. Curtains to heaven."

"Curtains to heaven?"

"Watch."

While they watched the colors moved and changed; white, lavendar, pink. Curtains to heaven, Minute thought. What if they open? What if the curtains shove aside and there's heaven? I won't be able to stand it. It was beautiful but so awesome that she felt she could not defend herself, so vast that there was nowhere to hide. And yet, as she watched, the colors became more and more faint. Then there was nothing left of them at all, the sky returned to its cavernous darkness, the stars resumed their prominence.

"Those were the northern lights," her father explained to her as they walked back toward the house. "You don't see them much here. They're caused by some kind of electrical charge set off at the pole. Wasn't it beautiful?"

"Yes." Minute felt important — her father had awakened her in the middle of the night to share something with her, something he would have otherwise kept to himself. "I never saw colors like that. Even lightening is different."

"Are you glad I woke you up?"

"Oh yes!"

"I thought you seemed a bit frightened."

"Not really — I just didn't know what to think."

The screen door hinge whined sadly when they opened it. The skinny moon hung like a rag in a leafless branch.

"Well, back to bed with you now, got a garden to hoe tomorrow."

"O.K. Good-night Daddy."

"Good-night Half-Pint.

June 16 To Honor 65 Million Fathers

When Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, now 92, conceived of Father's Day in 1910, the United States had a total population of less than 92,000,000 and there were only about 28,000,000 fathers.

Today, with a population of nearly 210,000,000, the whole country will pause on Sunday, June 16, to honor its more than 65,000,000 fathers.

The idea of honoring all fathers came to Mrs. Dodd, who felt a deep debt of gratitude to her own father who had so devotedly dedicated his life to raising of his own motherless family.

Ignorance Is State Of Meaning

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the socially active university professor with a Ph.D. who wasn't sure of what R.S.V.P. meant until he saw it in your column: You replied "Ignorance is simply the absence of knowledge which is no crime. We are all ignorant, only on different subjects."

Abby, ignorance is "not knowing something we should know." Nescience is "not knowing something one would have no reasonable expectation of knowing."

Your not knowing the distinction between "ignorance" and "nescience" is nescience on your part. The professor's not knowing the meaning of R.S.V.P. is ignorance on his part.

P.J.R: WORD FREAK

DEAR FREAK: Since words are my tools, I felt ignorant not knowing the meaning of the word "nescience." Then I polled three newspaper editors, two lawyers, a psychiatrist, the heads of the English department in three of our leading universities, a world famous novelist, a United States Supreme Court Justice, and an expert who writes a syndicated column on words, and not ONE of them had ever heard of the word "nescience." So, now I feel more nescient than ignorant.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl, and my problem involves my psychiatrist. I trusted him completely and told him things I never in a million years would tell my mother, because he led me to believe that everything I told him would be held in the strictest of confidence.

Can you imagine how I felt when I overheard my mother telling a relative on the phone some of the things I had told my psychiatrist? I can't tell you how this upset me!

In high school I stayed away from counselors, teachers, shrinks, etc., in order to avoid this.

When I saw my psychiatrist, I asked him why he did this to me. At first he denied it, then he said that my mother had become "concerned" about me, so he told her everything. Abby, I thought I could trust him, and he betrayed me!

What is the law concerning a doctor's keeping information confidential? He said he had a right to talk to my mother without my permission. Did he? I am not a minor.

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: Your doctor has committed a breach of ethics, and you would be perfectly justified in reporting him to the Ethics Committee of your local county medical society and/or psychiatric society. I suggest you do just that.

Discovering 'Curtains To Heaven'

write On

By BLYTHE AYNE

Minute got into her flannel pajamas. Soon it would be time for pique pajamas sheer as moon light. Surely it would soon be time — there were spring-summer feelings in the air — the beginnings of green, pale blue southern breezes, a few tulips red as solemn oathe.

"Ready for bed?" her mother asked.

"Yes. I scrubbed my face until my nose is shiny." Minute's mother came into the bathroom. "I like it when my nose is shiny."

"Do you now?"

"Yes — it means I'm really clean. I think it looks nice."

"You won't like it when you get older."

"Oh?" What strange thing, she wondered, would happen to make her not want her face to look clean? "Why?"

"You'll understand when you get there. You'll put powder on it so it won't shine."

"But why?"

"So it won't look like it sticks out."

"But noses do stick out."

"That's true. To bed now. You keep dawdling around and you'll be up when your father gets home." Minute's father worked second shift for the CB&Q railroad.

"Oh — can I, can I? Please? Please, please, please!"

"And have him be mad at you?"

"He wouldn't be if you let me stay up."

"No — he'd be mad at me instead. And you've got things to do tomorrow. So — to bed."

Minute and her mother sat in the crook of the winding stairway under the little stained glass window. Minute said her prayers, then kissed her mother good-night and went upstairs to bed.

She was not allowed to read in bed, and she didn't like disobeying her mother, but her aversion to lying awake in the dark and her compulsion to read were stronger forces . . . she kept a flashlight under her pillow.

Minute held her flashlight between cheek and shoulder, and held up the blankets with one hand, her book with the other until her arms fell asleep. Then she would repeat the process on her other side until, finally, the story would go off in dancing words that had no sense, until the characters took on unintelligible forms of speech. Then, if she were lucky, she would remember to turn off her flashlight before she pursued the story into her dreams.

"Hey, Half-Pint — what are you doing? Come on, wake up."

Minute opened her eyes, it was still dark. Her father was shaking her. "I'm dreaming. I was — I don't remember. Am I awake now?"

"I doubt it. Come on, get out of bed."

"Why? What's wrong?"

"Nothing — come on, put on a jacket."

She slipped on her tennis shoes and her red leather jacket with the flappys. The house was perfectly still. Only the kitchen light was on and before they went outside her father turned it off. Her father was quiet, the night air was still. She couldn't imagine what was wrong or why they were sneaking off in the middle of the night, just the two of them.

Outside, Minute's father took her out behind the barn and then he pointed to the sky. "Now watch there for a while."

Minute stared intently. This was mysterious and frightening. What was going to happen in the sky? She was shivering. And while she watched there came a wave of undulating color, high in the sky, down to the earth's surface.

"Oh!" She was terrified.

"Isn't it beautiful?"

"Oh Daddy, what is it?"

"Aurora borealis. Curtains to heaven."

"Curtains to heaven?"

"Watch."

While they watched the colors moved and changed; white, lavendar, pink. Curtains to heaven, Minute thought. What if they open? What if the curtains shove aside and there's heaven? I won't be able to stand it. It was beautiful but so awesome that she felt she could not defend herself, so vast that there was nowhere to hide. And yet, as she watched, the colors became more and more faint. Then there was nothing left of them at all, the sky returned to its cavernous darkness, the stars resumed their prominence.

"Those were the northern lights," her father explained to her as they walked back toward the house. "You don't see them much here. They're caused by some kind of electrical charge set off at the pole. Wasn't it beautiful?"

"Yes." Minute felt important — her father had awakened her in the middle of the night to share something with her, something he would have otherwise kept to himself. "I never saw colors like that. Even lightening is different."

"Are you glad I woke you up?"

"Oh yes!"

"I thought you seemed a bit frightened."

"Not really — I just didn't know what to think."

The screen door hinge whined sadly when they opened it. The skinny moon hung like a rag in a leafless branch.

"Well, back to bed with you now, got a garden to hoe tomorrow."

"O.K. Good-night Daddy."

"Good-night Half-Pint.

June 16 To Honor 65 Million Fathers

When Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, now 92, conceived of Father's Day in 1910, the United States had a total population of less than 92,000,000 and there were only about 28,000,000 fathers.

Today, with a population of nearly 210,000,000, the whole country will pause on Sunday, June 16, to honor its more than 65,000,000 fathers.

The idea of honoring all fathers came to Mrs. Dodd, who felt a deep debt of gratitude to her own father who had so devotedly dedicated his life to raising of his own motherless family.

Ignorance Is State Of Meaning

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the socially active university professor with a Ph.D. who wasn't sure of what R.S.V.P. meant until he saw it in your column: You replied "Ignorance is simply the absence of knowledge which is no crime. We are all ignorant, only on different subjects."

Abby, ignorance is "not knowing something we should know." Nescience is "not knowing something one would have no reasonable expectation of knowing."

Your not knowing the distinction between "ignorance" and "nescience" is nescience on your part. The professor's not knowing the meaning of R.S.V.P. is ignorance on his part.

P.J.R: WORD FREAK

DEAR FREAK: Since words are my tools, I felt ignorant not knowing the meaning of the word "nescience." Then I polled three newspaper editors, two lawyers, a psychiatrist, the heads of the English department in three of our leading universities, a world famous novelist, a United States Supreme Court Justice, and an expert who writes a syndicated column on words, and not ONE of them had ever heard of the word "nescience." So, now I feel more nescient than ignorant.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl, and my problem involves my psychiatrist. I trusted him completely and told him things I never in a million years would tell my mother, because he led me to believe that everything I told him would be held in the strictest of confidence.

Can you imagine how I felt when I overheard my mother telling a relative on the phone some of the things I had told my psychiatrist? I can't tell you how this upset me!

In high school I stayed away from counselors, teachers, shrinks, etc., in order to avoid this.

When I saw my psychiatrist, I asked him why he did this to me. At first he denied it, then he said that my mother had become "concerned" about me, so he told her everything. Abby, I thought I could trust him, and he betrayed me!

What is the law concerning a doctor's keeping information confidential? He said he had a right to talk to my mother without my permission. Did he? I am not a minor.

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: Your doctor has committed a breach of ethics, and you would be perfectly justified in reporting him to the Ethics Committee of your local county medical society and/or psychiatric society. I suggest you do just that.

Dear Mr. Becker: It is a long time since I wrote you, but you may recall that on several occasions I have sent you hands to fortify my contention that I am the greatest bridge player in the world!

It is true that my name is not inscribed on any trophies emblematic of national or world supremacy, but it is nonetheless a fact that no player on earth can equal or excel my extraordinary feats at the bridge table. The only trouble is that all my wonderful bids and plays occur while I am asleep, the plain unvarnished truth being that when I am awake I am a very ordinary and erratic player.

As proof of my prowess while I am in the Land of Nod, I cite this hand which I played last night. I was West and had to lead against four hearts.

It is hard to imagine any way of defeating the contract, but I accomplished the feat without even batting an eyelash. I did not fall into the trap of leading the jack of spades, which most players would have done. Instead, I led the queen of clubs!

Now imagine, if you will, being in declarer's shoes at this moment. He naturally thought I had the Q-J, so he ducked in dummy. When I then led the deuce he ducked again, reasoning that with the ten in his own hand East would have to win with the ace.

But my partner won with the jack and returned a club which I took with the ace.

I now administered the coup de grace by leading the five of clubs. South discarded a diamond from dummy and my partner, bless him, trumped with the jack. As a result, declarer lost a trump trick and went down one. Cordially yours, John E. Doe.

Men Make (And Get) Waves In Beauty Salons

New York — Question: What's making waves in beauty salons? Answer: Males getting permanent waves! The perm trend is nationwide, according to Rod Harmon of Crimpers Salons where these pictures were made. Harmon estimates 12% of the past year's perms were for men and the percentage is on the way up. Here, Marie Louise Barron wraps Rocco Renzi's hair in curlers. Then she combs out his curly locks.

Tennis Star Gives Views On Women, Sports

If it were up to tennis superstar Billie Jean King, children would be taught to think of sports in terms of play rather than competition, girls would be able to play football and basketball with boys if they wanted to, and someone heading for a career as an athlete wouldn't have to worry about being a top student too.

The top-ranked woman player recalls the reason she went into tennis was that her mother wouldn't let her play contact sports with boys anymore, in an interview published in a recent issue of "Seventeen" Magazine. "I wanted to make a career out of sport and I didn't know what was good for a woman,". she says.

"My dad said: 'Golf, tennis or swimming.' Mom always said, 'Be a lady!' If I had been a boy it would have been the greatest thing in the world for me to be an athlete. I think it should be the same for girls. It's really society's problem. I don't think there's any conflict, except in the minds of the persons involved."

As for playing contact sports with boys, Ms. King believes, "The ones who want to go out and get knocked on their you-know-whats — that's their privilege. Eventually you're going to see more and more mixed groups. But in the beginning, we can't have women simply joining men's teams.

Not Sex Or Money, But Games, Drive Couples Apart

By Arthur J. Snider

Chicago — They come to the marriage counsel because of fights over children, money, sex or in-laws. But these grounds are only a smokescreen for the games couples are playing.

Behind most marital disputes is the unconscious ongoing struggle between the two for domination and personal prestige.

That is the finding of two Chicago psychologists, Gerald J. Mozdzierz and Thomas J. Lottman.

The most popular game is "I'm right; you're wrong." When enacted before the therapist, it goes something like this:

Wife: "He was drunk at the party last night and made a fool of himslef."

Husband: "I was not durnk and I didn't make a fool of myself; I simply cracked a few jokes."

Wife: "Those off-color jokes you think are so funny."

Husband: "Everyone was laughing. You wouldn't know a good joke if it hit you over the head."

Wife: "I know how to laugh at jokes that aren't sick!

Husband: (excited voice) "Sick?"

Wife: "You see doctor, isn't it ridiculous the way he won't admit he's wrong?"

Husband: "Well you can see how she exaggerates everything, can't you, doctor?"

"The game is a tenacious battle to avoid being proven wrong" explains Mozdzierz, a clinical psychologist in the Hines Va Hospital mental hygiene clinic, and Lottman, a psychologist at Loyola University.

"Even when declared the 'loser' by a third person who is brought in as a referee, whether he is a therapist, relative, child or neighbor, he won't give in. While humiliated, he is ready to start a new game that he 'can't lose.' "

Some of the other games played are:

—"Pay Attention."

This game is often a one-sided nagging, affair. Its purposes is to get a reaction from the other. It is a game of desperation, for being ignored — to a neurotic, very sensitive person — is equivalent to not existing.

If nagging fails to evoke response, the pay-attention player may revert to negative behavior and become so silent the spouse becomes troubled. Or he may adopt habits that annoy the spouse. He tries to whip up a shouting match.

— "I don't Want To Discuss It!"

This is the reciprocal of "pay attention." The spouse conveys the name of the game by showing no irritation at the remarks of the other, disassociates himself by closing his eyes, reading a newspaper or leaving the room.

"The demonstration of disdain in this game immediately places the player in a one-up position," says Mozdzierz. "He carries off the idea that he is too mature, too adult, rational or moral to engage in his spouse's game."

— "This Is War!"

There is nothing subtle in this game," the psychologists point out. "It's attack, counterattack and retaliation, a no-holds-barred verbal slugfest whose goal is to hurt the spouse's feeling more than yours are hurt by name-calling, attacking family — or friends."

—"It's All Your Fault."

The strategy is to strike first to place your partner in a defensive position by blaming the problem on his ineptitude or negligence and conveying the idea that it couldn't remotely be due to any error on your part.

—Where Would You Be Without Me?"

It involves reciting a litany of self-sacrifice for one's mate ("I wash your clothes, fix your meals, raise your kids, lie to your boss when you're too hung over to work . . ." or "If it weren't for me, you'd still be . . .").

—"I've Got A Debit; You've Got A Credit."

Husband: "You decided where we went on vacation last year. This year it's my turn."

Wife: "Yeah, but we stayed in the hotel you wanted and played golf whenever you wanted to. When are we going to do what I want?"

Husband: "We ate at all those foreign restaurants because you like spicy food even though I was half-sick the whole time."

Wife: "Well, we flew 'cause you don't like to drive, even though I wanted to see the country."

"The rules," explains Mozdzierz, "are based on a profound distrust between spouses. You always keep tab of your spouse's activity and never let your spouse know what you are doing.

"Occasionally give in on little matters to accumulate 'TOUS' for something you really want."

It's only after the feuding partners realize they are playing a game that therapy can start, the psychologists note.

'Experience, A Celebration Of Being'

It's the kind of book that proliferates in college bookstores everywhere:

Inside, we note that there will be photographs — black and white: carefully selected to convey visually the philosophical import of the accompanying words.

Several turns-of-the-page later, we encounter the table of contents, which perhaps more than anything else, gives the book away. As we scan the vertical column of chapter titles, we see there will be a section on Death, and one on Institutions, and one on Revolution, and one on Hatred, and, of course, one on Love.

Sound familiar?

Yes, yes, Gibran had a stab at it — as did Bach (Richard), Kavanaugh (James), and countless others. All of them (with the exception of Gibran, who is unfairly included in the above group) trying to create a poetic package whose contents will stir the popular intellect and send it soaring to hitherto unattained (?) heights.

And now, Sirio Esteve has dropped yet another contribution on the ever-growing heap of books included in the genre "Philosophy for the Masses."

And like Gibran (sorry) who had his prophet, and Bach, who had his seagull, Esteve has his — well, his protagonist, who, in "The Experience: A Celebration of Being" (Random House), seems to represent the oneness, the collective soul-stuff of all mankind.

This Chosen/Appointed/Annointed One, comes to The People spouting phrases about the "affirmative trend of all existence," which points towards the eventual construction of a true House of Mankind, in which the inherent oneness of all people will be realized.

And if only those egocentric, avaricious, superficial characters would mend their ways, we could get on with it.

The speaker talks about liberation; simplicity; the evils of institutions; ecology, etc.

And, among the pearls he drops:

"Men who are compelled by need and law to do what they do not wish to do are slaves to the extent to which they do it. . ."

"The ultimate enjoyment of men cannot be less than mankind and the portion of the universe open to mankind."

"On earth, the game of make believe is played in earnest, viciously and with deadly intent behind smiles and honeyed words. Here the dirty deal is dealt out graciously. It is called diplomacy."

Throughout, the message is that "nothing solitary exists." And, eventually, all men will realize that and modify their behavior accordingly.

So much for soaring thoughts.

In addition to taking issue, as many will, with Esteve's fundamental premise, one may fault him for falling into the habit of putting together elaborate phrases which sound impressive, but are in fact meaningless and confusing.

And, for the most part, Esteve's philosophical ramblings lack the poetic insight found in works like Gibran's.

However, some readers will undoubtedly find "The Experience" impressive and elevating.

Probably, many will. Look what happened to Jonathan Livingston . . .

Sew For Children And Save Money

With rising ready-to-wear prices, more mothers are turning to sewing as an economical way to clothe their children.

You don't have to be an expert seamstress to turn out professional looking garments. There are simplified patterns on the market that take you through each sewing stage, step by step. Some patterns are so streamlined you can finish then in hours. There are more complex patterns for the experts.

Budget-minded women don't buy the first fabric they see. They watch for fabric sales, pick up marked-down materials classified as seconds (there's a slight flaw), and stick to easy-care fabrics instead of materials that have to be dry-cleaned.

Read the pattern instructions carefully before you make any fabric purchases. If a swimsuit pattern calls for an unbonded stretchable knit it will be unusuable with any other fabric. You also will need a sewing machine and thread both suitable for stretch knits.

You can personalize the finished item with iron-on transfer patterns, rickrack, lace and stitch-on appliques. Or you can stitch your child's first name on a pocket or collar with your sewing machine.

What are the latest fashions you can sew for your youngster this summer?

For the little ones there are bikinis, hooded coverups, wrap tops, snap-on panty sets and romper suits with big-brimmed bonnets to shield their faces from the sun.

For older girls there are smock tops and dresses, bare-midriff tops over trousers, jumpers and camisole tops.

For the boys, there are zip-front jumpsuits, parkas, shorts and T-shirts geared to be made from terry cloth, duck cotton, seersucker, pique, plisse and stretch fabrics.

Getting Married Getting Costlier

Now is the time for all considerate brides to elope; unless, that is, Dad and Mom never count their pennies.

According to a report published by Business Week magazine, this summer's wedding can cost more than a college education.

Of course, the magazine is not talking about those nice little homey affairs where Aunt Susie bakes the cake and Grandma sews up the dress, and Brother picks the flowers from the garden. "Grand Style" and "Elegant" weddings are what the magazine editors have in mind. For these, they conclude, a wedding for 250 now runs $10,000 to $15,000, while one for 350 can climb to $25,000 — "up 15% to 20% over last year."

Not Sex Or Money, But Games, Drive Couples Apart

By Arthur J. Snider

Chicago — They come to the marriage counsel because of fights over children, money, sex or in-laws. But these grounds are only a smokescreen for the games couples are playing.

Behind most marital disputes is the unconscious ongoing struggle between the two for domination and personal prestige.

That is the finding of two Chicago psychologists, Gerald J. Mozdzierz and Thomas J. Lottman.

The most popular game is "I'm right; you're wrong." When enacted before the therapist, it goes something like this:

Wife: "He was drunk at the party last night and made a fool of himslef."

Husband: "I was not durnk and I didn't make a fool of myself. I simply cracked a few jokes."

Wife: "Those off-color jokes you think are so funny."

Husband: "Everyone was laughing. You wouldn't know a good joke if it hit you over the head."

Wife: "I know how to laugh at jokes that aren't sick!

Husband: (excited voice) "Sick?"

Wife: "You see doctor, isn't it ridiculous the way he won't admit he's wrong?"

Husband: "Well you can see how she exaggerates everything, can't you, doctor?"

"The game is a tenacious battle to avoid being proven wrong" explains Mozdzierz, a clinical psychologist in the Hines Va Hospital mental hygiene clinic, and Lottman, a psychologist at Loyola University.

"Even when declared the 'loser' by a third person who is brought in as a referee, whether he is a therapist, relative, child or neighbor, he won't give in. While humiliated, he is ready to start a new game that he 'can't lose.' "

Some of the other games played are:

—"Pay Attention."

This game is often a one-sided nagging, affair. Its purposes is to get a reaction from the other. It is a game of desperation, for being ignored — to a neurotic, very sensitive person — is equivalent to not existing.

If nagging fails to evoke response, the pay-attention player may revert to negative behavior and become so silent the spouse becomes troubled. Or he may adopt habits that annoy the spouse. He tries to whip up a shouting match.

— "I don't Want To Discuss It!"

This is the reciprocal of "pay attention." The spouse conveys the name of the game by showing no irritation at the remarks of the other, disassociates himself by closing his eyes, reading a newspaper or leaving the room.

"The demonstration of disdain in this game immediately places the player in a one-up position," says Mozdzierz. "He carries off the idea that he is too mature, too adult, rational or moral to engage in his spouse's game."

— "This Is War!"

There is nothing subtle in this game," the psychologists point out. "It's attack, counterattack and retaliation, a no-holds-barred verbal slugfest whose goal is to hurt the spouse's feeling more than yours are hurt by name-calling, attacking family or friends."

—"It's All Your Fault."

The strategy is to strike first to place your partner in a defensive position by blaming the problem on his ineptitude or negligence and conveying the idea that it couldn't remotely be due to any error on your part.

—Where Would You Be Without Me?"

It involves reciting a litany of self-sacrifice for one's mate ("I wash your clothes, fix your meals, raise your kids, lie to your boss when you're too hung over to work . . ." or "If it weren't for me, you'd still be . . .").

—"I've Got A Debit; You've Got A Credit."

Husband: "You decided where we went on vacation last year. This year it's my turn."

Wife: "Yeah, but we stayed in the hotel you wanted and played golf whenever you wanted to. When are we going to do what I want?"

Husband: "We ate at all those foreign restaurants because you like spicy food even though I was half-sick the whole time."

Wife: "Well, we flew 'cause you don't like to drive, even though I wanted to see the country."

"The rules," explains Mozdzierz, "are based on a profound distrust between spouses. You always keep tab of your spouse's activity and never let your spouse know what you are doing.

"Occasionally give in on little matters to accumulate 'TOUS' for something you really want."

It's only after the feuding partners realize they are playing a game that therapy can start, the psychologists note.

Medal Given For Saving Hard Tooter

San Antonio, Tex. (UPI) — The Army has presented Spec. 4 Leonard M. Mutter III, of Chesapeake, Va., the Commendation Medal for saving the life of a fellow bandsman who blew too hard on a horn.

Maj. Gen. Winant Sidle, Army Readiness Region 5 commander, pinned the medal on Mutter's uniform at Ft. Sam Houston in recognition of giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Sgt. Antonio Cardenas last November.

Cardenas is fully recovered and when asked why he fell in a hallway unable to catch his breath, he replied:

"I had just blown too hard and too long practicing on my wind instrument."

Accident Pours Ammonia Cloud Into Classroom

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Workers demolishing a building accidentally snapped a refrigeration pipe Wednesday, sending clouds of toxic ammonia through a nearby parochial school. Eighty-three children were treated at hospitals but none was seriously injured, officials said.

The children from St. Aloysius School suffered inhalation, eye irritation, nausea and dizziness, but most returned to class by early afternoon.

Fire Director John Caufield said the pipe apparently was cut by workers demolishing some buildings and removing tanks at the site of the former P. Ballantine & Sons brewery, which closed last year.

NU Prof May Visit Russia

By The Associated Press

Duane Foote, an associate professor of agronomy and extension agriculturist at the University of Nebraska, may be going to Russia to inspect wheat and feed grain crops.

"As of now, we are still going but we haven't any confirmation from the Russian government," Foote said.

The trip involves three crop experts who are to make an on-the-spot evaluation of crop conditions in the Soviet Union.

In addition to Foote, an agricultural economist from Washington State University and Keith Severin of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's foreign agriculture service will make the trip.

The three will observe grain conditions in the Ukraine, North caucasus and Lower Volga areas of the USSR.

The group hopes to travel by train and auto so they can observe crops and growing conditions.

Visits to several collective and state farms, plus stops at a research institute and agricultural administrative setups are included in the request to the Soviet government.

The visit is part of an exchange of information program on crop conditions, established after the Soviet wheat purchase from the United States last year.

Foundation OKs Grant To NWU's Fund Drive

The Lincoln Foundation executive committee Wednesday approved a $3,000 grant application by Nebraska Wesleyan University (NWU) for its "Decade of Fulfillment."

The $20 million NWU fund drive for improvements began in 1968.

The committee stipulated that the NWU grant will be made over a five-year period, with $400 annually to come from the Hazel Snell Putney fund, and $100 annually from each of two anonymous-D funds.

Williams Memorial

Committee members also approved establishment of the David N. Williams Memorial Fund, contributions to which the foundation will use to help persons seeking an aerospace or aeronautics education.

Williams was captain and chief pilot for Duncan Aviation. He died in a jet plane crash in Lincoln last November. John Frey, Lincoln Foundation executive director, said he received reports that Williams was highly regarded by corporate executives and individuals for whom he piloted charter flights.

Osborne Turned Down

In other business, the committee rejected a request by Nebraska head football coach Tom Osborne to finance part of expenses by the adult chapter f the Foundation of Christian Athletes.

The foundation sponsors the Fellowship of Christian Athletes program in an Estes, Colo., summer camp, for athletes from the five Lincoln high schools.

Osborne reported the cost could range from $5,700 to $6,800, a charge of $100 each for 50 to 60 athletes, and $700 to $800 for group travel.

The executive committee deemed that financial support should be the responsibility of organizations with a more direct interest in the athletes' fellowship program.

Application Denied

The committee also voted to deny accepting a grant application from the NWU Prairie Plains Folklore Society, which is trying to raise $4,000 for 65 participants in the second Folklore Conference and Symposium at NWU in winter 1975.

The Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C., is currently developing plans for an American Folklore Society in Nebraska, in part of a region that includes the Dakotas and Kansas.

Roger L. Welsch, Centennial Fellow at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, submitted the folklore society request.

The Nebraska Bicentennial Committee had asked the Lincoln Foundation if it would accept an application to finance part of $12,500 needed to develop the Lakota (Sioux) creation myth, an environmental music-dance drama.

Composer Richard M. Moore said the drama would be performed six times in Lincoln during 1976, and possibly at outstate Nebraska towns.

Noting that they want to know what other programs the bicentennial committee will attempt to sponsor, Lincoln Foundation executive committee members agreed to consider the Indian drama funding proposal, if submitted.

GOP Nominee Of 3rd District Gets Martin $$

The $29,305 balance in the Martin for Congress Committee will go to the Third District Republican congressional nominee, it was revealed Wednesday.

Congressman Dave Martin is not seeking re-election.

Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell is the apparent winner of the GOP nomination, although Don Blank of McCook has asked for a recount of votes in the tight Republican contest.

Martin had announced some time ago that the money in his fund would go to Republican candidates.

The Martin committee decided to give all of it to Mrs. Smith, assuming she is the official winner of the primary election contest, Martin said.

Waverly Band Raises $5,000 Toward Canada Contest Trip

The Waverly High School Viking Band has raised $5,000 toward an $8,000 goal to allow 74 band members to attend the Manisphere International Band Competition in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, June 20-25.

Each band member is working to raise $90 through raffles, bake sales and school spirit items. Contributions from individuals and the Waverly Band Booster Club will make up the deficit, Maag said.

Band members plan to continue fund-raising activities, including two concerts and an ice cream social in School District 145.

Foundation OKs Grant To NWU's Fund Drive

The Lincoln Foundation executive committee Wednesday approved a $3,000 grant application by Nebraska Wesleyan University (NWU) for its "Decade of Fulfillment."

The $20 million NWU fund drive for improvements began in 1968.

The committee stipulated that the NWU grant will be made over a five-year period, with $400 annually to come from the Hazel Snell Putney fund, and $100 annually from each of two anonymous-D funds.

Williams Memorial

Committee members also approved establishment of the David N. Williams Memorial Fund, contributions to which the foundation will use to help persons seeking an aerospace or aeronautics education.

Williams was captain and chief pilot for Duncan Aviation. He died in a jet plane crash in Lincoln last November. John Frey, Lincoln Foundation executive director, said he received reports that Williams was highly regarded by corporate executives and individuals for whom he piloted charter flights.

Osborne Turned Down

In other business, the committee rejected a request by Nebraska head football coach Tom Osborne to finance part of expenses by the adult chapter f the Foundation of Christian Athletes.

The foundation sponsors the Fellowship of Christian Athletes program in an Estes, Colo., summer camp, for athletes from the five Lincoln high schools.

Osborne reported the cost could range from $5,700 to $6,800, a charge of $100 each for 50 to 60 athletes, and $700 to $800 for group travel.

The executive committee deemed that financial support should be the responsibility of organizations with a more direct interest in the athletes' fellowship program.

Application Denied

The committee also voted to deny accepting a grant application from the NWU Prairie Plains Folklore Society, which is trying to raise $4,000 for 65 participants in the second Folklore Conference and Symposium at NWU in winter 1975.

The Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C., is currently developing plans for an American Folklore Society in Nebraska, in part of a region that includes the Dakotas and Kansas.

Roger L. Welsch, Centennial Fellow at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, submitted the folklore society request.

The Nebraska Bicentennial Committee had asked the Lincoln Foundation if it would accept an application to finance part of $12,500 needed to develop the Lakota (Sioux) creation myth, an environmental music-dance drama.

Composer Richard M. Moore said the drama would be performed six times in Lincoln during 1976, and possibly at outstate Nebraska towns.

Noting that they want to know what other programs the bicentennial committee will attempt to sponsor, Lincoln Foundation executive committee members agreed to consider the Indian drama funding proposal, if submitted.

City Issues 163 Permits In May For Construction

During the month of May, 163 building permits were issued by the city for new construction totaling $13.4 million.

Of that number, 80 permits were taken out for construction of single family houses, totaling $1,111,772, figures in the Building Inspections Division show.

Two additional permits were issued for duplexes, for a total of $59,620, while three permits were issued for new apartments, totaling $230,000.

Figures show that three permits were taken out for offices or banks, totaling $9,698,000, while one permit was taken out for a new store, for $1,900, and six permits were taken out for new industrial buildings, for $1,571,413.

The division also issued 44 permits for new garages; 14 permits for other non-residential buildings and one for a recreational building.

One permit was issued for a new school building, which will cost $582,010.

The report also shows that 37 permits were issued for additions to buildings, totaling $225,040, while 13 permits were issued for alterations to buildings, totaling $155,415.

A total of 333 permits were issued during May for $13,805,605 in construction. Of that amount, the division collected $28,302 in fees.

Medal Given For Saving Hard Tooter

San Antonio, Tex. (UPI) — The Army has presented Spec. 4 Leonard M. Mutter III, of Chesapeake, Va., the Commendation Medal for saving the life of a fellow bandsman who blew too hard on a horn.

Maj. Gen. Winant Sidle, Army Readiness Region 5 commander, pinned the medal on Mutter's uniform at Ft. Sam Houston in recognition of giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Sgt. Antonio Cardenas last November.

Cardenas is fully recovered and when asked why he fell in a hallway unable to catch his breath, he replied:

"I had just blown too hard and too long practicing on my wind instrument."

Accident Pours Ammonia Cloud Into Classroom

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Workers demolishing a building accidentally snapped a refrigeration pipe Wednesday, sending clouds of toxic ammonia through a nearby parochial school. Eighty-three children were treated at hospitals but none was seriously injured, officials said.

The children from St. Aloysius School suffered inhalation, eye irritation, nausea and dizziness, but most returned to class by early afternoon.

Fire Director John Caufield said the pipe apparently was cut by workers demolishing some buildings and removing tanks at the site of the former P. Ballantine & Sons brewery, which closed last year.

NU Prof May Visit Russia

By The Associated Press

Duane Foote, an associate professor of agronomy and extension agriculturist at the University of Nebraska, may be going to Russia to inspect wheat and feed grain crops.

"As of now, we are still going but we haven't any confirmation from the Russian government," Foote said.

The trip involves three crop experts who are to make an on-the-spot evaluation of crop conditions in the Soviet Union.

In addition to Foote, an agricultural economist from Washington State University and Keith Severin of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's foreign agriculture service will make the trip.

The three will observe grain conditions in the Ukraine, North caucasus and Lower Volga areas of the USSR.

The group hopes to travel by train and auto so they can observe crops and growing conditions.

Visits to several collective and state farms, plus stops at a research institute and agricultural administrative setups are included in the request to the Soviet government.

The visit is part of an exchange of information program on crop conditions, established after the Soviet wheat purchase from the United States last year.

GOP Nominee Of 3rd District Gets Martin $$

The $29,305 balance in the Martin for Congress Committee will go to the Third District Republican congressional nominee, it was revealed Wednesday.

Congressman Dave Martin is not seeking re-election.

Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell is the apparent winner of the GOP nomination, although Don Blank of McCook has asked for a recount of votes in the tight Republican contest.

Martin had announced some time ago that the money in his fund would go to Republican candidates.

Suter Heads Health Office

James T. Suter will trade a post as ombudsman at the University of Nebraska to head the State Comprehensive Health Planning Office effective July 1.

In naming Suter as the successor to the retiring Mrs. Calista Hughes, Dr. Henry Smith, director of the State Health Department, said Suter will be paid $18,400 annually.

Suter, a native of London, is currently completing a two-year term as NU's ombudsman. He holds degrees from the University of Virginia and George Washington University.

An author of several publications on health care delivery systems, Suter headed the National Institute of Health's facilities and resources branch prior to 1968.

He also has experience with the regional medical program based at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland and has taught courses on health care systems at NU.

Mrs. Hughes' term as head of the agency expires May 31.

Waverly Band Raises $5,000 Toward Canada Contest Trip

The Waverly High School Viking Band has raised $5,000 toward an $8,000 goal to allow 74 band members to attend the Manisphere International Band Competition in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, June 20-25.

The annual Manisphere industrial and agricultural exhibition selects 20-25 bands from across the U.S. and Canada. The Viking band will enter street parade and concert performance competition, according to band director Bob Maag.

Each band member is working to raise $90 through raffles, bake sales and school spirit items. Contributions from individuals and the Waverly Band Booster Club will make up the deficit, Maag said.

Band members plan to continue fund-raising activities, including two concerts and an ice cream social in School District 145.

USDA Studies Possibility Of Locating Lab In Lincoln

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department is studying the possible costs of establishing a regional meat-and-poultry-inspection laboratory in Lincoln, Neb., an aide to Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., said Wednesday.

A cost study has been completed for St. Louis, the other site under consideration for that midwest region, the aide said, but he did not know what the results were for this Missouri City.

Thone is hopeful, the aide said, that a decision on which city will get the lab will be made this summer. The lab is expected to employe 50 to 35 persons.

The USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service maintains a number of chemical laboratories around the country for residue analysis. Thone's aide said all pathological and bioligical work is sent to the main USDA laboratories in Beltsville, Md., after the chemical work is finished.

Aphis, first multi-disciplinary laboratory outside Beltsville became fully operational in San Francisco last year and a national residue laboratory was established in Peoria, Ill.

Agency officials told the House Appropriations Committee recently that a second multidisciplinary lab is scheduled to open soon in Athens, Ga., with much of the staff coming from a chemical laboratory being closed in New York.

The site for the third such lab planned by APHIS to handle chemical, microbiological and pathological analysis has not yet been decided, according to Appropriations Committee hearing records.

Beef Case Plea Is Withdrawn

NEW YORK (AP) — Moe Steinman, a supermarket chain official who was accused of involvement in a $1 million bribery scheme in the meat industry, withdrew Tuesday his plea of guilty to conspiring to bribe a labor union official, a misdemeanor charge.

Steinman, 56, who was indicted as a labor relations director for the Daitch-Shopwell chain, was ordered to stand trial on the charge next Sept. 30 by Justice Burton Roberts in Manhattan state Suvreme Court.

Only Monday, Roberts accepted with reservations Steinman's guilty plea and had set the same day, Sept. 30, for sentencing.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Franklyn Snitow, who investigated the case, called Steinman a key figure in federal and local investigations intoalleged bribery of labor, supermarket and government officials.

Steinman was accused of entering into an agreement with Courier J. Holman, cochairman of the board of Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., of Sioux City, Iowa, to bribe the labor officials and smooth the way for the Iowa firm to sell its pre-cut and packaged meats in the lucrative market area within 125 miles of Manhattan's Columbus Circle.

Holman is scheduled to go on trial next Monday in the same court on similar charges of conspiring with Steinman and others to bribe labor union odficials.

Panhandle Harvesters Eye July 1

Scottsbluff (AP) — Cheyenne County Agent Ken Sakurada said Tuesday the wheat harvest is expected to begin about July 1 in the southern part of the Nebraska Panhandle.

Paul Sindt, state executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), said a communications unit will travel about 40 miles ahead of the crews to assure fuel supplies for the harvest.

He said the communications unit is a 26-foot van from the Department of the Interior. It will be under the control of the regional Federal Energy Office at Kansas City and will be coordinated by the ASCS.

The Interior Dept. has control of fuel supplies. Sindt said if fuel problems are encountered, the difficulties may be reported to an ASCS office, which will contact the communications unit.

Sindt said Nebraska has seven outlets from which supplies may be obtained if needed.

He said no agricultural fuel problems have been reported so far.

New Major Planned By Home Ec College

A new major designed to prepare students to work with physically or mentally handicapped children will be offered in the fall by the College of Home Economics at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The university said students would be trained to help children adjust to social, classroom and home environments. They will also be trained to work with children who cannot take part in school activities, and as consultants for agencies working with the handicapped.

Emphasis will be placed on training students to work with the family of the handicapped child, according to Helen Sulek, associate professor of human development and the family.

In Nebraska, and nationally, she said there has been a trend toward moving the handicapped from institutions.

She said estimates of the number of handicapped children in Nebraska range from 24,000 to 33,000.

She said legislation has encouraged integration of the handicapped into the public school system.

Charlene Swanson, child development specialist of the Nebraska Office of Mental Retardation, said public schools will need "backup help," to accommodate the increased number of handicapped children enrolled.

The course's strong background in home economics, human development and sociology are aimed at preparing students to work with the child and his family.

Zorinsky Reveals Tax

Omaha (AP) — In response to questions from reporters, Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky revealed Wednesday that he paid $8,658 in federal income taxes for 1973 on an income of $40,733.

Reporters asked the mayor at his weekly press conference if he would make a full personal financial disclosure as a number of other politicians have done this year.

Zorinsky said he would not unless there were specific questions about holdings that might constitute a conflict of interest. However, he then answered a number of broad questions about his financial status and showed reporters a copy of his federal income tax return.

Zorinsky now makes $27,000 a year as mayor, which he said was $15,000 less than his yearly salary when he was vice president of his father's vending firm.

Other topics to be covered during the conference include municipal administration and the federal wage-hour law.

Doane Goal Is $4 Million

Crete (UPI) — Doane College officials Wednesday announced a three-year fund drive with a goal of $4 million.

Board President Robert Dobson of Lincoln, said $2 million in sustaining funding would be used to enhance the academic reputation of the college and to seek new areas of service.

Dobson said an additional $2 million would be sought for endowment to yield long-term support for current and anticipated educational activities.

Doane President Dr. Philip Heckmann said this is the college's first funding effort in 10 years and "its success will give us a financial margin to expand educational service to Nebraska."

The fund drive will start shortly after Doane's fiscal year begins July 1.

State Prison Warden Charles Wolff said Wednesday major changes are being made in Penal Complex programs in an attempt to broaden educational opportunities.

Among the changes being worked out is an attempt to establish a two-year associate of arts degree program, Wolff said.

Also included are the broadening of cultural and minority studies; expansion of educational release efforts; lowering of ages of inmates subject to mandatory attendance; development and expansion of general education development testing procedures, and realignment of library facilities and inmate access to them.

For the past two years, Haupt has served as the vice president of the council. He succeeds John Gottschalk, who did not run for re-election because of his candidacy for a seat on the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

In the meantime, city officials announced the appointment of a new city manager.

Stock Mart Fluctuates, Posts Gain

New York (AP) — The stock market rode out a choppy session of ups and downs Wednesday to post its third straight advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down as much as 7 points in early trading and then up more than 7 at midafternoon, finished with a 1.49-point gain at 830.18 — nearly 35 points above the 1974 closing low it hit on Wednesday last week.

Gainers outpaced losers by 3 to 2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume dwindled to 13.68 million shares from Tuesday's 16.04 million.

The market did most of its gaining in a brief spurt early in the afternoon. Analysts said the buying wave was touched off by a prediction from Walter Wriston, chairman of New York's First National City Bank, that the prime rate would drop as low as 7 to 8 per cent by yearend.

The prime — the minimum interest rate banks charge on otterm loans to large corporations with top credit ratings — now stands enerally at a record 11½ per cent.

The impact of Wriston's remarks seemed to wane quickly, however.

"The market's hopes have been raised that we've reached the point of peaking out in the prime rate," observed Monte Gordon at Dreyfus Corp. "Now it's waiting for proof."

Analysts said investors well might take their next cue from weekly banking figures to be released after Thursday's close by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The data on money-market trends, particularly the figures indicating demand for business loans at major New York banks, have been getting close attention recently from Wall Streeters trying to spot a turning point in interest rates.

U.S. Industries, the NYSE's most-active issue, slipped ¾ to 6. A few days ago Moody's Investors Service withdrew its rating on the company's commercial paper — a form of unsecured short-term notes.

Weyerhaeuser fell 1⅜ to 37⅝, and Louisiana-Pacific 1⅛ to 15⅜, both in active trading. Brokers attributed recent selling pressure on the two stocks to concern about reports of sagging demand for forest products in Japan, a large market for both companies.

Kayser-Roth rose ⅞ to 15½ in trading that included a 164,000-share block at that price.

Golds brightened up as bullion prices climbed sharply in Europe. ASA, Ltd., jumped 5¾ to 81¾; Homestake Mining, 4⅛ to 80⅜; Dome Mines, 4¾ to 52; and Campbell Red Lake Mines, 3½ to 38½.

Addressograph-Multigraph, which suspended its dividend, lost ⅝ to 5⅞.

On the American Stock Exchange, AVC Corp. was up 1⅝ at 5⅜. The company said it planned to buy 200,000 of its own shares.

Syntex was the Amex volume leader, rebounding 2⅜ to 46 after some recent declines.

The Amex' market value index recorded a .45 gain to 83.66.

The NYSE composite, meanwhile, rose .12 to 47.53.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite finished at 82.21, up .44.

Steer Prices Steady, Lower

Omaha (AP) — Slaughter steers grading high good or better sold mostly steady in Omaha Wednesday in fairly active trading. Lower grade steers were 50-1.00 lower as dressed beef continued to pull at the live trade.

Carcass values were just steady however enough volume had been recorded to allow observers to detect a price trend.

Heifers sold steady to 25 cents, instances 50, lower with most choice 850-1,000 lb. 37.25-38.25; load topy 1,025 lb. 38.50.

Cows sold steady to weak with beef cow top of 26.00.

Ample supplies continued to burden the hog market and daily average weights remained over the 250 lb. mark.

Some 8,000 fresh arrivals brought the week's run at Omaha to 24,400 compared to 21,241 last week and 17,498 a year ago.

Butcher hogs steady to 50 lower with most weights over 260 lb. 25 cents or more off; clearance slow and several firms reported hogs carried over for Thursday trading in the face of 1.00 lower late bids; top slipped to 28.00, lowest since early May 1972.

Demand Lifts Commodities

Chicago (AP) — Rain fell again over wide sections of the nation's interior and this strongly influenced demand for farm commodity futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Wheat futures rose the limit of 20 cents a bushel at one time while corn futures were up their limit of 10 cents a bushel. One corn option held the limit at the close while some profit-taking trimmed the other corn options and wheat the the close.

Soybeans were up around 10 cents at one time but this was sharply trimmed at the close when prices turned irregular. Soybean oil also was irregular along with meal futures. Oats, up 5 cents at one time, closed with a gain of 2 cents. Iced broilers were nearly 1 cent lower at the close.

USDA Studies Possibility Of Locating Lab In Lincoln

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department is studying the possible costs of establishing a regional meat-and-poultry-inspection laboratory in Lincoln, Neb., an aide to Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., said Wednesday.

A cost study has been completed for St. Louis, the other site under consideration for that midwest region, the aide said, but he did not know what the results were for this Missouri City.

Thone is hopeful, the aide said, that a decision on which city will get the lab will be made this summer. The lab is expected to employe 50 to 35 persons.

The USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service maintains a number of chemical laboratories around the country for residue analysis. Thone's aide said all pathological and bioligical work is sent to the main USDA laboratories in Beltsville, Md., after the chemical work is finished.

Aphis, first multi-disciplinary laboratory outside Beltsville became fully operational in San Francisco last year and a national residue laboratory was established in Peoria, Ill.

Agency officials told the House Appropriations Committee recently that a second multidisciplinary lab is scheduled to open soon in Athens, Ga., with much of the staff coming from a chemical laboratory being closed in New York.

The site for the third such lab planned by APHIS to handle chemical, microbiological and pathological analysis has not yet been decided, according to Appropriations Committee hearing records.

Beef Case Plea Is Withdrawn

NEW YORK (AP) — Moe Steinman, a supermarket chain official who was accused of involvement in a $1 million bribery scheme in the meat industry, withdrew Tuesday his plea of guilty to conspiring to bribe a labor union official, a misdemeanor charge.

Steinman, 56, who was indicted as a labor relations director for the Daitch-Shopwell chain, was ordered to stand trial on the charge next Sept. 30 by Justice Burton Roberts in Manhattan state Suvreme Court.

Only Monday, Roberts accepted with reservations Steinman's guilty plea and had set the same day, Sept. 30, for sentencing.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Franklyn Snitow, who investigated the case, called Steinman a key figure in federal and local investigations intoalleged bribery of labor, supermarket and government officials.

Steinman was accused of entering into an agreement with Courier J. Holman, cochairman of the board of Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., of Sioux City, Iowa, to bribe the labor officials and smooth the way for the Iowa firm to sell its pre-cut and packaged meats in the lucrative market area within 125 miles of Manhattan's Columbus Circle.

Holman is scheduled to go on trial next Monday in the same court on similar charges of conspiring with Steinman and others to bribe labor union odficials.

Panhandle Harvesters Eye July 1

Scottsbluff (AP) — Cheyenne County Agent Ken Sakurada said Tuesday the wheat harvest is expected to begin about July 1 in the southern part of the Nebraska Panhandle.

Paul Sindt, state executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), said a communications unit will travel about 40 miles ahead of the crews to assure fuel supplies for the harvest.

He said the communications unit is a 26-foot van from the Department of the Interior. It will be under the control of the regional Federal Energy Office at Kansas City and will be coordinated by the ASCS.

The Interior Dept. has control of fuel supplies. Sindt said if fuel problems are encountered, the difficulties may be reported to an ASCS office, which will contact the communications unit.

Sindt said Nebraska has seven outlets from which supplies may be obtained if needed.

He said no agricultural fuel problems have been reported so far.

New Major Planned By Home Ec College

A new major designed to prepare students to work with physically or mentally handicapped children will be offered in the fall by the College of Home Economics at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The university said students would be trained to help children adjust to social, classroom and home environments. They will also be trained to work with children who cannot take part in school activities, and as consultants for agencies working with the handicapped.

Emphasis will be placed on training students to work with the family of the handicapped child, according to Helen Sulek, associate professor of human development and the family.

In Nebraska, and nationally, she said there has been a trend toward moving the handicapped from institutions.

She said estimates of the number of handicapped children in Nebraska range from 24,000 to 33,000.

She said legislation has encouraged integration of the handicapped into the public school system.

Charlene Swanson, child development specialist of the Nebraska Office of Mental Retardation, said public schools will need "backup help," to accommodate the increased number of handicapped children enrolled.

The course's strong background in home economics, human development and sociology are aimed at preparing students to work with the child and his family.

Zorinsky Reveals Tax

Omaha (AP) — In response to questions from reporters, Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky revealed Wednesday that he paid $8,658 in federal income taxes for 1973 on an income of $40,733.

Reporters asked the mayor at his weekly press conference if he would make a full personal financial disclosure as a number of other politicians have done this year.

Zorinsky said he would not unless there were specific questions about holdings that might constitute a conflict of interest. However, he then answered a number of broad questions about his financial status and showed reporters a copy of his federal income tax return.

Zorinsky now makes $27,000 a year as mayor, which he said was $15,000 less than his yearly salary when he was vice president of his father's vending firm.

The eighth annual mayor-council conference sponsored by the League of Nebraska Municipalities will be held at Kearney June 20 and 21, it was announced Wednesday.

The conference will be held at the Holiday Inn and the keynote address will be delivered by former Gov. Robert Crosby.

The league said Crosby will speak on the trend of the population movement from rural to urban areas and its impact on the responsibilities of municipal officials.

Other topics to be covered during the conference include municipal administration and the federal wage-hour law.

Doane Goal Is $4 Million

Crete (UPI) — Doane College officials Wednesday announced a three-year fund drive with a goal of $4 million.

Board President Robert Dobson of Lincoln, said $2 million in sustaining funding would be used to enhance the academic reputation of the college and to seek new areas of service.

Dobson said an additional $2 million would be sought for endowment to yield long-term support for current and anticipated educational activities.

Doane President Dr. Philip Heckmann said this is the college's first funding effort in 10 years and "its success will give us a financial margin to expand educational service to Nebraska."

The fund drive will start shortly after Doane's fiscal year begins July 1.

Penal Complex Hopes To Offer 2-Year Degree

State Prison Warden Charles Wolff said Wednesday major changes are being made in Penal Complex programs in an attempt to broaden educational opportunities.

Among the changes being worked out is an attempt to establish a two-year associate of arts degree program, Wolff said.

Also included are the broadening of cultural and minority studies; expansion of educational release efforts; lowering of ages of inmates subject to mandatory attendance; development and expansion of general education development testing procedures, and realignment of library facilities and inmate access to them.

Total loss in the case may be as high as $3,000 to $4,000, police said.

Stock Mart Fluctuates, Posts Gain

New York (AP) — The stock market rode out a choppy session of ups and downs Wednesday to post its third straight advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down as much as 7 points in early trading and then up more than 7 at midafternoon, finished with a 1.49-point gain at 830.18 — nearly 35 points above the 1974 closing low it hit on Wednesday last week.

Gainers outpaced losers by 3 to 2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume dwindled to 13.68 million shares from Tuesday's 16.04 million.

The market did most of its gaining in a brief spurt early in the afternoon. Analysts said the buying wave was touched off by a prediction from Walter Wriston, chairman of New York's First National City Bank, that the prime rate would drop as low as 7 to 8 per cent by yearend.

The prime — the minimum interest rate banks charge on otterm loans to large corporations with top credit ratings — now stands enerally at a record 11½ per cent.

The impact of Wriston's remarks seemed to wane quickly, however.

"The market's hopes have been raised that we've reached the point of peaking out in the prime rate," observed Monte Gordon at Dreyfus Corp. "Now it's waiting for proof."

Analysts said investors well might take their next cue from weekly banking figures to be released after Thursday's close by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The data on money-market trends, particularly the figures indicating demand for business loans at major New York banks, have been getting close attention recently from Wall Streeters trying to spot a turning point in interest rates.

U.S. Industries, the NYSE's most-active issue, slipped ¾ to 6. A few days ago Moody's Investors Service withdrew its rating on the company's commercial paper — a form of unsecured short-term notes.

Weyerhaeuser fell 1⅜ to 37⅝, and Louisiana-Pacific 1⅛ to 15⅜, both in active trading. Brokers attributed recent selling pressure on the two stocks to concern about reports of sagging demand for forest products in Japan, a large market for both companies.

Kayser-Roth rose ⅞ to 15½ in trading that included a 164,000-share block at that price.

Golds brightened up as bullion prices climbed sharply in Europe. ASA, Ltd., jumped 5¾ to 81¾; Homestake Mining, 4⅛ to 80⅜; Dome Mines, 4¾ to 52; and Campbell Red Lake Mines, 3½ to 38½.

Addressograph-Multigraph, which suspended its dividend, lost ⅝ to 5⅞.

On the American Stock Exchange, AVC Corp. was up 1⅝ at 5⅜. The company said it planned to buy 200,000 of its own shares.

Syntex was the Amex volume leader, rebounding 2⅜ to 46 after some recent declines.

The Amex' market value index recorded a .45 gain to 83.66.

The NYSE composite, meanwhile, rose .12 to 47.53.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite finished at 82.21, up .44.

Demand Lifts Commodities

Chicago (AP) — Rain fell again over wide sections of the nation's interior and this strongly influenced demand for farm commodity futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Wheat futures rose the limit of 20 cents a bushel at one time while corn futures were up their limit of 10 cents a bushel. One corn option held the limit at the close while some profit-taking trimmed the other corn options and wheat the the close.

Soybeans were up around 10 cents at one time but this was sharply trimmed at the close when prices turned irregular. Soybean oil also was irregular along with meal futures. Oats, up 5 cents at one time, closed with a gain of 2 cents. Iced broilers were nearly 1 cent lower at the close.

Abitibi To Raise Newsprint Prices

Toronto (AP) — Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., says it will raise prices of newsprint in Canada and the United States by $20 a ton, effective Sept. 1.

New prices in Canada will be $212 a ton for 32-pound newsprint and $226 a ton for 30-pound newsprint.

In the U.S., the company's prices will be $220 a ton for 32-pound newsprint and $234.66 a ton for 30-pound.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Cleveland Files Protest

. . . 'No Advance Warning Given'

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians have filed a formal protest against their forfeiture of Tuesday night's baseball game to the Texas Rangers.

With the score tied 5-5, the Rangers were awarded the game by forfeit in the ninth inning because fans poured onto the field and engaged in battle with the ballplayers.

"While we deplore the incidents which lead to the forfeiture, we also feel that there was no warning given to the fans during the course of the game by the umpires that any continuation of interruptions of play would lead to a declaration of a forfeiture of the game," said Indians General Manager Phil Seghi in a telegram to the American League president.

The telegram also stated that the umpires should have made "a more concerted effort to have our policemen clear the field so that our game could be resumed."

League President Lee MacPhail said he would not comment on the protest until all the facts are in writing and he has studied the matter.

"That's fantastic," Rangers Manager Billy Martin said, when told of the idea of a protest. "They can protest all they want. They wouldn't win it. They wouldn't win it in a court of law."

Seghi admitted he didn't have high hopes of the protest succeeding, but "it was necessary to get my views of the incident on the record."

Ted Bonda, the Tribe's executive vice president, said he had no plans to discontinue the beer night promotions scheduled. Many persons blamed drunken youngsters for starting the melee.

MacPhail issued a statement Wednesday night that all clubs would have to notify the league office in advance of all such promotions.

"There must be concern about any promotion such as that held in Cleveland which resulted in the forfeiture of the game," MacPhail said. "The league must be responsible for the safety of the fans and the players."

Bonda said it was impossible to blame the beer promotion for what happened Tuesday night. He said a series of events led to the incident:

—The feeling for retaliation because of the fight the Rangers and Indians had in Texas last week.

—A large crowd (25,134) turned out on a warm night.

—The crowd was made up of a lot of young people that played follow the leader after seeing a few fans run on the field.

—The Indians tied the score in the ninth inning.

—The umpires were unable to control both the players and the fans.

—The Texas Rangers left the dugout with their bats to fight with the fans in the ninth inning.

—"There are a host of circumstances and I might even add that there was a full moon last night," he said.

"We can we should have done a lot of things in hindsight," Bonda said. "We investigating all aspects now, including the selling of beer to minors and people bringing beer and liquor into the games."

Early in Tuesday night's game fans started running across the outfield. The numbers grew as the game progressed, and they included an elderly woman and a streaker.

"As a matter of fact the earlier incidents gave me a good idea for a promotion," Bonda said. "Before the game we'll let kids jump over the right field fence, run across the field and climb over the leftfield fence. The one who does it in the fastest time will get a prize."

There were no serious injuries reported from the melee, which involved several hundred fans and both the Indians and the Rangers squads. Police say they arrested a dozen people. A spokesman at St. Vincent Charity Hospital said about seven people were treated and released.

"Cleveland is not a city of monsters as some said last night," Bonda said. "Cleveland had a happening last night and it was an unfotunate one."

Boston 'Upsets' Yankees By Choosing Ford (Eddie)

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball's summer free agent draft was moving swiftly through its first round Wednesday when the Boston Red Sox dropped a small bombshell on their American League neighbors, the New York Yankees.

San Diego had chosen Brown University shortstop Bill Almon as the top selection, and the other clubs followed in rapid order.

Then it was Boston's turn. And the Red Sox' announcement dropped some jaws at the Yankee draft table. Boston chose Eddie Ford, a shortstop from the University of South Carolina—and son of Whitey Ford, pitching coach of the Yankees who will be inducted into the Hall of Fame this summer.

Ford's selection caused stirring in the Yankee camp. partly because the Yanks' firstround pick also was a shortstop—Dennis Sherrill from Miami. Sherrill was described in scouting reports as "a definite major league prospect with all the tools."

"We wanted to draft Ford," said a Yankee spokesman. "But our scouts were higher on Sherrill. Ford would have been our next choice."

"I'm happy that the Red Sox took me," said Ford from his home in Great Neck, N.Y. "This is really a big thrill. I was hoping I would go in the first round. But I thought the Yanks would draft me."

In Chicago, his father said, "Oh boy, I think he would have liked to go to the Yankees. Seeing that the Yankees selected a shortstop, I'm sure he's disappointed. I would have liked him to come with us, too."

The younger Ford, the 20th player to be picked in the draft, played under former Yankee second baseman Bobby Richardson at South Carolina. He batted .290 as a switch hitter this season, hitting four homers and driving in 25 runs. He is a junior.

"I guess the Red Sox will call me in a day or two and we'll talk money and where I'll play," he said. "If they offer me a good contract, I'll probably take it."

Texas was fair enough with right-hander Tom Boggs, an Austin, Tex., high school pitcher. Boggs was the second player selected in the draft, and midway through the second round, the Rangers announced that they had signed him. A year ago, the Rangers drafted and signed pitcher David Clyde, who moved straight to the major leagues. Like Boggs, Clyde was a Texas high school product.

High school prospects dominated the draft's first round. Of the 24 players chosen, only six, including Almon and Ford, came off the nation's college campuses.

The teams went through 23 rounds, selecting 523 players. They will resume the draft Thursday.

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint

Outdoor Editor

Outward Bound Journey

Learning of nature, it's hazards and beauty. Learning of self, your capabilities and unthought-of potential. Then putting all that to use. It's a learning experience each and every person views differently. Few dislike the outcome.

The Outward Bound program philosophy brushes on the above paragraph. As George Easley, Lincoln businessman and chairman of the Central YMCA board, points out, the experience is one which cannot be fully explained until you've lived it.

Easley is heading a group of Lincoln area educators and businessmen on an eight-day look at Colorado Outward Bound. The June 21-30 trip will involve four days of mountain climbing at Vail and four days of river trip on Colorado's Green River.

"Three will be the outdoor experience and the excitement on this trip but there will be none of the real stress factors on this trip as you would find on the more detailed programs," Easley pointed out.

Educational Programming

Outward Bound, to many, is looked upon as survival training. Pushing as an individual can be pushed to learn and make use of his or her full potential. This trip is a modified version.

The purpose of this eight-day trip, according to Easley, is to help promote interest in furthering a Nebraska outdoor experience begun last year through the YMCA and the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

Gary Gabelhouse and Dick Nelson of the Game and Parks Commission headed a week-long field trip with a group of Lincoln teenagers to Halsey National forest south of Valentine. Easley of the YMCA and the Game and Parks Commission are hoping to continue and expand on a similar program.

"I think it's really too big a program to be developed by the Game and Parks Commission and the YMCA," Easley pointed out. For this reason, the educators are being encouraged to attend the late June trip in hopes of involving the Lincoln Public School System in a future program.

"We have found a lot of school systems have put this to use," Easley added. He used the Denver schools as an example. Denver kids are exposed to a similar river trip to the one planned for the Lincoln educators.

Putting Nebraska to Use

The Nebraska outdoor experience program would put Nebraska's own resources to use. The Halsey National Forest, the Niobrara River, the Pine Ridge area, and others are prime candidates for such usage.

"The whole idea is not to use Colorado or the Colorado Outward Bound organization," Easely said. "The whole idea is to use Nebraska."

Outward Bound currently has some 80 regional organizations making use of regional resources to conduct their program around the world, according to Easley. Why not one in Nebraska?

The Outward Bound experience teaches one to use his own abilities, yet work with others in accomplishing a set goal. For those unknowing, it is a tremendous educational project.

Thus far, 17 Lincolnites have signed on for the June trip. About half are educators and half are businessmen looking to Outward Bound as a possible management training program.

From this corner, the Lincoln Public Schools System would be taking a tremendous step forward in incorporating an Outward Bound program. Taking a summertime course of this nature for elective course credit would also be a step forward for the youngsters involved.

Goodwin Captures Feature

By VIRGIL PARKER

Crowd favorites Jan Opperman and 'Little Joe' Saldana ran into trouble as Kansas City's Ray Lee Goodwin sped to victory in the sprint car 'A' feature race at Midwest Speedway Wednesday night.

Saldana was involved in a four-car mixer on the first-lap and was forced to the sidelines with steering problems.

Opperman, who was in the next-to-last row for the inverted start — the fastest cars at the back of the pack and the slowest at the front — worked his way to the lead before his misfortune struck.

A 20th-lap mishap brought out the yellow flag and stopped the counting with Opperman holding a one-fourth lap lead over Goodwin.

But, before the race could be restarted, Opperman had a blowout and had to watch the final five laps from the pits.

Goodwin, who also won the third heat race, and Saldana, who claimed a triumph in the first heat and the winner's race, were the night's only double winners before a full-house crowd.

First Heat — 1 Joe Saldana, Indianapolis; 2. Lonnie Jensen, Lincoln, 3. Ed Bowes, Lincoln

Second Heat — 1. Gary Dunkle, Lincoln; 2 Thad Dosher, Topeka; 3. Dick Kinney, Phoenix.

Third Heat — 1. Ray Lee Goodwin, Kansas City, 2. Jan Opperman, Beaver Crossing; 3 Kan Parke, Lincoln

Winner's Heat — 1. Saldana; 2. Dunkle; 3 Goodwin.

Trophy Dash — 1. Jensen; 2 Opperman, 3 Goodwin

Consolation — 1. Dick Sutcliffe, Kansas City; 2 Norm Bahr, Lincoln; 3. Lloyd Beckman, Lincoln.

B Feature — 1 Mack Hiembaugh, Des Moines; 2. Jim Riggins, Lincoln; 3. Rex Munn, Lincoln.

A Feature — 1. Goodwin; 2. Kinney; 3. Sutcliffe.

Most Firearm Permits Gone

By United Press International

The Nebraska State Game Commission said Wednesday nearly all of the 25,000 permits for the 1974 firearm-deer season and all firearm-antelope licenses have been spoken for.

The commission said only the Sandhills, Upper Platte and the Upper Platte sub-unit had permits available. But the commission added there are about 2,500 applications yet to be processed.

On that basis, the commission said landowners who were unsuccessful may now apply for a limited permit which would be good only on their own land.

French Open Led By Ashe, Gorman

PARIS (AP) — Arthur Ashe and Tom Gorman led a 10-man American challenge into the second round of the French Open tennis championship Wednesday, but six other Americans lost and four more had their matches suspended by rain.

Ashe and Gorman both defeated Colombian players, somewhat in revenge for Colombia's victory over the United States in the first round of 1974 Davis Cup play in January. Ashe was unavailable for Davis Cup competition and Gorman was nursing a bad back at the time.

In Wednesday's first round of the $200,000 French tournament which is rated as the world clay court championship, Ashe, the No. 3 seed, defeated Ivan Molina 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 and Gorman, co-seeded No. 5 with Stan Smith, beat Jaire Velasco 6-3, 7-6.

Smith was leading Jun Kamiwazumi of Japan, 6-3, 3-2, when rain halted play briefly. After the shower, they returned to the court and Kamiwazumi evened the match by winning the second set 6-4. The third set will be played Thursday.

The three top favorites for the men's title and the $24,000 top prize—Bjorn Borg of Sweden, Ilie Nastase of Romania, and Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia—did not get on court.

Borg, the 17-year-old who won the Italian championship Monday in straight sets over Nastase, asked for a day's delay so he could go to Stockholm for dental treatment.

Nastase's first-round opponent in the draw, Ove Bengston of Sweden, withdrew because of a sore throat and Frenchman Maurice Claitte was picked to meet the top seed and defending champion.

All but 16 of the 64 first-round men's singles matches were completed. Eight never were begun and eight were suspended until Thursday.

The only upset of the day was pulled off by Bill Brown of San Luis Obispo, Calif., who beat Paolo Bertolucci of Italy, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2. Bertolucci, one of eight players who shared the No. 9 seeding, had been a semifinalist in the Rome tournament but complained about foot blisters here.

Gabrielson Advances In Meet

Muirfield, Scotland (AP) — Jim Gabrielson, U.S. Walker Cup player from Atlanta, used a torrid putter in advancing to the fourth round of the rain-swept British Amateur Golf Championship Wednesday, and said: "I'm playing better every time."

Gabrielson handed out a stiff warning to his rivals by beating William Trombley of Dallas 3 and 2 with some great golf in the third round despite day-long rain which varied between drizzle and downpour on Muirfield's 6,862-yard, par-71 seaside course.

The United States still had six players in contention after the field from 11 countries was reduced to 32.

A surprise survivor was veteran Bob Falkenburg, former Wimbledon tennis champion, who entered from Brazil but now is living in Los Angeles.

Falkenburg, 48, stormed into the fourth round — the farthest he has reached in six attempts at the British Amateur — with a 3 and 2 victory over Reg Taylor, a former South African Open champion.

Another popular American winner was George Haines, 30-year-old mathematics teacher from Far Hills, N.J.

In Thursday's fourth round he will meet John Owens of Lexington, Ky., who scored a 6 and 4 victory over England's Harry Hopkinson in the third round.

Undesirable Fish Reduced In Number By Chemical

By TOM VINT

Hickman — There is a shiney new sign posted at the entrance of Wagon Train Lake near here. It reads:

"FISHERMEN
Your Permit Fee at Work

This lake has been treated by an approved fish-kill chemical for fish management purposes. Stunted undesirable fish have been reduced in number by the chemical. Most game fish will not be affected. Fishing is permitted as usual.

Aquatic Wildlife Division"

Wagon Train Lake, some 315 acres in size, is one of the Salt Valley lake system impoundments. It has been plagued by massive populations of shad and white perch in the past few years.

Those two species made it nearly impossible for any other game fish, from bluegill to bass, to establish a competitive foothold in the lake.

On Monday, Jim Johnson, District V fisheries biologist for the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, and his crews closed the lake from public use. Fintrol, a fish toxin, was applied.

Tuesday, the results began showing up. Wednesday, the facts were nearly in, according to Johnson. Sand by the ton, white perch, limited carp, bluegill and two bass were washed ashore.

Calculations revealed nearly 70 pounds of fish per acre were slain by the chemical treatment. Wednesday the dead fish cleanup, some 10-plus tons worth, began.

"I'm not totally satisfied with the kill," Johnson reported. A chemical breakdown in the lakes waters apparently caused less white perch kill than desired. And the perch was the target of the Fintrol.

"We didn't hurt the bass any," Johnson said, clearing doubts he revealed Tuesday as to bass reaction to the chemical. "I think we might have killed about half of the perch and most of the shad, but the benefits will probably be short lived.

"We obviously are going to make more food available now that the shad numbers are smaller. Without the shad, we should have a good plankton growth this summer and the young game fish need plankton to grow."

Shad are a plankton eating forage fish (a food fish for other predator fish). Shad numbers were so high as to nearly eliminate adequate plankton supplies for young fish spawned out in the lake.

Johnson said the niche should now be open to provide enough food for the 30,000-plus walleye fry to be stocked into Wagon Train next week. Nearly 100,000 bluegill are also scheduled for stocking this summer. Next year will bring 15,000 more walleye and a supply of northern pike, according to Johnson.

The District V head indicated the present bass population should be able to reproduce itself through natural spawn now that most of the fry competition is relieved.

"The idea is to eliminate the poor fishing trips," Johnson said of the renovation program. "We'll need to take creel samples in the future to determine what benefit we'll actually derive from this."

He also pointed out another partial renovation might be called for in two or three years hence to again control the shad and perch numbers. At a cost of $1,240 (cost of Fintrol used on Wagon Train this year,) it would still be cheaper retreating the lake than undergoing the nearly $11,000 involved should a total renovation be required.

"This should help the perch grow. It will help the bluegill grow and it ought to help people catch bass," Johnson concluded of the partial renovation.

Wagon Train is due to reopen early next week.

Cleveland Files Protest

. . . 'No Advance Warning Given'

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians have filed a formal protest against their forfeiture of Tuesday night's baseball game to the Texas Rangers.

With the score tied 5-5, the Rangers were awarded the game by forfeit in the ninth inning because fans poured onto the field and engaged in battle with the ballplayers.

"While we deplore the incidents which lead to the forfeiture, we also feel that there was no warning given to the fans during the course of the game by the umpires that any continuation of interruptions of play would lead to a declaration of a forfeiture of the game," said Indians General Manager Phil Seghi in a telegram to the American League president.

The telegram also stated that the umpires should have made "a more concerted effort to have our policemen clear the field so that our game could be resumed."

League President Lee MacPhail said he would not comment on the protest until all the facts are in writing and he has studied the matter.

"That's fantastic," Rangers Manager Billy Martin said, when told of the idea of a protest. "They can protest all they want. They wouldn't win it. They wouldn't win it in a court of law."

Seghi admitted he didn't have high hopes of the protest succeeding, but "it was necessary to get my views of the incident on the record."

Ted Bonda, the Tribe's executive vice president, said he had no plans to discontinue the beer night promotions scheduled. Many persons blamed drunken youngsters for starting the melee.

MacPhail issued a statement Wednesday night that all clubs would have to notify the league office in advance of all such promotions.

"There must be concern about any promotion such as that held in Cleveland which resulted in the forfeiture of the game," MacPhail said. "The league must be responsible for the safety of the fans and the players."

Bonda said it was impossible to blame the beer promotion for what happened Tuesday night. He said a series of events led to the incident:

—The feeling for retaliation because of the fight the Rangers and Indians had in Texas last week.

—A large crowd (25,134) turned out on a warm night.

—The crowd was made up of a lot of young people that played follow the leader after seeing a few fans run on the field.

—The Indians tied the score in the ninth inning.

—The umpires were unable to control both the players and the fans.

—The Texas Rangers left the dugout with their bats to fight with the fans in the ninth inning.

—"There are a host of circumstances and I might even add that there was a full moon last night," he said.

"We can we should have done a lot of things in hindsight," Bonda said. "We investigating all aspects now, including the selling of beer to minors and people bringing beer and liquor into the games."

Early in Tuesday night's game fans started running across the outfield. The numbers grew as the game progressed, and they included an elderly woman and a streaker.

"As a matter of fact the earlier incidents gave me a good idea for a promotion," Bonda said. "Before the game we'll let kids jump over the right field fence, run across the field and climb over the leftfield fence. The one who does it in the fastest time will get a prize."

There were no serious injuries reported from the melee, which involved several hundred fans and both the Indians and the Rangers squads. Police say they arrested a dozen people. A spokesman at St. Vincent Charity Hospital said about seven people were treated and released.

"Cleveland is not a city of monsters as some said last night," Bonda said. "Cleveland had a happening last night and it was an unfotunate one."

Boston 'Upsets' Yankees By Choosing Ford (Eddie)

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball's summer free agent draft was moving swiftly through its first round Wednesday when the Boston Red Sox dropped a small bombshell on their American League neighbors, the New York Yankees.

San Diego had chosen Brown University shortstop Bill Almon as the top selection, and the other clubs followed in rapid order.

Then it was Boston's turn. And the Red Sox' announcement dropped some jaws at the Yankee draft table. Boston chose Eddie Ford, a shortstop from the University of South Carolina—and son of Whitey Ford, pitching coach of the Yankees who will be inducted into the Hall of Fame this summer.

Ford's selection caused stirring in the Yankee camp. partly because the Yanks' firstround pick also was a shortstop—Dennis Sherrill from Miami. Sherrill was described in scouting reports as "a definite major league prospect with all the tools."

"We wanted to draft Ford," said a Yankee spokesman. "But our scouts were higher on Sherrill. Ford would have been our next choice."

"I'm happy that the Red Sox took me," said Ford from his home in Great Neck, N.Y. "This is really a big thrill. I was hoping I would go in the first round. But I thought the Yanks would draft me."

In Chicago, his father said, "Oh boy, I think he would have liked to go to the Yankees. Seeing that the Yankees selected a shortstop, I'm sure he's disappointed. I would have liked him to come with us, too."

The younger Ford, the 20th player to be picked in the draft, played under former Yankee second baseman Bobby Richardson at South Carolina. He batted .290 as a switch hitter this season, hitting four homers and driving in 25 runs. He is a junior.

"I guess the Red Sox will call me in a day or two and we'll talk money and where I'll play," he said. "If they offer me a good contract, I'll probably take it."

Texas was fair enough with right-hander Tom Boggs, an Austin, Tex., high school pitcher. Boggs was the second player selected in the draft, and midway through the second round, the Rangers announced that they had signed him. A year ago, the Rangers drafted and signed pitcher David Clyde, who moved straight to the major leagues. Like Boggs, Clyde was a Texas high school product.

High school prospects dominated the draft's first round. Of the 24 players chosen, only six, including Almon and Ford, came off the nation's college campuses.

The teams went through 23 rounds, selecting 523 players. They will resume the draft Thursday.

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint

Outward Bound Journey

Learning of nature, it's hazards and beauty. Learning of self, your capabilities and unthought-of potential. Then putting all that to use. It's a learning experience each and every person views differently. Few dislike the outcome.

The Outward Bound program philosophy brushes on the above paragraph. As George Easley, Lincoln businessman and chairman of the Central YMCA board, points out, the experience is one which cannot be fully explained until you've lived it.

Easley is heading a group of Lincoln area educators and businessmen on an eight-day look at Colorado Outward Bound. The June 21-30 trip will involve four days of mountain climbing at Vail and four days of river trip on Colorado's Green River.

"Three will be the outdoor experience and the excitement on this trip but there will be none of the real stress factors on this trip as you would find on the more detailed programs," Easley pointed out.

Educational Programming

Outward Bound, to many, is looked upon as survival training. Pushing as an individual can be pushed to learn and make use of his or her full potential. This trip is a modified version.

The purpose of this eight-day trip, according to Easley, is to help promote interest in furthering a Nebraska outdoor experience begun last year through the YMCA and the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

Gary Gabelhouse and Dick Nelson of the Game and Parks Commission headed a week-long field trip with a group of Lincoln teenagers to Halsey National forest south of Valentine. Easley of the YMCA and the Game and Parks Commission are hoping to continue and expand on a similar program.

"I think it's really too big a program to be developed by the Game and Parks Commission and the YMCA," Easley pointed out. For this reason, the educators are being encouraged to attend the late June trip in hopes of involving the Lincoln Public School System in a future program.

"We have found a lot of school systems have put this to use," Easley added. He used the Denver schools as an example. Denver kids are exposed to a similar river trip to the one planned for the Lincoln educators.

Putting Nebraska to Use

The Nebraska outdoor experience program would put Nebraska's own resources to use. The Halsey National Forest, the Niobrara River, the Pine Ridge area, and others are prime candidates for such usage.

"The whole idea is not to use Colorado or the Colorado Outward Bound organization," Easely said. "The whole idea is to use Nebraska."

Outward Bound currently has some 80 regional organizations making use of regional resources to conduct their program around the world, according to Easley. Why not one in Nebraska?

The Outward Bound experience teaches one to use his own abilities, yet work with others in accomplishing a set goal. For those unknowing, it is a tremendous educational project.

Thus far, 17 Lincolnites have signed on for the June trip. About half are educators and half are businessmen looking to Outward Bound as a possible management training program.

From this corner, the Lincoln Public Schools System would be taking a tremendous step forward in incorporating an Outward Bound program. Taking a summertime course of this nature for elective course credit would also be a step forward for the youngsters involved.

Goodwin Captures Feature

By VIRGIL PARKER

Crowd favorites Jan Opperman and 'Little Joe' Saldana ran into trouble as Kansas City's Ray Lee Goodwin sped to victory in the sprint car 'A' feature race at Midwest Speedway Wednesday night.

Saldana was involved in a four-car mixer on the first-lap and was forced to the sidelines with steering problems.

Opperman, who was in the next-to-last row for the inverted start — the fastest cars at the back of the pack and the slowest at the front — worked his way to the lead before his misfortune struck.

Beaver Crossing most famous citizen, who is seeking his first Lincoln win after driving in the Indy 500, gained the No. 1 spot midway through the 25-lap main event.

A 20th-lap mishap brought out the yellow flag and stopped the counting with Opperman holding a one-fourth lap lead over Goodwin.

But, before the race could be restarted, Opperman had a blowout and had to watch the final five laps from the pits.

Goodwin, who also won the third heat race, and Saldana, who claimed a triumph in the first heat and the winner's race, were the night's only double winners before a full-house crowd.

First Heat — 1. Joe Saldana, Indianapolis; 2. Lonnie Jensen, Lincoln; 3. Ed Bowes, Lincoln.

Second Heat — 1. Gary Dunkle, Lincoln; 2. Thad Dosher, Topeka; 3. Dick Kinney, Phoenix.

Most Firearm Permits Gone

By United Press International

The Nebraska State Game Commission said Wednesday nearly all of the 25,000 permits for the 1974 firearm-deer season and all firearm-antelope licenses have been spoken for.

The commission said only the Sandhills, Upper Platte and the Upper Platte sub-unit had permits available. But the commission added there are about 2,500 applications yet to be processed.

On that basis, the commission said landowners who were unsuccessful may now apply for a limited permit which would be good only on their own land.

Ak Said Running Low On Jockeys

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Looking for work early this summer?

If you're young, strong, fearless, weight less than 110 pounds or so and like to hang around animals, you might try Ak-Sar-Ben.

The Omaha track, in the midst of its biggest season ever in attendance, mutuel handle and purse money, is running low on jockeys.

Stan Bowker, director of member activities, says AK is down to about 30 riders, which is at least 10 under what track officials like to have around.

The track, which has 1,200 horses and 200 trainers on the grounds, started this season with about 45 riders, Bowker said. Some years the jockey corps has been as high as 60.

But this year Ak-Sar-Ben is caught in a squeeze between Denver and Chicago.

Bowker explained:

Centennial in Denver, which used to begin its season about the time Ak-Sar-Ben's ends in mid-July, has continued to push its starting date up, and this year started May 11.

In Chicago, Sportsman's Park has often begun in July. But this year, the Arlington Park meeting will run all the way to September, with Sportsman's starting afterward.

The result has been an exodus, largely in the direction of Denver.

"No major meets are starting when we end," said Bowker. "So when this meet's over, they don't have any place to go. So they leave early."

Only one jockey has already left for the Chicago circuit, David Whited, who has ranked among Ak's top 10 jockeys since the Omaha track opened April 30.

But, though Centennial doesn't compare to AkSar-Ben in possible payoffs for winning jockeys, eight lesser known riders have made the trip to Denver: Jim Powell, Nels Petersen, Walter Orona, William Fleming, Terry Grogan, Dean Kutz, George Munsell and Ed Werre.

Centennial may be a lot smaller-time but the jockeys who departed just want more work and they can get it in Denver, Bowker said.

Meanwhile, the riders in Omaha now will get plenty of work for the remainder of the season. One problem, Bowker said, is that about five of the 30 seldom get a mount.

This includes Donna Collins of Doniphan, Neb., the only woman rider on the grounds. She has had only a couple of mounts. Those were early in the season, so the small room marked "Lady Jockey Quarters," located a discreet distance from the rowdy lockerroom atmosphere of the main jockey quarters, stands silent these days.

Even though Ak officials aren't excatly happy about the number of riders, the jockeys themselves don't mind at all. "The riders would rather have only 20 or 30 around," Bowker said.

And he's philosophical about the depletions to the corps. "At least we've still got the quality riders."

Aaron Thriving On Pressure

ATLANTA (AP) — Henry Aaron, Atlanta's incredible 40-year-old slugger, is thriving on the pressure of game-winning situations.

"For some reason or another, he's even better in the clutch now than he was," Manager Eddie Mathews said in Philadelphia Tuesday night. Aaron had just tallied his 16th lifetime grand slam home run which gave him the game-winning RBI for the seventh time this season.

Aaron's production under pressure has helped the Braves to their best start since winning the National League West title in 1969. Going into Wednesday night's series finale against the Phillies, Atlanta had won 14 of its last 19 games for a 28-24 record.

Ordinarily that mark would place a team in pretty good position in the pennant race, but the brilliant start by Los Angeles has left the Braves 9½ game behind.

"I don't know if it was the chase that helps, I don't know about that at all," says Aaron. "It's just that I love to hit in a clutch situation. A pitcher can't fool around with me then."

Aaron insisted throughout his chase of the immortal Babe Ruth's home run record that he felt no pressure. After starting his 21st major league campaign with 713, only one shy of Ruth's mark, Aaron proved it.

He delivered his record-tying home run on his first swing of the season and then gabbed the record on his first swing in a home game, to the delight of a record crowd of 53,775 in Atlanta Stadium on April 8.

With 10 home runs this season, Aaron now has 723 for his career, plus eight others in World Series, playoff and All-Star game competition. Including the extra action, Ruth's total was 730.

The Braves began recording statistics for game-winning RBI in 1969 when Aaron had 11. Since, he's had, in order, 16, 13, 10 and 12 going into this year. In each of those years, he played in a minimum of 120 games. The seven this year have come in only 39 games, many of which he has left in the seventh or eighth innings.

"Some people just thrive on a pressure situation," says Mathews. "Others just can't handle it. Hank is one who thrives. Maybe it's that he's such a smart hitter. You'll see a lot of guys look at a third strike in a clutch situation. Not Hank. Not ever. Not when it counts."

Coffman Decathlon Leader

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Bob Coffman of Southern California jumped in front Wednesday night with three events left in the weather-delayed NCAA Decathlon.

Coffman had shared the lead with Brigham Young's Runald Backman after the first half of the decathlon Tuesday, but Coffman turned in the best time in the 110-meter high hurdles and after seven events had compiled 5,781 points.

Backman was running second with 5,717 and Craig Brigham of Oregon, who finished fourth last year, was in third place with 5,548.

Midway through the night's competition a thunderstorm moved through the area and the accompanying high winds which gusted to 30 miles an hour halted the pole vaulting.

Coffman won the high hurdles in the time of 13.92, the fastest decathlon time ever turned in at an NCAA meet. But a following wind of 12 miles an hour at the time invalidated the time as a record.

He piled up 972 points in the high hurdles which pushed him in front of Backman, who wound up ninth in the high hurdles. Coffman faded to seventh in the discus throw—the seventh event of the decathlon—but still held first place overall.

Dolphins' Trio Named In Suit

MIAMI (AP) — Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield were named as defendants Wednesday in a $4 million suit filed earlier by the Miami Dolphins against the World Football League, its Toronto-Memphis franchise and the players' agent, Ed Keating.

The names of the three players were included on the advice of legal counsel because the suit alleges the players were induced to break their contracts, a Dolphins spokesman said.

The three National Football League players, represented by Keating, signed a multi-million dollar contract with Toronto, now moved to Memphis, Tenn., to play in the WFL in 1975.

The suit seeks to enjoin the players from promoting the WFL while under contract to the Dolphins and asks $3 million in actual damages and $1 million in punitive damages from Toronto and the WFL.

Cardinals' Win Led By Smith

United Press International

Reggie Smith drove in two runs with a double and sacrifice fly and Lou Brock had three hits and two stolen bases Wednesday in leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Sonny Siebert, 6-3, gained the victory for the Cards, but needed ninth-inning relief help from Orlando Pena.

Smith's sacrifice fly scored the Cardinals' first run in the third inning and his double in the fifth accounted for their second. Joe Torre drove in another run in the fifth with an infield out.

In other games, Philadelphia beat Atlanta, 4-2 and Montreal stopped Houston, 8-3.

Mike Schmidt hit a three-run homer and Bob Boone contributed a solo homer to account for all Philadelphia's runs as the Phillies retained first place in the National League East with a win over the Braves.

Mike Jorgensen and Jim Cox drove in two runs apiece to lead the Expos to their victory over the Astros. The Expos battered four Houston pitchers for 14 hits to help Mike Torrez win his fifth game of the season against four losses.

Ak Said Running Low On Jockeys

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Looking for work early this summer?

If you're young, strong, fearless, weight less than 110 pounds or so and like to hang around animals, you might try Ak-Sar-Ben.

The Omaha track, in the midst of its biggest season ever in attendance, mutuel handle and purse money, is running low on jockeys.

Stan Bowker, director of member activities, says AK is down to about 30 riders, which is at least 10 under what track officials like to have around.

The track, which has 1,200 horses and 200 trainers on the grounds, started this season with about 45 riders, Bowker said. Some years the jockey corps has been as high as 60.

But this year Ak-Sar-Ben is caught in a squeeze between Denver and Chicago.

Bowker explained:

Centennial in Denver, which used to begin its season about the time Ak-Sar-Ben's ends in mid-July, has continued to push its starting date up, and this year started May 11.

In Chicago, Sportsman's Park has often begun in July. But this year, the Arlington Park meeting will run all the way to September, with Sportsman's starting afterward.

The result has been an exodus, largely in the direction of Denver.

"No major meets are starting when we end," said Bowker. "So when this meet's over, they don't have any place to go. So they leave early."

Only one jockey has already left for the Chicago circuit, David Whited, who has ranked among Ak's top 10 jockeys since the Omaha track opened April 30.

But, though Centennial doesn't compare to AkSar-Ben in possible payoffs for winning jockeys, eight lesser known riders have made the trip to Denver: Jim Powell, Nels Petersen, Walter Orona, William Fleming, Terry Grogan, Dean Kutz, George Munsell and Ed Werre.

Centennial may be a lot smaller-time but the jockeys who departed just want more work and they can get it in Denver, Bowker said.

Meanwhile, the riders in Omaha now will get plenty of work for the remainder of the season. One problem, Bowker said, is that about five of the 30 seldom get a mount.

This includes Donna Collins of Doniphan, Neb., the only woman rider on the grounds. She has had only a couple of mounts. Those were early in the season, so the small room marked "Lady Jockey Quarters," located a discreet distance from the rowdy lockerroom atmosphere of the main jockey quarters, stands silent these days.

Even though Ak officials aren't excatly happy about the number of riders, the jockeys themselves don't mind at all. "The riders would rather have only 20 or 30 around," Bowker said.

And he's philosophical about the depletions to the corps. "At least we've still got the quality riders."

Aaron Thriving On Pressure

ATLANTA (AP) — Henry Aaron, Atlanta's incredible 40-year-old slugger, is thriving on the pressure of game-winning situations.

"For some reason or another, he's even better in the clutch now than he was," Manager Eddie Mathews said in Philadelphia Tuesday night. Aaron had just tallied his 16th lifetime grand slam home run which gave him the game-winning RBI for the seventh time this season.

Aaron's production under pressure has helped the Braves to their best start since winning the National League West title in 1969. Going into Wednesday night's series finale against the Phillies, Atlanta had won 14 of its last 19 games for a 28-24 record.

Ordinarily that mark would place a team in pretty good position in the pennant race, but the brilliant start by Los Angeles has left the Braves 9½ game behind.

"I don't know if it was the chase that helps, I don't know about that at all," says Aaron. "It's just that I love to hit in a clutch situation. A pitcher can't fool around with me then."

Aaron insisted throughout his chase of the immortal Babe Ruth's home run record that he felt no pressure. After starting his 21st major league campaign with 713, only one shy of Ruth's mark, Aaron proved it.

He delivered his record-tying home run on his first swing of the season and then gabbed the record on his first swing in a home game, to the delight of a record crowd of 53,775 in Atlanta Stadium on April 8.

With 10 home runs this season, Aaron now has 723 for his career, plus eight others in World Series, playoff and All-Star game competition. Including the extra action, Ruth's total was 730.

The Braves began recording statistics for game-winning RBI in 1969 when Aaron had 11. Since, he's had, in order, 16, 13, 10 and 12 going into this year. In each of those years, he played in a minimum of 120 games. The seven this year have come in only 39 games, many of which he has left in the seventh or eighth innings.

"Some people just thrive on a pressure situation," says Mathews. "Others just can't handle it. Hank is one who thrives. Maybe it's that he's such a smart hitter. You'll see a lot of guys look at a third strike in a clutch situation. Not Hank. Not ever. Not when it counts."

Coffman Decathlon Leader

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Bob Coffman of Southern California jumped in front Wednesday night with three events left in the weather-delayed NCAA Decathlon.

Coffman had shared the lead with Brigham Young's Runald Backman after the first half of the decathlon Tuesday, but Coffman turned in the best time in the 110-meter high hurdles and after seven events had compiled 5,781 points.

Backman was running second with 5,717 and Craig Brigham of Oregon, who finished fourth last year, was in third place with 5,548.

Midway through the night's competition a thunderstorm moved through the area and the accompanying high winds which gusted to 30 miles an hour halted the pole vaulting.

Coffman won the high hurdles in the time of 13.92, the fastest decathlon time ever turned in at an NCAA meet. But a following wind of 12 miles an hour at the time invalidated the time as a record.

He piled up 972 points in the high hurdles which pushed him in front of Backman, who wound up ninth in the high hurdles. Coffman faded to seventh in the discus throw—the seventh event of the decathlon—but still held first place overall.

Dolphins' Trio Named In Suit

MIAMI (AP) — Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield were named as defendants Wednesday in a $4 million suit filed earlier by the Miami Dolphins against the World Football League, its Toronto-Memphis franchise and the players' agent, Ed Keating.

The names of the three players were included on the advice of legal counsel because the suit alleges the players were induced to break their contracts, a Dolphins spokesman said.

The three National Football League players, represented by Keating, signed a multi-million dollar contract with Toronto, now moved to Memphis, Tenn., to play in the WFL in 1975.

The suit seeks to enjoin the players from promoting the WFL while under contract to the Dolphins and asks $3 million in actual damages and $1 million in punitive damages from Toronto and the WFL.

Cardinals' Win Led By Smith

United Press International

Reggie Smith drove in two runs with a double and sacrifice fly and Lou Brock had three hits and two stolen bases Wednesday in leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Sonny Siebert, 6-3, gained the victory for the Cards, but needed ninth-inning relief help from Orlando Pena.

Smith's sacrifice fly scored the Cardinals' first run in the third inning and his double in the fifth accounted for their second. Joe Torre drove in another run in the fifth with an infield out.

In other games, Philadelphia beat Atlanta, 4-2 and Montreal stopped Houston, 8-3.

Mike Schmidt hit a three-run homer and Bob Boone contributed a solo homer to account for all Philadelphia's runs as the Phillies retained first place in the National League East with a win over the Braves.

Mike Jorgensen and Jim Cox drove in two runs apiece to lead the Expos to their victory over the Astros. The Expos battered four Houston pitchers for 14 hits to help Mike Torrez win his fifth game of the season against four losses.

White's Dogs Sweep Canada

Pugs, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Robert White of Lincoln, took nine of 12 possible wins on the Saskatchewan, Canada, Dog Show Curcuit during the month of May.

"Am. and Can. Ch. Rowann's Happy Ho Tei," a black pug, was best of breed in nine shows, took four firsts in the toy group (group five). "Am. Ch. Rowann's Sand Rowver," a fawn pug, was winners dog and best of winners in Winnipeg and winners dog in both Prince Albert and Wezburn, totaling seven points.

"Fahey's Fashioned," also a fawn pug, was reserve winners bitch in three Weyburn shows and took winners bitch, best of winners and best of opposite sex last weekend at the Stone City Kennel Club Show near Chicago.

Schipperke "Rowann's Bruiser," was best of breed in three shows to complete its Canadian championship. It also helped young Rob White win top honors for junior handling at the Regina show.

OUR VOLVO 144 SUITS FIVE. VERY COMFORTABLY.

Governors Okay Disclosure Of Finances

Seattle (UPI) — The nation's governors adopted a hotly contested resolution Wednesday urging full disclosure of personal finances of all public officials and candidates for office in the wake of Watergate.

The resolution was adopted unanimously after the Democratic majority repulsed an amendment that would have removed enforcement procedures.

The governors' action came in the wake of overwhelming voter support in California for stiff ethics in politicking law.

Adjournment Delayed

Approval of the ethics amendment and the lengthy debate on national health care legislation delayed adjournment of the three-day conference by more than two hours.

The health care measure passed was a compromise after the governors rejected, 23 to 9, a virtual endorsement of the Kennedy-Mills national health insurance bill pending in Congress.

Govs. Jack Williams of Arizona and Meldrim Thompson of New Hampshire, both Republicans, abstained from voting on the ethics resolution. Thompson said the matter should be decided by the states, not the governors, and added, "I don't believe we can weave a cloak of purity for ourselves."

'Dreadful Aspersions

The move to soften the ethics legislation made by Republican Gov. Malcolm Wilson of New York was defeated 16-9. He said the measure "casts dreadful aspersions on hundreds of thousands of honest officials at all levels of government. It is a dreadful accusation to make."

But Gov. Reubin Askew, Florida Democrat, said though he conceded the resolution was "an invasion of privacy . . . and an extraordinary action, the times require extraordinary action."

The resolution urged limits on campaign spending and contributions, experiments in public campaign financing, independent enforcement procedures with strong statutory penalties, stringent codes of ethics, disclosure of personal finances, open meetings of all public decision-making bodies, penalties for non-compliance and registration, and full disclosure of lobbying activities by all special interest groups.

Socialized Medicine

The ethics resolution was considered the major accomplishment of the 66th Governors Conference, but debate on national health care consumed the most time. One side pictured the measure sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., as the road to socialized medicine, while proponents said it was the only measure available to serve the nation's poor.

Gov. Daniel Walker, D-Ill., charged the compromise resolution worked out by a bipartisan conference committee was "a nothing statement" that could even imply support of the American Medical Association's "Medicredit" bill.

No Other Way

Gov. Otis Bowen, R-INd., a physician, said the language proposed by Walker would indicate "there is no other way but toal socialization." Gov. Malcolm Wilson, R-N.Y., who led the effort to work out a compromise, warned the governors that Walker's amendment would need a three-quarters majority under conference rules, and if the group failed to pass any statement it would be left with a health care policy statement that was adopted five years ago.

That argument appeared to sway some Democrats as well as the Republican governors. Walker's proposal was soundly defeated, even though his party holds a two to one edge in conference membership.

In other action, the governors adopted a policy statement opposing year-around Daylight Saving Time, which was instituted as an energy conservation measure last winter. The governors said it was "counterproductive," but Wilson, without comment, dissented from the conference position.

The health debate delayed action on a strong government reform resolution that appeared to have substantial bipartisan support. Wilson indicated, however, he wanted changes in the proposal approved unanimously by the conference executive committee Sunday.

Governors' conferences traditionally are politically bland, and this one was no exception. Partisan politics were largely muted save for an attack Tuesday by Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky on the Nixon administration for what Ford said was an effort to frighten voters with the specter that a "veto-proof" Congress may be elected in a Democratic landslide in November.

Ford called it a "cynical ploy" that invited representatives of the administration came to Seattle to drum up fear among Americans that too many Democrats winning in off-year congressional elections would damge the nation.

Among those who spoke of a veto-proof Congress at the session were Ken Cole, Nixon's chief domestic adviser; Republican National Chairman George Bush, and Casper Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Ford's blast and the attention focused on potential presidential hopefuls Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, were the only outward signs that 1976 is approaching.

Privately, however, many of the participants indicated they expect the governors to seize prominent roles in their parties' national conventions — perhaps as candidates.

Among the republican names being broached as possible candidates were Reagan, Milliken and Evans. Democrats who governors felt could find their way into a national ticket included Dan Walker of Illinois, Dale Bumpers of Arkansas; Reuben Askew of Florida; Jimmy Carter of Georgia; John Gilligan of Ohio and the new head of the Democratic Governors' Caucus, Wendell Anderson of Minnesota.

Budget Reform Bill Agreed On

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate-House conferees agreed Wednesday on a bill to give Congress a tighter grip on the budget as a whole and a bigger voice — as against the President's — in setting national spending priorities.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., heads of the conference delegations from the two chambers, predicted that both would pass the measure within about two weeks. It is a compromise version of separate bills previously approved.

The measure represents the first major attempt since an unsuccessful one in 1946 to reform Congress' way of handling spending legislation. It also would sharply limit presidential impoundment of funds appropriated by Congress.

The key to the new system would be two new, powerful budget committees, one in each chamber, backed up by a congressional budget office and specialized staffs.

These committees would develop and Congress would pass by May 15 each year a target resolution setting out total spending and a breakdown by major categories.

The government fiscal year, which now begins July 1, would be shifted beginning in 1976 to Oct. 1.

The regular appropriations committees then would take over, using the resolution as a guide, and recommend individual appropriation bills. Congress could pass these, but not make them effective before Oct. 1, or it could order some held pending further consideration.

Congress now rarely succeeds in passing more than one or two of the 14 major appropriations bills before the fiscal year begins.

To help further to keep it on schedule, the budget measure would require all authorization bills — those that must be adopted before the actual money measures are voted — to be reported by the appropriate specialized committees by May 15 annually. The President's proposals for programs and other matters to be authorized would have to be submitted a full year in advance.

On the matter of impoundment, the measure provides that if a president's refusal to spend money appropriated by Congress amounted to a definite reduction, it would be invalid unless Congress enacted legislation approving it.

If an impoundment merely meant delaying spending of funds, the President could order it, but either house of Congress could veto the delay by resolution. The comptroller general, a fiscal officer responsible to Congress, would be authorized to go to court, with congressional approval, if the President failed to comply.

'Baby Doll' Says 'You're Never Too Old'

AP

'BABY DOLL' . . . she's only 73.

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — "You're never too old to practice the world's oldest profession," says Sarah "Baby Doll" Cowan.

Police arrested her again Tuesday on a prostitution charge. She is 73.

Miss Cowan was picked up, police said, after an undercover vice squad officer claimed she invited him to her house to "have some fun."

"I've been selling my services since I had a broken love affair when I was 19," Miss Cowan said in an telephone interview from the Peoria County Jail. "I've paid enough fines to own a third of this damn county jail.

"I'll get out again, and, maybe, I'll be back in again. But $150 a month Social Security just doesn't put enough bread on my table."

Miss Cowan said her going scale is $10 and up.

"Those are inflation prices," she added. "When I first came to Peoria in 1932 it was known as a dollar town.

"In my time, I've pleased thousands of men. Some have asked me to marry them. Those that did I wouldn't hang on my Christmas tree. I'm too particular, I guess."

Age is no problem, she said, because men always have wanted a woman and always will.

"The only things bothering me are my weight and high blood pressure. . ." she said. "I'm up to 200 pounds from a trim 125 in my heyday. I bought an exercising machine a couple of months ago.

Police say she has been on more blotters than a ball point pen.

"We feel a little sorry for her," said Sheriff Bernard Kennedy. "Any time girls are picked up, she is the first one to visit them — bringing candy and cigarettes. When Baby Doll is picked up, no one comes and all she has to talk to are the policemen."

Judge Fines Financier Smith For Contempt

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A judge cited C. Arnholt Smith for contempt of court Wednesday after the financier repeatedly refused to answer questions in the trial of a man accused of attempted extortion.

Superior Court Judge Paul Eugene Overton ordered Smith to appear in court June 13 and warned: "The long arm of the law is upon you."

Smith, 75, invoked the Fifth Amendment seven times in the trial of Robert Daggett, who is charged with offering to change grand jury testimony given by his brother if Smith would buy up to $20 million worth of property for him.

Smith, a long-time friend of President Nixon and a major campaign contributor, is former president of United States National Bank, which collapsed last year in the nation's biggest bank failure.

Smith refused to answer questions regarding conversations between himself and a Los Angeles tax attorney concerning contacts between the Daggett brothers.

At the request of Daggett's attorney, Roger Ruffin, Judge Overton ruled on each of the questions and said: "I find you in contempt."

Overton said Smith's protection against self-incrimination failed to bar the questions as framed by Ruffin.

Smith's lawyer, David Elson, said after each of the rulings: "I have instructed him not to answer that question."

"On the advice of my attorney, I am asserting my constitutional privilege not to place myself in a position to be a witness against myself," Smith said.

The tax attorney, Richard Trattner, advised Smith on tax fraud matters. Smith faces a $23-million income tax claim, the largest ever filed by the Internal Revenue Service against an individual, and has been the subject of a grand jury investigation.

Pliny Daggett, brother of Robert, has pleaded guilty to delivering an extortion letter and is awaiting sentencing.

Governors Okay Disclosure Of Finances

Seattle (UPI) — The nation's governors adopted a hotly contested resolution Wednesday urging full disclosure of personal finances of all public officials and candidates for office in the wake of Watergate.

The resolution was adopted unanimously after the Democratic majority repulsed an amendment that would have removed enforcement procedures.

The governors' action came in the wake of overwhelming voter support in California for stiff ethics in politicking law.

Adjournment Delayed

Approval of the ethics amendment and the lengthy debate on national health care legislation delayed adjournment of the three-day conference by more than two hours.

The health care measure passed was a compromise after the governors rejected, 23 to 9, a virtual endorsement of the Kennedy-Mills national health insurance bill pending in Congress.

Govs. Jack Williams of Arizona and Meldrim Thompson of New Hampshire, both Republicans, abstained from voting on the ethics resolution. Thompson said the matter should be decided by the states, not the governors, and added, "I don't believe we can weave a cloak of purity for ourselves."

'Dreadful Aspersions

The move to soften the ethics legislation made by Republican Gov. Malcolm Wilson of New York was defeated 16-9. He said the measure "casts dreadful aspersions on hundreds of thousands of honest officials at all levels of government. It is a dreadful accusation to make."

But Gov. Reubin Askew, Florida Democrat, said though he conceded the resolution was "an invasion of privacy . . . and an extraordinary action, the times require extraordinary action."

The resolution urged limits on campaign spending and contributions, experiments in public campaign financing, independent enforcement procedures with strong statutory penalties, stringent codes of ethics, disclosure of personal finances, open meetings of all public decision-making bodies, penalties for non-compliance and registration, and full disclosure of lobbying activities by all special interest groups.

Socialized Medicine

The ethics resolution was considered the major accomplishment of the 66th Governors Conference, but debate on national health care consumed the most time. One side pictured the measure sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., as the road to socialized medicine, while proponents said it was the only measure available to serve the nation's poor.

Gov. Daniel Walker, D-Ill., charged the compromise resolution worked out by a bipartisan conference committee was "a nothing statement" that could even imply support of the American Medical Association's "Medicredit" bill.

No Other Way

Gov. Otis Bowen, R-INd., a physician, said the language proposed by Walker would indicate "there is no other way but toal socialization." Gov. Malcolm Wilson, R-N.Y., who led the effort to work out a compromise, warned the governors that Walker's amendment would need a three-quarters majority under conference rules, and if the group failed to pass any statement it would be left with a health care policy statement that was adopted five years ago.

That argument appeared to sway some Democrats as well as the Republican governors. Walker's proposal was soundly defeated, even though his party holds a two to one edge in conference membership.

In other action, the governors adopted a policy statement opposing year-around Daylight Saving Time, which was instituted as an energy conservation measure last winter. The governors said it was "counterproductive," but Wilson, without comment, dissented from the conference position.

The health debate delayed action on a strong government reform resolution that appeared to have substantial bipartisan support. Wilson indicated, however, he wanted changes in the proposal approved unanimously by the conference executive committee Sunday.

Governors' conferences traditionally are politically bland, and this one was no exception. Partisan politics were largely muted save for an attack Tuesday by Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky on the Nixon administration for what Ford said was an effort to frighten voters with the specter that a "veto-proof" Congress may be elected in a Democratic landslide in November.

Ford called it a "cynical ploy" that invited representatives of the administration came to Seattle to drum up fear among Americans that too many Democrats winning in off-year congressional elections would damge the nation.

Among those who spoke of a veto-proof Congress at the session were Ken Cole, Nixon's chief domestic adviser; Republican National Chairman George Bush, and Casper Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Ford's blast and the attention focused on potential presidential hopefuls Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, were the only outward signs that 1976 is approaching.

Privately, however, many of the participants indicated they expect the governors to seize prominent roles in their parties' national conventions — perhaps as candidates.

Among the republican names being broached as possible candidates were Reagan, Milliken and Evans. Democrats who governors felt could find their way into a national ticket included Dan Walker of Illinois, Dale Bumpers of Arkansas; Reuben Askew of Florida; Jimmy Carter of Georgia; John Gilligan of Ohio and the new head of the Democratic Governors' Caucus, Wendell Anderson of Minnesota.

Budget Reform Bill Agreed On

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate-House conferees agreed Wednesday on a bill to give Congress a tighter grip on the budget as a whole and a bigger voice — as against the President's — in setting national spending priorities.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., heads of the conference delegations from the two chambers, predicted that both would pass the measure within about two weeks. It is a compromise version of separate bills previously approved.

The measure represents the first major attempt since an unsuccessful one in 1946 to reform Congress' way of handling spending legislation. It also would sharply limit presidential impoundment of funds appropriated by Congress.

The key to the new system would be two new, powerful budget committees, one in each chamber, backed up by a congressional budget office and specialized staffs.

These committees would develop and Congress would pass by May 15 each year a target resolution setting out total spending and a breakdown by major categories.

The government fiscal year, which now begins July 1, would be shifted beginning in 1976 to Oct. 1.

The regular appropriations committees then would take over, using the resolution as a guide, and recommend individual appropriation bills. Congress could pass these, but not make them effective before Oct. 1, or it could order some held pending further consideration.

Congress now rarely succeeds in passing more than one or two of the 14 major appropriations bills before the fiscal year begins.

To help further to keep it on schedule, the budget measure would require all authorization bills — those that must be adopted before the actual money measures are voted — to be reported by the appropriate specialized committees by May 15 annually. The President's proposals for programs and other matters to be authorized would have to be submitted a full year in advance.

On the matter of impoundment, the measure provides that if a president's refusal to spend money appropriated by Congress amounted to a definite reduction, it would be invalid unless Congress enacted legislation approving it.

If an impoundment merely meant delaying spending of funds, the President could order it, but either house of Congress could veto the delay by resolution. The comptroller general, a fiscal officer responsible to Congress, would be authorized to go to court, with congressional approval, if the President failed to comply.

'Baby Doll' Says 'You're Never Too Old'

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — "You're never too old to practice the world's oldest profession," says Sarah "Baby Doll" Cowan.

Police arrested her again Tuesday on a prostitution charge. She is 73.

Miss Cowan was picked up, police said, after an undercover vice squad officer claimed she invited him to her house to "have some fun."

"I've been selling my services since I had a broken love affair when I was 19," Miss Cowan said in an telephone interview from the Peoria County Jail. "I've paid enough fines to own a third of this damn county jail.

"I'll get out again, and, maybe, I'll be back in again. But $150 a month Social Security just doesn't put enough bread on my table."

Miss Cowan said her going scale is $10 and up.

"Those are inflation prices," she added. "When I first came to Peoria in 1932 it was known as a dollar town.

"In my time, I've pleased thousands of men. Some have asked me to marry them. Those that did I wouldn't hang on my Christmas tree. I'm too particular, I guess."

Age is no problem, she said, because men always have wanted a woman and always will.

"The only things bothering me are my weight and high blood pressure, . .' she said. "I'm up to 200 pounds from a trim 125 in my heyday. I bought an exercising machine a couple of months ago.

Police say she has been on more blotters than a ball point pen.

"We feel a little sorry for her," said Sheriff Bernard Kennedy. "Any time girls are picked up, she is the first one to visit them — bringing candy and cigarettes. When Baby Doll is picked up, no one comes and all she has to talk to are the policemen."

AP

Judge Fines Financier Smith For Contempt

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A judge cited C. Arnholt Smith for contempt of court Wednesday after the financier repeatedly refused to answer questions in the trial of a man accused of attempted extortion.

Superior Court Judge Paul Eugene Overton ordered Smith to appear in court June 13 and warned: "The long arm of the law is upon you."

Smith, 75, invoked the Fifth Amendment seven times in the trial of Robert Daggett, who is charged with offering to change grand jury testimony given by his brother if Smith would buy up to $20 million worth of property for him.

Smith, a long-time friend of President Nixon and a major campaign contributor, is former president of United States National Bank, which collapsed last year in the nation's biggest bank failure.

Smith refused to answer questions regarding conversations between himself and a Los Angeles tax attorney concerning contacts between the Daggett brothers.

At the request of Daggett's attorney, Roger Ruffin, Judge Overton ruled on each of the questions and said: "I find you in contempt."

Overton said Smith's protection against self-incrimination failed to bar the questions as framed by Ruffin.

Smith's lawyer, David Elson, said after each of the rulings: "I have instructed him not to answer that question."

"On the advice of my attorney, I am asserting my constitutional privilege not to place myself in a position to be a witness against myself," Smith said.

The tax attorney, Richard Trattner, advised Smith on tax fraud matters. Smith faces a $23-million income tax claim, the largest ever filed by the Internal Revenue Service against an individual, and has been the subject of a grand jury investigation.

Pliny Daggett, brother of Robert, has pleaded guilty to delivering an extortion letter and is awaiting sentencing.
